Violation of Code Had Been Charged

Loss of Eagle Leads to Tennessee Firm's Action.

Harriman, Tenn., June 25 (AP).—The Harriman Hosiery Mills, one of the largest industrial plants to lose the Blue Eagle, closed down its plant at 3:30 p. m. today and in a posted notice said "the actions of Gen. Hugh Johnson and the NRA have convinced us that they intend to wreck this concern and make its operation impossible."

The notice to employes, released by T. Asbury Wright, jr., attorney for the mills, said further:

"Every honest and sincere effort has been made to effect a settlement with the Government. We will not submit to their unreasonable and unjust demands. One of the demands which affect you is that we discharge a number of our present employes to make room for people now on strike."

The Blue Eagle was removed from the mills on recommendation of the National Labor Board, which charged with officials with alleged violation of the hosiery code by refusing to bargain collectively with its employes. The controversy between the mills and the NRA resulted, following the alleged discharge by the mills of employes for their union activities.

Several hundred employes have been on strike several months. They are members of the United Textile Workers Union.

The mills' notice to employes today explained further:

"Goods on hand will be finished and shipped as rapidly as possible. We appreciate more than we can ever express the loyalty of our employes, and will do all we can to help employes get work elsewhere.

"The Department of Justice investigated our case and told Gen. Johnson that we have not violated the law or the code, but the persecution of NRA continues."

Wright said a statement from the board of directors would be issued later.

Action Will Await Return of Johnson

Action in the closing of the Harriman Hosiery Mills was deferred last night by NRA officials pending the expected return to duty today of Recovery Administrator Johnson, ill in Walter Reed Hospital since Friday.

Associates of Johnson declared he awaited with interest a report on the situation from A. R. Glancy, NRA division administrator, who went to Harriman Sunday to investigate.

Virginian Slain In Family Fight

Sister-in-Law, 21, Held; "Drunken Brawl" Is Blamed.

Charlottesville, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Henry Shaver, young farmer of the Whitehall District of Albemarle, was shot and killed today by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Solomon McCauley, 21, in what officers said was "a drunken family brawl."

Shaver was killed as he endeavored to crawl through the bars of a gate at the home of his brother, Austin Shaver.

Mrs. McCauley, who told officers she had taken refuge there and had warned Shaver not to follow her, stood upon the porch of the house 30 feet from the gate and sent a .22-caliber rifle bullet through his neck. He died instantly.

Mrs. Austin Shaver and her small son were witnesses.

Mrs. McCauley, who had been living at the Henry Shaver home, went about a mile to a telephone and called officers. Deputy Sheriff Abbott Smith arrested her and she was in jail here tonight to await hearing on murder charges.

The slain man and Mrs. McCauley had been riding in a truck near his house shortly before the killing when the machine went into a ditch and was damaged. Mrs. McCauley went on to Henry Shaver's house and "cussed him out" several times before running to Austin's place, the victim's widow told officers.

New York Broker Dies Of Heart Attack in Air

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—United Air Lines officials tonight announced they had been advised of the death by heart disease of Robert L. Christy, of New York, member of the brokerage firm of Dillon, Read & Co., on board a plane en route from New York to Chicago.

NORMA MILLEN.

Dedham, Mass., June 25 (U.P.).—Norma Brighton Millen, 19, minister's daughter, lived once more through a honeymoon of terror today as she recounted on the witness stand her brief career as bride of Murton Millen, youthful killer.

In a voice like that of a 10-year-old, so soft it was frequently necessary for Judge Nelson P. Brown to repeat her testimony to the jury, chestnut-haired Norma told how she feared for her very life as her husband fled from city to city.

"I was afraid Murt would kill me," she said.

Action Gives Mendieta Free Rein to Deal With "Revolt."

Havana, June 25 (U.P.).—Every member of the Cuban cabinet presented his resignation to President Carlos Mendieta on arriving for this evening's session, as a result of dissension within the administration seeking to overthrow the government.

The mass resignations were to leave President Mendieta free to reappoint or replace each man as he desired.

If the cabinet members who belong to the ABC party refuse to accept reappointment, it was believed generally that Mendieta was ready to announce replacements.

The powerful ABC bloc was reported insisting on virtual delivery of the government into their hands as the crisis neared.

Unconfirmed reports said the ABC demands included:

1. Establishment of a "parliamentary" cabinet with the ABC holding a majority of the posts.
2. Removal of Lieut. Col. Jose Pedraza as chief of police.
3. Reorganization of the police force.
4. Dissolution of the navy.

Since there is no congress to which a cabinet could be responsible under a system such as they propose, modelled on that of France, with a premier, the first point was generally interpreted as signifying a desire for delivery of the government to the ABC.

The new cabinet system, proposed by Secretary of State Cosmo de la Torriente, found cool receptions in many quarters. Former President Mario Menocal was unresponsive.

Officers on the gunboat Cuba, who participated in a mutiny last week at Antilla, were detained on board meanwhile.

Hitler's Rule Is Called "Divine Right" by Aid

Cologne, Germany, June 25 (U.P.).—Adolf Hitler rules Germany by divine right, Rudolf Hess, one of the chancellor's chief aids, hinted in an address tonight.

Hess, attacking critics of the Hitlerite regime in carrying on the Nazi "anti-grumblers" campaign, declared: "We believe the leader (Hitler) is guided by a voice from on high in shaping Germany's destiny. There can be no criticism possible of this belief."

35 Seized In Downtown Gaming Raid

Police Confiscate Race Charts, Dice, Other Equipment.

Shattering a skylight and lowering themselves to the top of a gaming table by ropes, Lieut. George Little and eight members of his vice squad raided an alleged gambling establishment in the 500 block of Thirteenth street northwest late yesterday, and arrested 35 men.

The rendezvous was on the second floor, over a beauty parlor, and the raiders crawled to the skylight from an adjoining roof. A dice game, in which about 25 men participated, was in progress when the police entered.

In addition to the 25 at the dice game, an additional 10 patrons were scanning a 90-foot blackboard, longest ever confiscated here, on which was scrawled racing results from Latonia, Rockingham and Arlington. Numerous other gaming devices and equipment were confiscated.

The establishment was complete in every detail, police said. It was air-conditioned, and a small radio set furnishing music. A buzzer, confiscated in a raid on the same place in May, 1931, was found.

As a curious crowd of several hundred persons milled outside, the prisoners were loaded in patrol wagons and taken to Police Headquarters, where five were charged with setting up a gaming table. The others were summoned to appear in Police Court this morning as Government witnesses and were released. Those charged are Harry Smith, 32, of 1600 block of R street northwest; Winfield J. Flagg, 64, of 1600 block of Columbia road; William O'Neill, 42, of 900 block of East Capitol street; Arthur Bannister, 45, of 1200 block of Fourteenth street northwest; Edgar J. Zehrle, 38, of 900 block of E street northeast.

Lieut. Little and his raiders acted on a tip that the establishment was conducted by one of gangland's "big shots." They were armed with a warrant issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Reynolds Estate Peace Attempted

New Effort Being Made to Avoid Court Row.

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 25 (AP).—Another effort to settle the $25,000,000 estate of the late Smith Reynolds, ill-fated tobacco heir, by private negotiations instead of litigation, was disclosed today when a scheduled court hearing was continued to permit further discussion.

No details of the negotiations were revealed. Several months ago a family agreement was held invalid. Under the agreement, Anne Cannon Reynolds, daughter of the tobacco heir by his first wife, and Zachary Smith Reynolds, his son by Libby Holman Reynolds, would receive about $2,000,000 each, and their mothers would receive $500,000 each. The remainder of the estate went to a charitable foundation.

The hearing set for today was upon a motion by the Babarrus Bank & Trust Co., contending its ward, Anne Cannon Reynolds, was entitled to share equally with the son of Reynolds' second wife, the former Broadway favorite, Libby Holman, in the entire estate.

Steel Union Office At Weirton Bombed

None Is Injured by $500 Blast; Probe Started.

Weirton, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—State and local police today were probing the explosion last night of a dynamite bomb in the hallway of a two-story building used as a meeting place by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The explosion broke windows in the building, knocked merchandise from the shelves of a wholesale candy firm on the first floor and caused damage estimated at $500.

Second Mrs. Abner Drury, Jr. Granted Divorce by Default

Peter Abner Drury, jr., heir to the Abner Drury fortunes, and Anna Jean Drury, who lived together approximately a fortnight, were separated by divorce yesterday, three years after a Reno annulment, the action going to her by default.

The suit of the former Baroness von Hage, daughter of a New York millionaire brick manufacturer, was won without contest in the New York Supreme Court. Justice Aaron J. Levy granted the decree after Mrs. Drury's counsel, Bernard H. Sandler, testified the Washingtonian had withdrawn his answer.

The Drury answer had alleged an annulment in Reno in June, 1931, obtained on the ground he was under the influence of liquor when the ceremony was performed at Rockville, Md., in March, 1928.

Mrs. Drury had claimed the Reno annulment was illegal because the annulment papers were served on her unexpectedly while she was dining at the Mayflower Hotel and that service should have been made in New York, her legal residence.

Thus was written the final chapter in a tangled matrimonial venture that has excited Washington society since its inception.

Following the Reno annulment, Drury married Wendella Taylor, named by Mrs. Drury in the New York divorce action. The first Mrs. Drury was Margaret Simonds Calhoun, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun, and now Mrs. Charles Waring, of Charleston, S. C.

Ritchie Files As Candidate For Governor

GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

His action ended speculation that he may seek the nomination for the United States Senate instead of a fifth term as the State's chief executive. He is the fourth candidate to file. The others are George L. Radcliffe, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, and Dr. Charles H. Conley, of Frederick.

Girl, 17, Drowns Trying to Save Brother's Life

Baltimore, June 25 (Spl.).—Attempting to rescue her 10-year-old brother from drowning in Fairlee Creek, near Chestertown, late today, a 17-year-old girl was drowned when the boy dragged her under the water. Her body was recovered a half hour later, but her brother's body has not been found.

The two deaths brought Maryland's week-end toll to 13—seven drowned, five killed in traffic accidents, and one killed by the heat.

Those drowned today were William Moffett, 10, and Mary Worth Moffett, 17, children of Samuel Moffett, of near Melitota, about 10 miles north of Chestertown.

They had gone to a private beach on Fairlee Creek with Miss Mary Dodd, 20, and their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sutton. While Mr. and Mrs. Sutton were crabbing in a small boat a half-mile away, the younger members of the party went in bathing.

The boy got beyond his depth and cried for help. His sister went to his aid and was dragged under. Miss Dodd attempted to save them, but when she reached the point where they had been struggling was unable to find their bodies.

Firemen from Chestertown aided in recovering Miss Moffett's body, but were unable to revive her.

Others who drowned in Maryland included Roscoe H. Brashears, 19, who died while swimming at Lake View, near Frederick; Charles Thomas, of Capitol Heights, drowned near Galesville when he fell from a fishing boat; James Owens, 14, of Washington, drowned while swimming in St. Clements Bay, near Leonardtown; Myrtle Blackston, 9, who died while bathing in Baltimore, and Oliver Kraft, 21, of Baltimore, who died in Middle River, near Essex, Baltimore County.

Mrs. Rose Walbecker, 51, of Baltimore, was overcome by the heat yesterday, and died from a heart attack induced by the heat.

Albert A. Bena, 22, of Baltimore, was killed today when his motorcycle collided with an auto. He was hurled 20 feet into the air and fell on his head, fracturing his skull. He died in Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Three men and a woman, all colored, were killed early today when their auto overturned near Wheaton, Montgomery County.

Family of Kidnap Victim Threatened

Extortion Notes Sent to Gettle, Oil Man.

Los Angeles, June 25 (AP).—Two extortion notes threatening to destroy his Beverley Hills home by dynamite unless he paid $6,000 have been received by William F. Gettle, millionaire oil promoter, who recently was kidnaped and held for $60,000 ransom, authorities disclosed tonight.

The notes warned Gettle unless the sum was paid "at once" his home would be destroyed and his wife, Fleta, and their four children seriously harmed.

The $6,000 demanded in the notes was to be paid by Gettle to "atone" for the millionaire's appearance in Federal Court, where he testified against two women of the kidnap gang, both of whom were convicted.

Lobby Order Limits Bids To One Firm

By Frank Getty.

A ban against firms employing lobbyists in seeking Government contracts backfired yesterday when the hearing of the special House Military Affairs Investigating Committee revealed this limited competition on motorized equipment desired by the Army to one firm—the Chevrolet Motor Co.

After hearing the testimony of Maj. Gen. L. H. Bash, the new Quartermaster General, that open competition on trucks and ambulances for the Army had been thus restricted by the anti-lobbying order of Assistant Secretary of War Woodring, the House Committee declared it would ask temporary relaxation of the order.

Woodring, declaring he favored "the more bidders the better," promptly announced willingness to follow the committee's suggestion, if it proved to be in the interests of the Government.

What started out to be an investigation of increased prices to the Army on motorized equipment as a result of the NRA ban on Ford products shifted suddenly yesterday when it was revealed that the Chrysler Co. also was eliminated from bidding for War Department business.

Affidavits Required.

The committee heard from Bash that all bidders on material for the War Department now had to sign affidavits attesting that neither they nor their affiliates employed anyone other than a "bona fide established commercial or selling agency" to "solicit or secure" contracts.

Previously, the Government had been empowered to deduct from the amount paid the contractor any fees paid to lobbyists.

As a result of the spring grand jury investigation, Bash said, Woodring issued his order requiring affidavits regarding the practice. It was revealed that the Fargo Motor Corporation, handling Chrysler's contracts with the Government, had engaged so-called "lobbyists" or "contact men."

With Ford eliminated by the President's Executive order, and the Dodge Co. through specifications, this left the field open only to Chevrolet, the committee declared yesterday.

"I am strongly in favor of competitive bidding," Woodring said when he heard of the committee's attitude. "The more bidders there are on Army contracts, the better it suits me. I have no desire to limit bids on contracts to one or two bidders, and if the committee is of the opinion that the present regulations limit bidding to that extent, I will gladly follow their wishes.

Ready to Lift Requirement.

"I issued the order requiring the signing of these affidavits so that all firms coming to the War Department would come with clean hands. If circumstances now are

Note in Triple Murder Jails 3

Trio Are Found Killed in Oklahoma Hills by Searchers.

McAlester, Okla., June 25 (AP).—The bodies of three men who disappeared from their homes in Canadian, Okla., Friday night were found by searchers in the hills northeast of Canadian today.

The men were Homer Beasley, 27, Bill Gann and Hobart Watkins.

Searchers first found the body of Beasley, the top of his head shot away. The other bodies were found a short distance away.

Near Beasley's body, a candidate's campaign card was found on which was scribbled: "Jack Rackley, Bill Moore and George Baker killed Hobart and Homer and maybe me."

Officers concluded the note, unsigned, was written by Gann, a State highway employe.

On the strength of the note, Rackley, Moore, Baker and two women, Ruth Moore and Mary Baker, were taken into custody for questioning.

Mrs. Mollison Plans Australian Flight

New York, June 25 (AP).—Mrs. Amy Mollison, the English flier, is planning another flight to Australia. Here on private business, she said she will leave tomorrow by plane for the West.

Mrs. Mollison said that she and her husband would fly together in the England-to-Australia air race next October, in a specially-built plane.

Road Bonds Bring Premium.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 25 (AP).—A $5,000,000 Missouri road bond issue was sold to a syndicate of eastern banks, including the Chase National Bank, today for a premium of $58,450. The bonds will bear 3 per cent interest.

Long Range National Plan Before President; Returns Home Today

Home Owners Loans Near Billion Mark

By Robert C. Albright.

Vanguard in the caravan of emergency millions leading out of Washington, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is nearing its first billion dollar milestone in the parade of relief to the home owner.

A year after Congress voted $2,200,000,000 in bonds to refinance houses of the debt-ridden, $923,416,733 had entered the bulwark between mortgage foreclosure on 306,887 homes and persistent creditors.

And then, in a parting gesture, Congress authorized $1,000,000,000 more to pour into the stream that leads potentially toward a $21,500,000,000 burden of home mortgage indebtedness.

"It presents a financial problem of the very first magnitude if the Government, through the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, is going to go on indefinitely taking over that load of debt," Chairman John H. Fahey told a House committee.

But Congress authorized the additional $1,000,000,000, anyway.

Meanwhile, the Administration, which realizes by now it is manifestly impossible to undertake the task of refinancing all home loans in the United States, is counting on the new housing act to stimulate private mortgage and building and loan agencies into activity.

HOLC officials frankly admit the time is coming when the Government must draw the home relief line, and soon. They would like to clear up Federal refinancing activities and take the Government out of purely relief operations.

Loan outlays of the HOLC in all 48 States, Hawaii and the District have been made with increasing precision since Congress passed its

Job Appointments Expected Shortly

President Starts Busy Week in Conference With Farley.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 25.—President Roosevelt began a week of whirlwind activity today with conferences on National and political planning, both bearing importantly on the progress of the New Deal, after which he entrained late tonight for Washington.

He received from members of the National Planning Commission a preliminary report on "National resources," and then turned to Postmaster General James A. Farley, political mentor, for a discussion of appointments to the host of new regulatory boards set up by Congress.

Almost lost among the alphabetical jumble of Washington, the National Planning Commission, nevertheless, has been at work many months, bringing together data which the President will use in formulating his plans for National development to be given to Congress next year.

To himself the President will reserve final judgment on a definite program, but, in the meantime, the commission is serving as a coordinating agency, attempting to fit into one concise pattern the diverse plans for such fields of endeavor as forestry, soil erosion, land usage and flood control.

His Uncle Heads Board.

Members of the commission, headed by Frederic A. Delano, architect and uncle of the President, presented a tentative draft of their survey after luncheon with the President at Krum Elbow. They said they hoped to have ready a final rport when the President returns from his Pacific cruise in August.

On behalf of the President, it was explained that the board was established by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes for the purpose of making a survey of National resources from four points of view—the physical, sociological, governmental and economic. The phrase "National resources," it was said, is much broader than "natural resources."

From this and other statements by the President, it was apparent that he considers the development of a long-range program of land and

Dr. Silverman Suspended for Accusing Two

NRA Statistician, Critic of Labor Aids, Also Is Rebuked by Union.

Suspension of Dr. A. G. Silverman from his post as an NRA statistician was announced yesterday, 24 hours after he issued a statement criticizing members of the Labor Advisory Board.

Officials of NRA Lodge, American Federation of Government Workers, hastened to deny Silverman is a member of their organization and made plain the union wished to avoid figuring in the new controversy, and a statement called his accusations "an act of treachery to labor."

It was recalled, however, that Silverman last week joined other Labor Advisory Board technical employes in registering with the board a protest against the discharge of John Donovan, fellow employe and president of the NRA lodge. Silverman said he was threatened with dismissal for interceding for Donovan.

Accused Peck, Hillman.

Silverman precipitated his suspension by accusing Dr. Gustav Peck and Sidney Hillman, board members, of misleading labor in their own interests. Peck announced the disciplinary action and said disposition of the case would be considered by the full board in a few days.

Peck declared Silverman violated specific instructions of the board to refrain from discussing his grievances with newspaper men. He added issuance of Silverman's statement was contrary to both general NRA regulations and to a rule prohibiting subordinates from giving information to the press.

Silverman was assigned last Feb-

Chicago University Opens Doors to All

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—Doors of the University of Chicago today were opened to "all who might profit by study," regardless of whether they have had previous academic training, President Robert Maynard Hutchins announced.

The university's new policy permits enrollment of students-at-large. They may participate in university studies without necessity of working toward a degree and without academic requirements. Intellectual capacity is their only qualification.

G. O. P. Ready For New Deal Bid for Votes

By Raymond Clapper.

Republican party leaders are understood to be ready to go to bat on the reported intention of President Roosevelt to ask for election of a New Deal Congress, as distinguished from a strictly partisan Democratic Congress.

They see in the Administration's disposition to ignore the traditional party label a confirmation of their assertions that President Roosevelt is attempting to substitue a New Deal party for the Democratic party. They have insisted throughout the last two sessions of Congress that President Roosevelt has repudiated much of the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago and launched out on a program not envisaged in the presidential ampaign.

This reaction, voiced in some Republican quarters last night, was taken to forecast the line of attack that may be expected in speeches soon to be made by the new Republican National chairman, Henry P. Fletcher. He is booked to make a Nation-wide radio address next Monday night and to follow this with an address at Jackson, Mich., next week, commemorating the founding of the Republican party.

G. O. P. Welcomes Issue.

Republicans say they welcome a Congressional election campaign based on the New Deal issue, because they believe it will mean driving a wedge even more deeply between the New Deal Democrats and the regular Democrats, such as Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia, Alfred E. Smith of New York, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, John W. Davis, former Presidential candidate, and numerous other prominent Democrats who have been

Michigan Governor Is Sued for $100,000

Detroit, June 25 (AP).—A suit for $100,000, charging slander and libel, was filed in circuit court today by Clyde V. Fenner, president of the Forgotten Men's Club, of Detroit, against Gov. William A. Comstock.

Fenner charges the Governor libeled him in an address before the recent Democratic pre-primary convention in Battle Creek, at which time the Governor used the terms "political grafters" and "racketeers" in a reference to Fenner and Al Tobin, of Detroit.

Hope Is Held for Browning; 'Peaches' Regrets Serious Illness

Dr. J. B. Weighart gave him a chance for recovery. Attaches at the hospital for joint disease, where the operator has lain in a coma for several days, have characterized his condition as "not so good."

In Chicago, where she opens a theatrical engagement next week, the curly-haired girl Browning courted and married to the accompaniment of wide publicity, and who left him for a stage career, expressed her sorrow over Browning's illness.

Browning, who amassed his fortune mainly in real estate developments on Long Island, has been in poor health for some time. He was found unconscious in his hotel suite last Friday.

The real estate operator, son of the founder of the clothing firm of Browning, King & Co., was divorced from his first wife, Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, in Paris in 1924.

Two More Fall In Capital Heat

Temperatures Reach 90 Degrees; Slightly Cooler Promised.

Two persons were prostrated by blistering temperatures that rose yesterday to 90 and endured from 3 to 5 p. m. The Weather Bureau promised a few degrees cooler temperature today.

Shoppers and Government employes kept under cover at noon as a sweltering sun, registering 87 degrees at noon, beat unceasingly on the pavements. The temperature at 8 a. m. was 80. For the same date last year the high point was 86 degrees.

The heat prostrations were William R. Moffett, 52, of the 2900 block of Carleton street northeast, and Madeline M. Dreyer, 35, of 1309 Irving street northwest. Both were treated by a rescue squad, the latter being further cared for at Emergency Hospital.

Workhouse Faced By Texas Senator

Assembly Leader Fined for Missing Bank Funds.

Houston, Tex., June 25 (AP).—Gus Russek, of Schulenburg, veteran State Senator and chairman of the Texas Senate banking committee, today was fined $5,000, sentenced to four months in the New Orleans Workhouse, and assessed a suspended four-year prison sentence for misapplication of funds from the First National Bank of Schulenburg.

Russek and two other former officers of the bank, Charles A. and Otto G. Vogt, had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the National banking laws. Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly assessed each of the Vogt brothers a $500 fine and gave each a 13-months suspended sentence.

The charges alleged that the three misapplied approximately $60,000 through "kiting" drafts and making false entries.

Bill Pressed Pending Debt Talks Starting Tomorrow.

London, June 25 (AP). — Great Britain sharpened her weapons for a trade war with Germany today while at the same time extending the hand of diplomacy to a delegation from the Reich, coming here to discuss the moratorium on foreign debts.

The Anglo-German conferences, which will begin Wednesday, mark the first effort to settle peaceably the international economic controversy based on Germany's announcement of suspension of payments on the Dawes and Young loans.

While expressing hope of a satisfactory agreement, the British government prepared for economic warfare by pushing through its second reading in the House of Commons a bill designed to collect interest on the loans forcibly from German commercial accounts.

Two Demands Pressed.

British negotiators were ready to demand two things of the Germans:

1. Full payment of the Young and Dawes loans, which were issued as the result of international cooperation and to which Germany pledged her full faith and credit.

2. No discrimination against British creditors by the German government.

Opposed to these stands, the German delegates, who will arrive in London tomorrow, are understood to plan to demand two concessions in return for lifting the moratorium:

1. Increased purchases of German goods by creditor nations.

2. Reductions of interest rates on the Dawes and Young loans, which bear 7 per cent and 5½ per cent coupons, respectively.

"Rightly or wrongly," he said, "the creditors of all countries no longer feel the confidence they did in the good faith of Germany."

The bill would empower the government to set up a clearing house to handle foreign commercial accounts and to impound funds from them for payment of bondholders.

Could Impose Duties.

In addition to authorizing the clearing house, under the terms of the legislation, the government could impose import duties in reprisal against discriminatory tariffs.

Chamberlain said that if the clearing house is set up, 20 per cent of the value of German imports would be impounded, the remainder going to the German seller.

Against the clearing house threat, Germany has the power to shut off commercial relations with Great Britain, and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, has said that this would be done in retaliation if any nation carried out such an arrangement.

In his speech in the House Chamberlain repeated charges that Germany had acted in bad faith.

Tugwell Sorry His Bill Lost

But Declares Battle for Drug, Food Measure Has Just Started.

Rexford G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, in a letter to workers in the Food and Drug Administration, expressed regret yesterday over the failure of Congress to pass the Copeland pure food, drug and cosmetics bill, the Associated Press reported.

Passage was "made impossible both by the pressure of other business and through the opposition of the interests which would have been controlled by the legislation," Tugwell said.

Efforts of the Administration "to secure a satisfactory law have not ended," he added. "They have only begun."

It will be necessary to continue working "with the antiquated and awkward law now in force," the Undersecretary said, "but sooner or later we shall have an adequate law under which to work in our efforts to protect the consumer."

The other three gubernatorial candidates and United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, a principal supporter of Radcliffe, also plan to go to Atlantic City this week for the sessions of the Maryland State Bar Association from Thursday to Saturday.

Since then, complaints from States that they were not getting their share of home financing, charges of inefficiency and stalemate in administration of the loans in many States, have been on the downgrade.

Before the guarantee act was passed, Congressional criticism reached a crescendo in a resolution introduced by Representative Everett Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, calling for a sweeping inquiry of the whole set-up.

Three to Close Loan.

He charged it took three field employes a month in February to close one loan in Illinois.

Widely varying statistics from the the States showed it cost $122 to float a loan in New York during the same month, as against only $14 in Ohio.

Since that Congressional blast, the Home Owners Loan Corporation has not been so free with its data on administrative costs. An inquiry last week met with response that this information has not been brought down to date.

But the loan machinery has quickened. If disbursements in New York lagged at the outset, they have since been brought to the point where, on June 8, New York led every other State with a loan outlay of $108,681,076 on 19,887 projects.

On the same date, Ohio had spread $105,759,077 over 33,871 loans. Third in the list of money received was Michigan, with $78,136,386 on 27,566 homes, and fourth, New Jersey, with $56,596,446 distributed over 11,421 loans.

At the bottom of the State loan list was Nevada with $1,955,250 made on 735 loans. Vermont was a trifle better, with $1,964,753 on 733 homes. Third from the bottom was Idaho, with 1,305 loans of $2,181,811.

Loan in District.

The District of Columbia, with 602 loans totaling $3,658,905, had fared better than eight States and the Territory of Hawaii. Nearby Maryland was fourteenth, having received $18,598,008 on 6,651. Virginia was twenty-first, with 3,271 loans totaling $10,466,852.

But the corporation has only a potential $3,200,000,000 to meet 1,465,941 applications, asking an aggregate of $4,702,441,796, that have come in from all over the country. And conceivably, urban homes, to the value of $21,500,000,000, could ask the same relief.

HOLC officials are hoping they won't do it. They believe they see some signs that the demand is tapering. For example, only 20,942 applications were received the week ended June 15, the smallest in any week since the beginning of the year.

Thousands of applications, they report, are from people who are not really in distress but merely desire to get a long-term, amortized loan at 5 per cent interest.

U. S. to Reopen Illicit Liquor War This Week

First Step Will Be Check of Bottles, New and Second Hand.

(Associated Press.)

The first advance of the Government's new drive against bootleggers will begin this week with promulgation of Treasury regulations limiting the sale of liquor bottles to distillers, rectifiers and other licensed dealers.

The rules were virtually completed yesterday by Treasury officials and representatives of the codified legitimate industry, and Secretary Morgenthau was expected to issue them, probably today.

As soon as the regulations and forms are ready other phases of the offensive against illicit liquor will be started. New regulations will be drafted to require the filing of accurate records with officials on the sale and movement of all raw materials that go into liquor manufacture. These were authorized in the closing days of Congress.

Must Be Blown Into Bottles.

The bottling regulations will require a simple identification mark and serial number to be blown into all bottles manufactured after June 30.

While the new rules do not go so far as the proposals in New York to "break your bottle" to prevent bootlegging by second-hald dealers, the hope is that penalties for possession of empties by others than those who "killed" them will be just as effective.

The new rules are aimed at persons who get concessions on the empties at big hotels and other places and second-hand dealers who sell them to unlicensed liquor handlers, with a few cents extra charged for bottles with nice clean labels.

It will be some time before the effectiveness of bottling restrictions will be accurately measurable, because it will take months to exhaust present stocks.

Will Inventory Empties.

An inventory will be taken of the empties in the future, all such containers will have to bear the identification stamp made in the bottle itself.

There are only about 40 plants equipped to make liquor bottles, causing officials to be optimistic about keeping a close check. Dr. James M. Doran, head of the Distillers Code Authority, was among those who predicted success for the new undertaking.

Complications were expected in drafting regulations for keeping tab on raw materials going into liquor, chiefly because there ars so many.

Wit hthe industry pledged to cooperate with Government officials, however, the expectation was that workable restrictions would result. Treasury supervisors will be supplied with copies of all orders for materials and with copies of bills of lading on shipments filling orders.

Wooden Clock Runs Again.

Beaver Dam, Wis. (U.P.).—A 119-year-old clock, with wooden movement, owned by Edward Andorfer here, was restored to first class running condition by minor repairs made recently. It was made by Elisah Hotchkiss, Burlington, Conn., and purchased in 1815 by Gidney Howe, an ancestor of the present owner.

2 Drunk in Car, Fined.

Waterbury, Conn. (U.P.).—Two men were fined $100 and costs each for driving the same automobile while intoxicated. Judge Edward A. Mascola was unable to determine whether Fred Ziegler or Dudley Tompkins was at the wheel and found them both guilty. He remitted $00 of the fine, however.

National Plan Report Given To Roosevelt

wated usage among the major undertagings of the Administration. He will undertake to solidify the plans, which would have for one effect the abolition of "pork" as a legislative possibility.

Will Apportion Responsibilities.

Included in the survey is a study of the responsibility each political subdivision should beur in the final program. For example, the President explained, the Mississippi undoubtedly is a Federal problem, but smaller rivers should concern the States and creeks might well be county or township affairs.

Besides Mr. Delano, others attending the conference were Dr. Charles E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago, and Prof. Wesley Mitchel, of Columbia University, both members of the commission; Col. Henry M. Waite, PWA deputy administrator, and Charles Elliott, secretary of the board.

Postmaster General Farley was in conversation with the President most of the afternoon and tonight accompanied him back to Washington. He is understood to have brought news of latest developments on the political horizon as well as to have submitted a lengthy list of names for appointment.

Appointments Due Soon.

Chief among the decisions on appointments facing the President are the commissions to regulate the stock exchanges and communications. Mr. Roosevelt has declared he intends to make these and probably a number of other selections as soon as possible after returning to the Capital.

Accompanied by Mr. Farley, the President this afternoon drove to watch workers release a score of ruffled grouse on his estate. This movement to restock game was started during his term as Governor of New York and his place was one of a number to which birds were sent. They also visited the "cottage" for tea on the lawn.

Arriving in Washington tomorrow morning, Mr. Roosevelt will hasten to clear his desk in order to be able to board the cruiser Houston at Annapolis Saturday. Before leaving, he also must act on several score bills passed in the closing hours of Congress, including the Frazier farm moratorium measure.

Plants for Arid Areas of U. S. Sought in Gobi

Scientists Want Weapons to Combat Growing Erosion Threat.

(Associated Press.)

Into the vast Gobi Desert scientists of the United States Government will hunt plants to foil the evil genie of erosion that theatenens to create new deserts in America.

This is an important aim of four men from the Department of Agriculture who are launching two expeditions in search of new farm plants.

Dr. H. G. MacMillan and James L. Stephens, starting from Tokyo, will work during the next two years through the Far East and into the Gobi.

C. R. Enlow and H. L. Westover, now at Moscow, will push their way south and eastward into Turkestan, Persia, and the Caucasus.

One object is to find new grass plants, browse plants, trees and possibly legumes which can be introduced into the United States to replant areas of the Southwest and North Central States which are to be retired from farm production.

Plants for erosion control work are sought, too. In places where there are extremes of temperature hardy varieties may develop. If they can be made to flourish in sections of America where erosion threatens serious damage, their roots may save the soil against the onslaughts of wind and water.

Silverman's Attack Brings Suspension

"His work was just no good," Peck charged. "He has no capacity for finishing anything. He never did finish his report and we were forced to supplant him with another man on that task."

Union Stand Outlined.

Matthew F. Boyd, code adviser of the Labor Advisory Board and member of the union grievance committee, issued a statement explaining the organization's attitude. It read:

"A statement issued by Dr. George A. Silverman attacking Sidney Hillman and Dr. Gustav Peck in connection with the revision of the cotton garment code is an act of treachery to labor. In the heat of battle he has played into the hands of the opposition. It is one unforgivable offense in the labor world, or, for that matter, in any other world.

"The action of Silverman is purely personal. The NRA union has nothing to do with it. On the contrary, when we heard of his intention every responsible officer of the union pleaded and argued with him not to commit this outrageous folly. He ignored our arguments and denied our wishes.

"As soon as a general meeting of the union can be called it will be asked to take formal action.

"In the meantime, I have conferred with E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes. He authorizes me to add that the union is in no way involved in this purely personal action of Dr. Silverman."

Peck was named by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, as having recommended the discharge of Donovan for "insubordination and inefficiency."

Florida Rivals Claim Victory

Trammell and Pepper Are Both Confident of Winning Run-Off.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 25 (AP).—After Florida's bitterest Senatorial campaign in many years, Democrats prepared to decide in a second primary tomorrow whether to return Park Trammell to the United States Senate or send Claude Pepper, 34-year-old Tallahassee attorney. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Both men have waged intensive campaigns since the first primary on June 5 thrw ethe minto the run-off. Tonight both claimed victory.

Undefeated for pubic office since he entered politics in 1900, Trammel has campaigned on his record of three continuous terms. Pepper has asailed that record. Trammel charged Pepper was being backed by special interests and a $100,000 slush fund, which the young attorney vigorously denied.

Girl Artists Put Shorts On Nudes Park Barred

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—Six young women artists painted trunks on their nude etchings today—and now the works can be exhibited at the annual open air art fair.

The shorts, in oil and water colors, were added at the insistence of the South Parks Board, which held: "You can't show nudes in Grant Park—even in the name of art."

Gives Data on Army Motor Buying

different than when the order was issued and the committee feels that it is in the best interest of all concerned, I will be glad to consider lifting the affidavit requirement—temporarily, at least."

The Fargo Motor Corporation informed the House committee it is seeking unsuccessfully to break its contract with its Washington representative, who is viewed as a "lobbyist" under the Woodring order. In the meantime, the Chrysler Co. can not bid for War Department business.

Representative Goss (Republican), Connecticut, one of the two members of the investigating committee remaining in Washington, said Woodring would be asked to lift the ban so that several hundred trucks can be purchased with a Public Works Admnistration allotment.

"The requirement undoubtedly is wholesome," Goss said, "but the way it has worked out is restrictive. With Ford barred because he won't sign the NRA compliance certificate, and Chrysler ruled out by the new requirements, the Government can not buy these light trucks from any one but Chevrolet. "I think we ought to lift the lobbying restrictions temporarily."

Kvale Backs Goss.

Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, the other committee member at the hearing, concurred in Goss' statement, and announced that a hearing today will be devoted to bringing out definitely the jump in prices to the War Department occasioned by the executive ban on Ford bids.

Kvale said the committee would show that the Chevrolet Co. jumped its bid on ambulances for the War Department more than $300 after learning that Ford would be barred from bidding. It had been shown previously that the bids on trucks also went up.

"We expect to be able to show that the Government is paying tens of thousands of dollars more because of the NRA ruling against Ford," Kvale said.

Testimony at yesterday's hearing showed Ford to have been low bidder, and his product to have been recommended by the engineers at Camp Holabird, Md., but because of the ban Chevrolet was awarded the contracts at a greatly increased figure.

Chevrolet's bid on trucks was jumped from that of last fall, when it was virtually the same as the Ford bid, to a sum several hundred dollars higher, with Ford out of the running, the committee's charts will show, Kvale said.

Full Publicity Promised.

Gen. Bash yesterday afternoon promised a change in the methods of revealing details of bids submitted by companies competing for Army business. He said he favored the fullest publicity, and that this would be the policy in the future. The hearing revealed that several competitors had complained they were refused information at Camp Holabird regarding their own and other companies' bids.

Lieut. Col. B. F. Miller, of the Quartermaster General's staff, was questioned at length regarding specifications and procurement methods. He advocated that specifications on contracts be sent to the motor industry far in advance of the advertising of bids, blaming much of the current difficulties and dissatisfaction upon the speed with which the specifications necessarily were prepared.

The committee also received from Gen. Bash a promise of prompt punitive action against any officer under him proved guilty of receiving a discount on motor vehicles under irregular circumstances. The Quartermaster General pointed out, however, that discounts to Army officers on means of transportation had been customary since the days of travel on horseback.

Twelve Nabbed In Arson Ring; Millions Lost

Chicago Officers Declare Suspect Confessse; Arrests Loom.

Chicago, June 25 (AP). — Investigators today sketched the outlines of a "fire trust" which, they believe, has flourshed here for at least three years. Twelve persons, 11 men and one woman, are under arrest.

A $250,000 blaze in a restaurant supply company—a mystery since 1931—was credited to the ring by Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan. Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley, heading the investigation, said confessions had cleared up three other large fires.

"Fires made to order" was the business of the ring, according to the investigators, who said other arrests were impending. Three of the four held are insurance adjustors.

The insurance-arson plot is a racket which has flourished with hard times, said fire officials. Finding a merchant in financial straights, the arsonists conspire with him to burn his store and stock for the insurance money.

The fires are laid by distributing bladders of napptha or gasoline in a building, attaching them to a long fuse, they explained. When the fluid exploded, it cast fire in all directions, setting a fire almost impossible to combat. Many a fireman has been dangerously injured, they said, in blazes of this sort.

Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan declined to free six whose release was sought.

A conversation overheard by a fireman's brother led to the arrests, said the authorities. They seized three men and a woman in a West Side printing plant after investigators found the place knee-deep in waste and other inflammable materials.

Valentino Notaryi, one of the three, confessed, the investigators said, that this was pursuant to an arson plot for which the fee was to be $600.

Marshal Corrigan estimated that of last year's $5,000,000 fire loss in Chicago, 60 per cent was due to incendiary blazes.

Poisonous Serum Adds New Danger To Paralysis War

San Francisco, June 25 (AP).—A new danger, the possibility of contaminated serum, threatened today the battle of medical authorities and parents against the spread of infantile paralysis in California.

The death in Healdsburg, 60 miles north of here, of Jackie Baldwin, 2 years old, after an injection of serum at the hands of his father, Dr. Bryan Baldwin, prominent physician, disclosed possibility of danger in the all-important extract upon which medical science depends to protect individuals.

Dr. Baldwin administered the serum to both his sons, Jackie and Robert, the latter 7 years old. Both became ill quickly. Jackie died last night. Robert's condition was critical for a time, but he was improved today.

Four new cases and one new death were reported here today, bringing the totals since May 1 to 65 cases and five fatalities. Oakland reported 61 cases to date, including three new ones.

Authorities in Los Angeles County, reporting 966 cases since the first of the year, expressed belief the peak of the epidemic there had passed.

Imperial Valley Task Finished by Glassford

Brawley, Calif., June 25 (AP). Brig. Gen. Pelham H. Glassford, retired, leaving today for his Phoenix, Ariz., home, after spending three months in the Imperial Valley as Federal labor conciliator, said he was submitting recommendations covering "the essential steps necessary to establish better labor conditions."

Glassford states his report to the county board of supervisors also outlined "the procedure necessary to prevent a continuance of organized lawlessness and intimidation."

Suspect Admits Murdering Girl

CCC Worker Confesses He Beat Victim to Death Near Saranac Lake.

Malone, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—District Attorney Harold W. Main said today Thomas Frederick Showers, 27-year-old CCC workers, had signed a statement confessing he killed 14-year-old Cleo Tellstone in the woods near Saranac Lake Saturday.

The statement said the girl was lured into the woods, attacked and beaten to death.

Showers was detained yesterday a few hours after the girl's brother found her nude body in bushes near a highway. Showers' home is at Syracuse.

Main issued his announcement after the suspect had been put through a night and a day of questioning.

The Tellstone girl left home Saturday mornoing to mail letters. About the same time the girl's father told the prosecutor, a truck passed along the road on which she was walking. She did not return home Saturday night, and a search was started which revealed the body with the skull crushed.

Policemen Appeal Discharge to Hazen

Attorneys for Policemen John R. Lefoe and Henry L. Woods of the Traffic Bureau yesterday appealed to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen to dismiss the recommendation of the police trial board, which found them guilty of extortion and recommended that they be discharged.

Charles E. Ford and Russell Kelly argued that the men had already been acquitted by a jury and should not have been retired by the police board. The appeal was taken under advisement.

Boston Woman Reveals Clew To 'Lost Bride'

New York, June 25 (AP).—Identification of a photograph of the talented attorney, Agnes Colonia Tufverson, strangely missing for more than six months, by Mrs. Ruth F. Hall, of Boston, as a woman who appeared in a cleaning establishment there May 15 and early in June supplied the major development today in the police search for the vanished barrister.

This new turn in the international hunt for the blonde bride of Ivan Ivanovitch Poderjay, handsome adventurer now a prisoner in Vienna, came as police were planning an exhaustive scietific examination of the cabin on the liner Olympic in which the Yugoslavian voyaged to England alone. The liner arrives tomorrow night.

Capt. John H. Ayres, of the police missing persons bureau, made public the following telegraphic communication from Capt. Stephen J. Flaherty of the Boston police:

"Your photograph of Agnes Tufverson received and positively identified by Mrs. Ruth F. Hall, of the Sarni Cleaning Co., Boston, as that of the woman who brought a dress to be cleaned on or about May 15 and again between June 1 and June 10.

Used Name of Todgerson.

"Mrs. Hall is making every effort to locate the order slip that was sent out at the time, which no doubt will give the address of the woman who gave her name as Todgerson."

Several days ago Mrs. Hall identified a sketch of the missing barrister as the woman who left the dresses, saying her name was "Todgerson." The size of the dress was 40 or 42.

At that time Miss Sally Tufverson, sister of Agnes, asserted that the vanished attorney wore a size 36 dress, and that she was certain the Boston woman could not be her sister.

Mrs. Hall today said "the contour of the face is the same and the photograph shows the same piercing eyes."

Another Massachusetts clew came under consideration today because of statements made by Genevieve Larsson, an author, who said for years Miss Tufverson had had a retreat near West Duxbury, on Cape Cod. Two unidentified detectives were reported watching a house where a New York woman was said to have been seen over the week-end.

Further confirmation of the police theory that Poderjay duped his bride as to their future plans came today from Phyllis Hoffman, a friend of Miss Tufverson, who worked with her at the Electric Bond and Share Corporation.

Last Saw Her Dec. 20.

"I last saw Miss Tufverson December 20," she said, "when she came in to tell me good-by She said she and her husband were sailing on the Hamburg Line that afternoon.

"She definitely expected to spend the rest of her life abroad with him. She had no inkling of the fact that they weren't going to sail, or that reservations hadn't been made, I am sure."

Miss Hoffman said Miss Tufverson in the last three or four years had made a new will. She said she was a witness to the document, and that, as she now remembers, the sisters remained the sole beneficiaries. A search for this will is now under way.

While awaiting the complete report of Vienna authorities on the case, Capt. Ayres said he has received confirmation from Scotland Yard of the marriage in England of Poderjay and Mlle. Susanne Ferrand, held with him in Vienna, nine months before he posed as a single man, never married nor divorced, at the time he wed Miss Tufverson.

The marriage license taken out by Poderjay December 4 in New York makes no mention of previous marital ventures on his part. It is possible this evidence may be used by New York authorities in an attempt to extradite him to this country on a charge of perjury.

Republicans to Center Attack On Roosevelt New Deal Appeal

either dubious or openly hostile to the Administration program.

Throughout the Congressional campaign, the Republicans expect to hammer on their contention that this is not a Democratic Administration, but on the contrary one with which many of the most prominent spokesmen of the party are out of sympathy and which has rewritten the platform on which the last National election was conducted. For this purpose, they welcome the invasion of the West now being begun by the New Dealers themselves. Speeches such as Secretary Wallace, Undersecretary Tugwell, Gen. Johnson and other New Dealers are preparing to make throughout the next four weeks will, the Republicans believe, draw the issue clearly and enable them to conduct a straight out fight on the New Deal, with a plea for a return to Constitutional and Congressional Government.

"Yes" Congress Defended.

Meantime, Republican assertions that the last Congress was a rubber-stamp for the Executive were stoutly denied last night by the Democratic leaders of Congress. Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic Senate leader in a radio speech, and Representative Joseph W. Byrns, Democratic House leader, in an extension of remarks to appear today in the Congressional Record, went to the defense of their Democratic colleagues.

"The achievements of this Congress represent the fulfillment of the Democratic platform indorsed by him 100 per cent when Franklin D Roosevelt accepted the nomination for the Presidency," Senator Robinson said, taking issue with the Republican contention that the party principles as laid down at Chicago had been scrapped

"It makes no difference what phase of the New Deal you have in mind, you will find the roots of the idea in the declaration of principles made by the Democrats in the Chicago convention. There is ample proof that the Administration program for National recovery meets with the approval of a majority of the citizens, and that this approval in no sense rests on mere partisan considerations."

Robinson Defends Record.

He said the Administration had fulfilled the party pledge to bring about quicker methods of realizing on assets of closed banks, more rigid supervision of National banks, and prevention of use of their money in speculation. He said that likewise pledges to reduce unemployment, to improve the plight of the farmer and to rehabilitate industry had been redeemed. As to NRA, Senator Robinson read from various news items, to show a general improvement in business.

"Altogether," he continued, "we seem to be getting along pretty well, and the reason we are getting along pretty well is because the President of the United States and the Congress of the United States had the courage and capacity to conceive and carry out a definite recovery program. The Congress which adjourned last Monday has performed a service to the people of this country unmatched in our history. I am proud to have been a member of that body, despite the jibe of our political adversaries that we were a 'rubber stamp' Congress. We were anything but that. It is the constitutional duty of the President to suggest legislation. It is the constitutional duty of Congress to act on such recommendations. Every measure we enacted was debated at length. Many of the President's proposals were modified and amended. Sometimes we found members of our own side of the Senate in opposition to details of the President's presentations. Many times a large proportion of the Republicans in the Senate voted with us."

New Deal Called Fact.

Representative Byrns said that as a result of the work of the last Congress the New Deal was no longer a theory but a fact.

"Our forefathers recognized, when they drafted the Constitution and adopted the Bill of Rights, that changing conditions of life must be met and solved by each new generation," Byrns said. "They were not afraid to adopt ne wtheories and policies far more revolutionary in their day than anything we have before us now, and I am proud that this Administration and this congress has the same sort of courage as that with which they were endowed."

He said that of course the New Deal is going to cost a lot of money.

"But thank heaven," he added, "we can provide it."

Many of the new agencies, he said, were self-liquidating, including RFC and the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and liquor revenues have been added to help provide relief funds and other emergency costs.

Pointing out that National income had dropped to half during the depression, Byrns added:

"If we can restore that normal annual income, which we can and are doing, there will be no hardship imposed in paying slightly higher taxes which may become necessary through expenditure of money for reemployment and relief of distress."

New Orleans Pays Tribute to Wedell

Famous Flier to Be Buried in Texas by Mother.

New Orleans, June 25 (AP).—James R. (Jimmy) Wedell, noted speed flier, came back in a hearse today to a sorrowing New Orleans, the city to which he so often sped at nearly 5 miles per minute.

The little town of Patterson, where he was killed yesterday when his plane crashed while he was instructing a student flier, closed up tight and its citizens silently lined the streets as the flier's body started on its final trip.

The casket will lie in State until the body is placed aboard a train for West Columbia, Tex., where Wedell will be buried beside his mother.

Relief Director Of Nevada Named

Frank Upham, Jr., Reno, Assigned Post.

Appointment of Frank Upham, jr., of Reno, Nev., present assistant deputy administrator of NRA steel codes, as relief administrator of Nevada, was announced yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator.

Upham will replace Cecil W. Creel, who resigned to resume direction of the agricultural extension division of the University of Nevada.

Upham was born in Washington, and lived several years in Arlington County. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia. He has engaged in engineering work and is an authority on design of aviation fields.

U. S. May Buy Nearby Potato Crop Surplus

North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia Growers Would Benefit.

Purchase of substantial amounts of Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina potatoes as "surplus commodities" by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation was being considered yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

A large delegation of potato growers from the three States visited National relief headquarters yesterday with the suggestion their crop be bought for relief purposes. They were accompanied by Senator Byrd and Gov. Peery of Virginia, and Senator Tydings, of Maryland.

The growers told relief officials they would have from 5,000 to 8,000 cars of potatoes to market. They said they were receiving $1 per barrel for tubers it cost $2 to raise, and asked the crop be designated "surplus."

Hopkins notified the Department of Agriculture of the growers' proposition, and requested the AAA to make an examination as to whether the crop could be classed as surplus. The report is expected to reach Hopkins today, and on it he will base his decision as to purchases.

The Relief Administration, it was stated, already is buying potatoes in North Carolina. Hopkins said that if the crop is purchased, it did not indicate possibility of his corporation buying other crops as permanent policy.

Order by Pope for Film Drive in U. S. Is Denied

Vatican City, June 25 (AP).—Pope Pius views with sympathetic understanding agitation against immoral motion pictures by American bishops, but the Pontiff has not issued any order for creation of leagues of decency to combat such undesirable pictures, a Vatican official said today.

Commenting o a report that the Pope had ordered establishment of the so-called leagues, the official said such a step would be entirely unnecessary because the whole ecclesiastical structure of the church seeks to combat all immorality.

Sullivan Criticizes Roosevelt Program At Rotary Meeting

Detroit, June 25 (AP).—With world peace and recovery from the depression already established as major themes, Rotarians from 70 countries today heard their president declare that Rotary international, "a realm without frontiers," can not countenance "discrimination within its borders because of race or creed."

Those of the 10,000 delegates who could find place in the convention auditorium heard addresses by Mark Sullivan, Washington newspaperman, and President John Nelson, of Montreal.

A resolution proposed by Spanish Rotarians suggests creation of an international prize for peace propaganda. Another would set aside a special week for emphasizing the fact that "Rotary is definitely and emphatically opposed to war."

Sullivan, criticizing the Administration's plan, said "we are asked to surrender individual liberty for something which those who propose the change describe as economic security."

Norma Millen Relates Terror Of Bandit Bride

Faces Grilling Today.

She completed her direct testimony late today under George A. Douglas, her counsel. Tomorrow morning she will be cross-examined by District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing, who said he would question her for about two hours, the case probably going to the jury tomorrow.

Strain of her three hours on the witness stand told on her just before adjournment. She asked for a recess and collapsed outside the courtroom in hysterical weeping. She later returned to tell of veiled threats her husband made when she wanted to return to her father.

"You start home," she quoted Murt, "you won't get there and we'll start in another direction."

"I had seen Irving with a gun once before," she said, "and I knew Murt had one. I thought they might kill me."

"Were you frightened of Irving?" Douglas asked.

"Yes, I was. I had only $2 and I could not get away anyhow."

Tells of Washington Visit.

"Were you afraid of Irving in Washington?"

"Yes, I was afraid he might kill me."

"Was there one time in Washington that you did pack up your bags to go away?"

"Yes, that was the night I spent in the hotel alone."

"Why didn't you go?"

"I didn't have the nerve."

Norma began by telling how she met Murton at her first dance. Later her father forbade her to attend another dance with Murton.

"Then what happened?" Douglas asked.

"Then dad and I had an argument and the next day Murt was supposed to come and take me to see mother at Tewksbury. I told her I wanted to come and stay with her."

Her mother, she said, told her to go back to her father, but Murton told her he would find a job for her. He lent her $25 and got her an apartment. She searched for work for six weeks, she said, and was unable to find it. Then Murton asked her to marry him. She went to her mother for advice.

Advised to Marry.

"What did your mother say?"

"She said it was the best thing for me to do, since I had borrowed money from him and could not get work to pay it back."

Murton treated her "nice" for about two months of their honeymoon and then became sullen.

"I became afraid of him," she said. "Once he dragged me into the bathroom."

"How did he drag you?"

"He grabbed me by the hair."

She denied she was in the New York hotel room when Murton told Saul Messinger, his schoolday chum, that he was "hot for the Needham job" and had killed two policemen.

A notation in Norma's handwriting, which the State argued represented a division of the Needham loot, with Norma sharing in it to the extent of $2,000, was dictated to her by her husband, she testified. She said she did not know what "two grand" meant and denied Murt had ever given her money or banked it for her.

Ranson Rites Held at Home Near Staunton

Funeral service for Thomas D. Ranson, 40, formerly in the consular service in Switzerland and research worker in the Congressional Library, who died recently at Staunton, Va., were held yesterday from West Hill, the Harrison estate near that city, where he had been ill for a week.

The Rev. J. Lewis Gibb, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, of which Ranson was a member, conducted the rites, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John J. Gravatt, of Trinity Church. Burial was in Thornrose Cemetery.

Mr. Ranson, a son of the late Capt. Thomas D. Ranson and Janette Ravenscroft Harrison, was born at Oakenwold, near Staunton. Attending Staunton schools, he was graduated from Washington and Lee University and the Pultizer School of Journalism in New York City. He had held positions on metropolitan newspapers.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Jay G. Cronise, of Staunton; a brother, Capt. Henry Harrison Ranson, Norfolk; his stepmother, Mrs. Thomas D. Ransom, of Richmond; a half-brother, Edward Ranson, also of Richmond, and the following half-sisters: Mrs. Herbert J. Taylor, Mrs. Joseph A. Glasgow, Mrs. Alfred Jaffe, Mrs. Hierome L. Opie, all of Staunton, and an uncle, Beverley Harrison, of Fredericksburg, Va.

Town Hires Jobless Barber.

Sandusky, Ohio (U.P.).—Nikola Gateff, his wife, Dorothy, and their four small children are going back to Dernovecz, an obscure town in Bulgaria. Gateff, a barber, unemployed for three years, has the signed word of 800 villagers in Dernovecz, his former home, that they will give him a bushel of wheat each, twice a year, in exchange for tonsorial service.

Wooden Sewer Unearthed.

Michigan City, Ind. (U.P.).—Remains of a square wooden sewer, installed in 1836, and believed to be the first of its kind ever used in northern Indiana, were uncovered here recently. The sewer installation, recalled by Martin Krueger, veteran legislator, was a notable event. Ceremonies accompanied its laying. The drain was placed about six feet below the surface of the ground.

Capt. Wheeler, Engineer, Dies At Baltimore

Veteran of Coast Guard Had 20 Years of Sea Service.

Capt. Charles A. Wheeler, 66, Engineer Corps, U. S. Coast Guard, retired, died yesterday at Marine Hospital, Baltimore, Md., after a long illness. He had served in the Coast Guard for 37 years, during which he spent 20 at sea.

Born at Patterson, Va., Capt. Wheeler was appointed an ensign in the Engineer Corps of the Coast Guard in 1895. During the Spanish-American War he was attached to the Coast Guard cutter McClane operating off Cuba and in the World War he served on board the Coast Guard cutter Tuscarora on patrol duty in the North Atlantic, later being transferred to the office of the commandant of the Second Naval District.

Serving at various stations of the Coast Guard, among them three years in Alaskan waters, he was promoted to lieutenant in 1908 and to lieutenant commander in 1923. His last station was at Curtis Bay, Md., where he was engineer officer of the Coast Guard depot.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rebecca F. Wheeler. Interment will be at Arlington National Cemetery.

Turkey Gains Under Kemal

Once Europe's 'Sick Man,' Nation Now Guides Peace Maneuvers.

Istanbul (U.P.).—The "Sick Man of Europe" has practically cured himself.

The term, formerly used in referring to Turkey, no longer applies. That once turbulent disturber of Balkan politics now has become a factor for peace.

Mustapha Kemal, President of the 10-year-old Turkish republic, mainly is responsible. His untiring efforts to Westernize his country have met with consistent success, and given Turkey international prestige.

Three Foreign Policies.

Turkish foreign policy, as directed by Mustapha Kemal and Tewfik Rushdi Bey, foreign minister, since the inception of the republic, has followed along three lines.

They are represented by Turkish friendship with Russia, her friendship with other nations and finally protection against the war threats of Western Europe by the building up of a pacified Balkan alliance.

It is the last of these policies which has been responsible for the four-power Balkan pact, which includes Turkey, Greece, Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Fearing that Turkey might be drawn into the disputes which currently affect western Europe, the Turkish President and the rulers of the three other nations decided to build a strong, protective wall around the Balkans.

Antirevisionist.

Holding that treaty revision is the cause of most European disputes, Turkey firmly has declared herself as an antirevisionist. It is this attitude which has kept Bulgaria out of the pact. Her internal political situation, in the opinion of Turkish observers, would not allow of such a complete about face all at once.

The Turkish policy has been to encourage in every way possible the extension of Russian recognition in Europe. Turkey never has found that Soviet Russia troubled Turkish internal politics, and the benefits of close cooperation have been mutual and considerable.

For this reason Turkey is undoubtedly associating herself with the movement to recognize Russia, which is now going forward in Yugoslavia and other members of the Little Entente.

Texas Man, 109, Lived There Before Statehood

Wichita Falls, Tex. (U.P.).—When Jose M. Pena died here May 22, Texas lost possibly its only citizen who was older than the State itself.

Pena's exact age was not known, but it was over 109 years. Born in Mexico, he came here while Texas was a part of Mexico and before it became a republic.

Einstein Will Summer At Watch Hill Resort

Watch Hill, R. I. (U.P.).—Among the celebrities summering at this resort overlooking Long Island Sound is Prof. Albert Einstein, exiled German scientist, who at his leisure is delving further into the mysteries of the universe—and fiddling.

The visitor, who Dr. Einstein would rather not see, may find the noted physicist in his cottage, The Studio, playing his beloved fiddle in his shirt sleeves. Dr. Einstein plans to buy a sailboat, in which event he may be a spectator at one of America's cup races. The professor will return to Princeton, N. J., in October.

Markham's Birthplace Attracts Sightseers

Oregon City, Oreg. (U.P.).—Seekers of literary shrines frequently visit the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Donagan, near here, birthplace of Edwin Markham, author of the "Man With the Hoe." The farm, located on the Abiqua River, was homesteaded by Samuel and Elizabetr Markham, parents of the poet. Edwin was born there April 23, 1852.

Samuel Markham operated a store in Oregon City for a time. His wife started one of the first nurseries in Oregon, planting apple seeds brought across the plains from Michigan. None of the original buildings on the Markham homestead remain.

Metal Boom Town Has Labor Famine

Prospecting Absorbs All Cameron Bay Men.

Edmonton, Alta. (U.P.).—Cameron Bay, tiny settlement on the eastern shore of Great Bear Lake, probably is the only town in Canada that can boast it has no unemployment problem. In fact, it has a decided scarcity of workers.

The great rush which has followed discovery of rich silver and radium-bearing pitchblende deposits explains the demand for labor. The entire district's population is engaged in radium-hunting, according to Ernest Rivers, Toronto mining engineer.

Rivers, unable to hire anyone to work his own claims, said that until the navigation season opens in July, there will be a large shortage of men. University students and a new influx of treasure-seekers may solve the employment problem then.

Lancaster County History To Be Recalled Wednesday

Lancaster, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The first "Lancaster County Historical Day" will be observed here Wednesday in a celebration arranged by the Lancaster County Women's Club. Exercises will begin at 11 a. m. Gov. Peery and historical authorities are expected to attend.

Senator R. O. Norris on behalf of Adams Post Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, will present a roster of Revolutionary War soldiers, members of the Colonial Militia of 1687, and Lancaster soldiers in the War of 1812 and Mexican Wars. Hill Fleet will receive the roster on behalf of the county. Chief speaker will be Stringfellow Barr.

The celebration was arrangned to renew interest in the project of preserving valuable county records. Judge Embrey, of Fredericksburg, Va., recently stated records are "being eaten by book worms just as rats eat corn in a crib."

Lancaster, one of the oldest counties in Virginia was founded in 1652. Here lived Mary Ball, mother of Washington; Ann Hill Carter, mother of Gen. Robert E. Lee; Capt. David Fox, John Chilton, Hugh Brent and King Carter of Currotman. The Colonial clerk's office here is several centuries old.

Members of the Woman's Club in charge of the ceremonies are Mrs. C. T. Pierce, chairman; Mrs. R. Hill Fleet, president of the club; Mrs. J. Emory Currell, vice president; Miss Garland Stoneham and Miss Carrie Norris, secretaries, and Miss Frances Treakle, treasurer.

Island Ford Boy Scout Camp To Start Season Wednesday

Staunton, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—J. W. Fix, of this city, Scout executive of Stonewall Jackson Council, Boy Scouts of America, announces that the council camp at Island Ford, on the Shenandoah River in Rockingham County, will open its six periods of one week each on Wednesday.

Maurice M. Collins, of Churchville, will again be camp director, and the staff will include Roderick E. Harris, of Alabama, who has just completed a Red Cross course at Brevard, N. C., in life saving, swimming and boating, and for two years a member of the swimming team at Washington and Lee University; Hollen Helbert, Harrisonburg, business manager; James Barker, of Bristol, in charge of handicraft; Philip Shultz, Staunton, instructor in nature study; Julian Beckwith, Petersburg, camp physician.

Eagle Scouts will be tent-house counselors as follows: Curtis Hannum, Palmyra; Emory Lewis, Lexington; Billy Goode, Clifton Forge; Robert Owens, Covington; George Brooke, Lexington; David Bennett, Chambersburg, Pa., the latter giving a special course in rowing. George Brooke will also be in charge of the "trailers"—boys from 10 to 12 years.

Last year Camp Shenandoah was awarded the Red Cross banner for water proficiency. Waterfront program and layout of the camp were the main factors on the award.

Religious services will be held each Sunday, which is also visiting day; with vesper services each evening in the tents just before taps.

Bride-to-Be Decides Not to Be

Norfolk, Va., June 25 (AP).—Leslie Avery Shaw, of Lynchburg and Charlotte, N. C., was on time for his wedding in fashionable Park View Methodist Church, Portsmouth, but he was just two hours and a half too late to hear Miss Elizabeth Thomas say "I do," as she wed another.

Debutante daughter of a prominent Portsmouth family, she was missing when guests arrived Saturday for the ceremony. They were told by ushers that the wedding had been postponed. Today Miss Thomas, now Mrs. Vernon Carlyle Shaner, said she and Mr. Shaner had been married in South Mills, N. C., just across the State line, at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

Like Shaw, Shaner is a native of Lynchburg. He is employed as a chemist with the Du Pont Rayon Co. at its Ampthill plant, and he and his bride are to make their home in Richmond.

Confirmation of the elopement came in the form of a formal announcement from the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas.

"Announcement is made," they informed their friends, "of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James William Thomas, of Portsmouth, to Vernon Carlyle Shaner, of Lynchburg, which took place Saturday at 2:30 p. m. The couple will reside in Richmond."

Nice Manager Claims Victory In G. O. P. Race

Levin Declares Candidate for Governor. Has 118 of 149 Votes

Of the 149 votes in the nominating convention, 118 are claimed for Mr. Nice, leaving only 31 to be divided between H. Webster Smith, Harry T. Phoebus, Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, and any others who enter the gubernatorial race.

The claim to virtual possession of 118 votes was made by State Senator Harry O. Levin, campaign manager for Mr. Nice. Mr. Levin, in a statement issued today, said:

"Mr. Nice is assured of at least 118 votes in the convention, 43 more than are needed to nominate. Mr. Nice's campaign began in December, 1932, at a meeting in the Fourth legislative district. It has now reached a point where stock taking is in order.

"An overwhelming majority of the 42 city ward committeemen are backing Mr. Nice, and 38 of them have publicly indorsed his candidacy. Only one of the committeemen is opposed to Mr. Nice. The other three remain noncommittal. With the 76 county votes already behind him, Mr. Nice is thus assured of 118 votes in the State convention."

Despite rumors that H. Webster Smith would withdraw from the race, Republican leaders said undoubtedly h ewill remain a contender. He filed his candidacy papers Saturday with the Secretary of State at Annapolis, in a move to combat the withdrawal reports.

Marines, Sailors Get World Fair Detail

One hundred thirty Marines from the Fleet Marine Force at Quantico, Va., will go to the Chicago World's Fair, it was announced yesterday at the Navy Department. The detachment, which includes a band, will be commanded by Capt. Frederick Stack, U. S. M. C.

In addition, 100 bluejackets from the Battle Force under Lieut. Charles L. Hutton, U. S. N., U. S. S. California, will go to the exposition. The two parties will remai nat the exposition from July 1 to November 1.

State Prohibitionists Will Meet at Richmond

Norfolk, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—State prohibitionists, including a number from oNrfolk, will attend an all-day convention at Richmond Saturday, it was announced here today by A. J. Dunning, jr., chairman of the party in the Second District.

They will hear addresses, appoint provisional county chairmen and select Congressional, legislative and county tickets.

Czechs Cling To Democracy; Smash Nazis

Two Groups Campaigning for Dictatorship Lose Out.

Prague (U.P.).—Democracy has not been challenged seriously in this country.

Abolition of democratic standards in most of the neighboring countries has as yet not induced large and important Czech political parties and groups to follow suit. The only effect of these changes is a tendency toward revising the Czech democratic system of parliament and government in order to make it more elastic and efficient.

The Czech government, too, has proved its determination to maintain democracy. Thus, in the fall of 1933, it dissolved the German National-Socialist Workers' party, the counterpart of the Hitler party in Germany, which recruited its followers from the German minorities in Czechoslovakia. Party members were dismissed from state offices and their seats in state, district and municipal parliaments canceled.

At present, Czech fascism is divided into two groups. The group of former Gen. Radola Gajda—who, during the World War, as member of the Czech Legion in Siberia, rose from the rank of noncommissioned officer to that of general and after the war was made chief of staff of the Czech army—and the National League of Deputy Stribny.

These two groups are the only political units in Czechoslovakia advocating an authoritative regime as against a democratic form of government. At present, their chances of expansion appear small. All other political parties and groups in Czechoslovakia are striving for a reform of the democratic regime.

Vocational Students Learn to Use Phone

Fond Du Lac, Wis. (U.P.).—Classes in "How to Use the Telephone" are planned at the vocational school here with the invention of an amplifying set to be used for the course. The equipment was perfected by O. J. Dorr, director of the school, after two years of study. It consists of a loudspeaker unit and an induction coil and is not connected with the telephone system.

Dorr believes that sales clerks, housewives and businessmen need training in developing "voice personality" and the correct use of the telephone.

4 Dead, 2 Injured In Maryland Crash

Stolen Car Leaves Road, Hitting Poles, Stump.

Four colored persons were killed and two others injured yesterday morning when the car in which they were riding failed to make a curve on the Seventh street pike in Montgomery County swerved from the road and crashed into two poles and a tree stump. All were residents of Mount Zion, Md.

Charles Webster, Curtis Brent, James Booze and Carrie Johnson were killed. Curby Brent suffered a fractured skull and Ruth Gaither a broken leg. The injured were taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring.

Police were informed that the car was the property of L. B. Sabine, of Gaithersburg, and had been stolen. After Ruth Gaither told them Curby Brent was driving the machine they charged him with larceny and placed him under guard in the hospital.

Gas Price Cutting In Crisfield Ends

"War" Reduces Charge to 15 Cents a Gallon.

Crisfield, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—A truce was declared among more than half a dozen operators of retail gasoline filling stations here today after four days of price cutting.

During this period gasoline was sold as low as 15 cents a gallon including a 5-cent State and Government tax. All the filling stations agreed to return to the regular price, 15 nine-tenths cents per gallon excluding the tax, today.

The feud started after an operator of a station put the price down to 18 cents. Others in turn lowered theirs until one put out a sign offering gasoline for 15 cents, 1½ cents less than cost.

Bethesda Man Among 5 Hurt in Bus Mishap

Frederick, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—Five persons, passengers in a large bus which ran into a ditch on the Gettysburg road, six miles north of here, were treated at the City Hospital last night for lacerations and bruises. The bus, occupied by officials of the Home Loan Corporation, was en route here when a tire blew out and the vehicle went into the ditch. One of the injured was William Penniman, of Bethesda, Md., who suffered torn ligaments in his leg.

Jackson's Ocean City Supporters Organize

Ocean City, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—The Jackson League for Governor was formed here yesterday afternoon at the Roosevelt Hotel at a meeting attended by Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore.

Edgar W. Porter, of Salisbury, was elected temporary president and Horace Davis Berlin, secretary. The league will meet again next Sunday and elect permanent officers, including vice presidents from each county. Ocean City will be the headquarters for the Eastern Shore.

Movie Boycott Gets Support In Maryland

Baltimore, June 25 (Spl.).—Protestant clergymen throughout Maryland are joining with leading officials of the Catholic Church in the war on indecent and salacious moving pictures.

From numerous pulpits throughout the State, pastors told their congregations yesterday to boycott objectionable pictures. Although there is no concerted drive against such movies as yet, the Baltimore Federation of Churches may join in the campaign.

The Right Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Maryland, today stated that although he is not contemplating any official drive against indecent films, he has gone on record as opposing objectionable pictures.

Other Pastors Act.

Numerous other Baltimore pastors called upon their congregations yesterday to support the drive.

One of these was the Rev. Thomas Guthrie Speers, pastor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church. Another was the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Browning, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension and the Prince of Peace, who said he hoped all Protestant congregations would join in the war on indecent pictures.

Hays' Group Attacked.

Dr. Beach's bulletin said: "It seems to me that Will Hays' organization, rather than having any power to do anything about the character of moving pictures, is acting as apologists for the type now being shown."

Catholics throughout the Baltimore archdiocese are supporting the stand of their priests. Committees have been organized in virtually every parochial school in the State, and the children have been asked to sign pledges that they will stay away from films which are named as objectionable.

They also are asked to request their parents to join in the boycott. Archbishop Michael J. Curley is one of the leaders in the drive.

Staples Plans Office Saving

Will Employ Five Aids Instead of Eight Allowed Him.

Richmond, Va., June 25 (AP).—When the 1934 law boosting the work of the attorney general's office becomes effective next Monday, Attorney General A. P. Staples will start off with five assistants, with salaries totaling $20,000 a year, instead of eight assistants, with salaries totaling $32,000 annually allowed by the new law.

"We are going to start with this personnel and see how it works," said the attorney general. "If the work is more than we can handle, then, of course, the number will be increased."

The new law provides that the legal work heretofore done by special counsel employed by the various departments and agencies of the government shall be cleared through the office of the attorney general.

Two assistants to the attorney general previously were allowed. He now is allowed two at salaries of $5,000 each, four at salaries of $4,000 each and two at salaries of $3,000 each.

Mr. Staples said he will have only one $5,000 assistant, Maj. Edwin Gibson; three assistants at $4,000 and one assistant at $3,000.

Virginia Auto Men Back Retail Code

Dealers Agree to Punish Violators in Court.

Richmond, June 25 (Spl.).—Declaring the NRA code for retail automotive trade is absolutely essential to the preservation of business, the executive committee of the Virginia Automotive Trade Association, meeting here yesterday, formulated plans for rigid enforcement of the provisions of the agreement, which went into effect last December and announced its intention of prosecuting violations either in Federal or State courts.

A substantial appropriation for enforcement was provided through assessments on each car handled by a dealer and the machinery for securing compliance was placed in the hands of three attorneys, already serving as deputy commissioners of the State code. They are Vivian L. Page, Norfolk; Walter M. Evans, Richmond, and Walter H. Scott, Roanoke.

All automobile manufacturers have notified the commissioner for Virginia, Charles G. McKinnie, Richmond, that they will cooperate in enforcing the code.

Girl, 13, Badly Hurt In Fall From Tree

Harrisonburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Dallie Earman, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Earman, residing 3 miles north of here, is in Rockingham Memorial Hospital in a serious condition from injuries received when she fell 25 feet from a cherry tree.

The accident occurred just an hour after her cousin, Kathleen Earman, 7, who was visiting her, was run over by a hay wagon. Kathleen was riding to the field in the wagon when she fell beneath one wheel, which passed over her body. After an examination at the hospital she returned to her home.

Municipalities Session Slated For July 6 and 7

Charlottesville Meeting a Part of Planning Conference.

Charlottesville, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Representatives of every city, town and county governing body in Virginia are being urged to attend the conference of the League of Virginia Municipalities at the University of Virginia, July 6 and 7.

The conference of local government officials is to form part of the program of the Institute of Public Affairs. Officials of the institute are cooperating with Martin L. Wallerstein, of Richmond, executive secretary of the league, in planning the meeting.

Charlottesville will give a dinner for the visitors at the Monticello Hotel, July 6, when Harold S. Buttenheim, New York civic worker, is scheduled to talk on the "Relationships Between Municipal and Federal Government."

Promotes Civic Efficiency.

Mr. Buttenheim is organizer and president of the American City Bureau, an organization devoted to the promotion of efficiency in civic and commercial bodies; editor and contributor to several civic publications, and member of the executive committee of the National Municipal League. He also is director of the Planning Foundation of America.

On July 7 the delegates will hear talks on housing and relief problems.

Charles Ascher, of Chicago, member of the National Association of Housing Officials, has been invited to talk and William A. Smith, of Richmond, is to discuss relief problems.

Two other State conferences also are to be in session in connection with the Institute program.

Women Also to Meet.

The conference on State planning is set for July 3 and 4, and the conference of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be in session July 6 and 7.

Charles W. Elliott II, of Washington, executive officer of the National Planning Board, and Col. LeRoy Hodges, of Richmond, director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce and member of the executive committee of the Virginia State Planning Board, are to explain the objectives of State planning.

The "Relationship of Local and State Planning" will be told by Charles J. Calrow, of Norfolk, associate cousultant of the State Planning Board.

Mrs. Hampton Fleming, of Richmond, chairman of club institutes, is arranging the program for the Federation of Women's Clubs' conference.

Painters Strike In W. Va. Settled

Charleston, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Settlement of a State strike of painters and paperhangers was announced here today by representatives of union men and employers, who said a conference would be held Wednesday in Wheeling on collective bargaining accorded under the NRA code.

W. E. Kirk, representative of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, and R. L. Rive, representing the Master Painters' Association, said committees have agreed on a State wage scale and would recommend it for the conference.

Kirk said representatives of the Associated General Contractors would attend the Wheeling conference to look after interests of contractors in the wage decisions.

Colonial Beach Men Elect James Jordan

Colonial Beach, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—James L. Jordan has been elected chairman of the Colonial Beach Business Men's Association.

Weekly broadcasting over a Washington radio station will be the first move made to advertise the Beach. A committee of three was selected to solicit funds to finance the venture.

Ridiculed for its sausage shape for decades, despised in the turbulent sentiment of war years, this elongated dog of old Germany has become one of the most fashionable breeds in the country.

Mrs. Edith M. Groves, one of the foremost breeders of the dachshund in the East, at her kennels near here, explained this popularity on the modern's new conception of smart lines and on the increased knowledge among dog lovers of the breed's exceptional hardiness and courage.

Daughter of the well-known Red Cross worker, Mrs. Charles S. Wilson, of Washington, and wife of Lieut. John Groves, who played quarter back on the undefeated Marine football team of 1924, Mrs. Groves claims no German prejudices, but admires the "mascot of the Fatherland" above all other kinds of dogs.

"Dachshunds are more daring than any dog of their size that I know," Mrs. Groves points out, describing their courage in entering the long, narrow holes of their traditional quarry, the badger and fox.

"'Part hound and part terrier,' she said, "they were specially bred to their curious shape by German sportsmen centuries ago. During recent war days, however, the breed was almost extinct, even in Germany. Dog history shows that it was only the efforts of a Westphalian count, who gathered some of the finest 'dach' specimens and bred them, that preserved this breed during the chaos of the war."

At the 1920 Westminster Kennel Club Show of New York, the largest dog show in the United States, not a half-dozen dachshunds were benched; this February nearly 80 were shown. In the first specialty show for the dachshund, held recently at the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York, 205 dogs were entered.

Needy Given Right to Vote

West Virginia's Attorney General Rules Pauper Ban Inapplicable.

Charleston, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.), Attorney General Homer A. Holt ruled today that men and women receiving Federal relief may vote in the coming elections despite a constitutional provision that "no person who is a pauper shall be permitted to vote."

Declaring that relief arising from the depression differs greatly from that formerly followed and particularly when the constitution was adopted, Holt reaffirmed an opinion by Howard B. Lee, former attorney general, that "the provisions which prohibit paupers from voting should not be invoked under the stress of the depression through which we are passing."

Holt also ruled that CCC workers may vote, but that they must be registered and cast their ballots in their home precincts.

Work Planned In Shenandoah National Park

Blister Rust Eradication to Be Continued With CCC Labor.

Luray, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Recommendations for improvement and promotion of forestry work in the Shenandoah National Park were made by Frederick H. Arnold, assistant forester National Park Service, who left Washington last night, following a week of conferences with supervisors in the national park.

The first objective, he said, is eradication of blister rust, on which work has been progressing since May, following a period of inactivity during the winter.

The work is being carried on by CCC labor, directed by trained foresters, and includes all territory within the Kelsey line, known as the Shenandoah National Park.

State Foresters at Work.

Coincident with the work of eradication within the park, work is being carried on on the same scale outside the Kelsey line by State foresters under the direction of William Early and the State Forestry Service. These two groups are cooperating with each other.

While here Mr. Arnold conferred with superintendents of the five CCC camps within the park area, and National park engineers. Those present were J. R. Lassiter, head of the National Park Service; E. H. Francis and Carl Ingland, foresters; Roland Rogers, landscape architect; E. K. Knox, landscape architect; P. S. Flournoy, State chamber of commerce, and the following camp superintendents: David Coffman, Luray; E. M. Noyes, Washington; C. V. Burke, Elkton; James Meigs, Harmony Hollow, and C. C. Hagenbuch, Grottoes.

Plants to Be Pulled.

According to the plan, all wild and cultivated gooseberries and currants within 900 feet of the white pine stand will be pulled. The blister rust disease does not pass from pine to pine, but passes from pine to these bushes, then back to pines again.

The work in the Shenandoah National Park and George Washington National Forest differs from that outside the Government areas in that State authorities will have to condemn gooseberries where cultivated if consent of owners can not be obtained to destroy them.

Mr. Arnold spent the week inspecting work in the park, visiting the five widely scattered camps.

Rockingham Plans Grange Chapter

Harrisonburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—A Rockingham County grange will be organized at Hinton July 9 as the climax of the organization campaign under way in the county for several months. Local granges have been formed at Hinton, Pleasant Valley, Cootes Store and Bergton.

R. H. Baker, of Middletown, National grange deputy, will be in charge. The Shenandoah County Pomona Grange team will assist.

This year marks the inauguration of grange organizations in Rockingham, which has the largest Farm Bureau in Virginia, and formerly had several chapters of the Farmers Union.

Virginia Land May Be Opened To Cattle From Drought Areas

Pastures Are Checked in Shenandoah and Rockingham.

New Market, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Preliminary surveys of surplus pasture lands in Shenandoah and Rockingham Counties are being made by County Agents G. G. Dickinson and S. M. Cox in anticipation of the possible shipment of livestock from drought-stricken areas of the Middle West to this section for grazing this summer.

Although the VERA has made no committment as to whether Western cattle will be brought to the Shenandoah Valley, it is pointed out that all available surplus pasturage which could be utilized in an emergency to assist owners of starving livestock in the drought areas, should be checked.

It is further pointed out every precaution will be taken by the VERA to prevent the spread of infectious animal diseases if the project is carried out, and to this end the FERA is in close cooperation with the Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

While the county agents have given no estimates of grazing acres available, indications are that both Shenandoah and Rockingham farmers will utilize practically all such acreage for their own livestock this summer.

Norfolk Opens Week's Fete to Navy Visitors

Campbell to Return Call of Governor; Curfew Put on Beer Sale.

Norfolk, Va., June 25 (AP).—Vice Admiral Edward H. Campbell, commanding the scouting force of the Navy, will go to Richmond tomorrow to pay an official call on Gov. George C. Peery. The call is a return of the official visit of welcome Gov. Peery made Admiral Campbell aboard his flagship, the cruiser Indianapolis, at the Norfolk Navy Yard Saturday afternoon.

Norfolk's home-coming celebration in honor of the return of the fleet to Hampton Roads after an absence of more than two years continued today as the city inaugurated a week of entertainment for the 14,000 visitors.

Are Mutual Hosts.

The city was host to the Navy and the Navy was host to the city yesterday, as thousands of officers and enlisted men swarmed ashore and thousands of visitors thronged naval base piers and cruisers in stream.

The city's entertainment program today is featured by a luncheon in honor of Vice Admiral Campbell, Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, commanding the aircraft squadron of the United States fleet; members of their staffs and officers of the rank of captain.

Meanwhile the Navy has its own ideas about how late at night sailors ashore in Norfolk should drink beer and wine without meals, and tentatively fixed 1 a. m. as the hour while the scouting fleet is in port.

Dispensers Notified.

After observing the situation in the city Saturday night when thousands of the sailors were ashore, officers in command of the shore patrol, apparently acting under instructions from their superiors, began giving personal notice to the proprietors of beer and wine parlors not to sell to sailors after 1 a. m.

There was no authority to enforce the action but the alternative threatened was to place a sailor of the patrol at the entrance of each establishment to keep the men in uniform out. All beer and wine parlors agreed to the plan, most of them closing as soon as the situa-

Episcopalians Open Session

Blue Mountain Conference Draws 300 Delegates to Chambersburg.

Chambersburg, Pa., June 25 (Spl.).—Opening today and continuing until July 6, the Blue Mountain Conference of the Episcopal Church, which had been held for the last eight years at Hood College, Frederick, is being held at Penn Hall here.

The conference embraces the Episcopal Churches in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, southern and southwestern Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

About 300 delegates are attending the conference. Today's program included enrollment of classes at 2 p. m., tea at 4 p. m. on the campus, quiet hour from 6 to 6:45, dinner at 7 and opening conference session at 8 p. m.

The program will begin daily with Holy Communion at 7 a. m.; breakfast, at 7:45; chaplain's hour, conducted by the Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., at 9:10; first class period, 9:45 to 10:35 a. m.; 15-minute recess; work hour from 10:50 to 11:40 a. m., followed by hymn singing; last class period from 12:10 to 1 p. m. After lunch there will be silent and recreation periods until 5 p. m., when a question hour will be held. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m., after which there will be a sunset service at 7:30, while the evening services will be at 8 p. m. and a period of prayer will be held at 9:30.

Nominations Made For Loudoun Post

Legion Election to Take Place Next Month.

Leesburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Nominations or post officers have been made by a committee of Loudoun Post, No. 34, American Legion.

The nominations, to be voted on at the July meeting, are: Commander, J. Stuart Smith and J. T. Hirst; first vice commander, Bernard Spring and Frank Elmore; second vice commander, Reed Mays and Arthur Jenkins; post adjutant, C. P. Conrad.

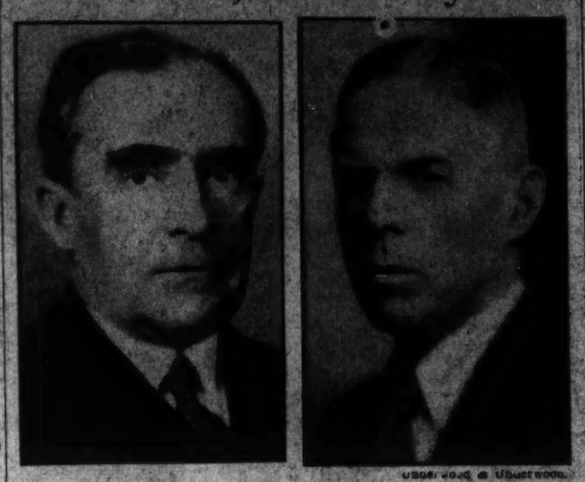
Commander James di Zerega announces enrollments of unemployed veterans for admittance to CCC camps would start July 1 and continue for a month. Applications should be made direct to the Richmond regional office. The applicant must be a veteran of a war, in good physical condition, able to perform an ordinary day's work, and show a willingness to learn the work with others.

Milford Branch Bank Will Be Closed July 1

Milford, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The branch of the Union Bank & Trust Co. of Bowling Green, located here, will be closed July 1 and thereafter to comply with the new State banking laws.

F. H. Borke, who has been managing the Milford branch, will return to the parent bank. The branch, which used to be the Milford State Bank, was taken over in August, 1929.

Grayson Urged to Act as Head Of W. & M., Followed by Dodd



USOC, Dodd & Underwood.

The United States Ambassador to Germany, Dr. William Edward Dodd (right) is being urged strongly by many alumni for the presidency of the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., to succeed the late Dr. J. A. C. Chandler; meanwhile the same group is advocating that Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, of Washington, be asked to serve as president pro tem.

Ambassador Is Favored by Alumni to Fill Post Permanently.

Williamsburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Dr. William Edward Dodd, noted historian who now is Ambassador to Germany, is among the latest nominees for the presidency of the college of William and Mary here, it was learned today.

Others being mentioned prominently are Claude Bowers, famous newspaper editor, who is Ambassador to Spain; Francis B. Sayre, now Assistant Secretary of State, and John Dickinson, economist on the staff of the Secretary of Commerce.

A strong alumni group behind Dr. Dodd is suggesting that John Stewart Bryan, of Richmond, or Admiral Cary T. Grayson, of Washington, be asked to serve as president pro tem.

The board will meet Saturday in Williamsburg to discuss the presidential vacancy, but is not expected to take any definite action then on a successor to the late Dr. J. A. C. Chandler.

U.S. Road Fund Assures 7,500 Virginia Jobs

State Will Not Have to Dismiss Construction Crews.

Richmond, June 25 (Spl.).—Approximately 7,500 men on the construction forces of the Virginia State Highway Department, who would otherwise be laid off shortly, are assured continued employment, possibly until Christmas, through the $3,765,000 granted the State in the Federal highway appropriation bill, Henry G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, stated here today.

Virginia has now about 15,000 men on highway maintenance and construction. Of these half are in the maintenance division and the other half in the construction division.

If no Federal funds had come to Virginia, this State would have had no construction funds and the 7,500 men in this division would have been laid off.

The new appropriation is available July 1, Mr. Shirley said, and this week Virginia expects to receive from the Federal Government the regulations for the spending of this money.

"We hope to start work as soon as possible after July 1," he said. "We have three times as many projects as there is money for their approval, which means that we will have to send to Washington the one-third which the commission thinks most desirable. The commission will meet in about two weeks."

Unskilled laborers on highway projects financed through Federal funds will receive a minimum rate of pay of 30 cents per hour. The rates for skilled workers will vary.

The work week will be limited to 30 hours, and the men will work on a double shift.

Masonic Head Of Va. Speaks

Culpeper Churches Join Order in Sunday Program.

The meeting was sponsored by the local Masonic lodge and ministers. A special musical program was presented by the Culpeper Orchestra, directed by Mrs. Taylor Amiss. A quartet, composed of Mrs. W. S. Griffin, Mrs. A. W. Perrow, R. A. Forbes and Hugh Ryan, sang.

Dr. K. J. Hammond, Dr. T. W. Hooper, the Rev. M. F. Draper and the Rev. J. T. Edwards took part in the service.

The second of the series of community services planned for the summer by the Ministerial Society will be a patriotic program on July 1, in the Baptist Church. Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will speak.

Beaverdam District Will Improve Schools

Beaverdam, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—School improvement projects in the Beaverdam district of Hanover County, embracing an expenditure of approximately $9,000, will begin in the near future.

The projects include moving of Fairview School to Beaverdam High School, improvements at the Beaver Dam colored school, moving the Negrofoot Building to Montpelier, and painting and repairing work. The modern heating plant at Beaver Dam will be erected and fixtures installed later.

U. S. to Build New Postoffice In Hyattsville

Building for Experiment Farm at Beltsville Also Listed.

A new postoffice for Hyattsville and a new building for the Government Experiment Farm at Beltsville, Md., were listed on the Government building program announced yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr.

The postoffice building, however, will be only a local office and will not include the distributing station asked for in a hearing before the district public works committee last summer.

Cost of the construction of these two buildings will be paid out of an appropriation of $65,000,000 allotted for the erection of 302 public building projects in various sections of Virginia and Maryland.

The Hyattsville postoffice is now located in a rented building and is on the east side of the Baltimore boulevard, while the main part of the two is on the west side. A site on the opposite side of the boulevard is desired to prevent accidents caused by persons crossing the heavily traveled street.

Besides the two Prince Georges County buildings, the funds, allotted as a result of the emergency appropriation act passed by Congress last Monday, will go toward new postoffices in Hagerstown, Chestertown, and Easton, and the remodeling of the Cambridge office.

In Virginia the new postoffices and sites to be gained by the allocation will be located at Marion, Petersburg, Staunton, Onancock, Orange, Chatham, Blacksburg and Galax.

A newpost office will be built at Staunton on the site of the present office. The Winchester postoffice will be remodeled and additional land purchased for it. The Lexington office will also be remodeled.

New buildings will also be erected at the Norfolk Marine Hospital and the Fort Monroe Quarantine Station. A new parcel post building will be built at Richmond.

Virginia Cuts State Deficit

To Be $2,500,000 or Less on June 30; $95,000 School Cash Returns.

Richmond, June 25 (Spl.).—The end of the fiscal year will find the State treasury at least $200,000 better off than was forecast in April, J. H. Bradford, director of the budget, predicted today. It was estimated three months ago that the deficit June 30 would appproximate $2,700,000. Mr. Bradford now believes that it will be $2,500,000 or less.

One reason for the smaller deficit is the return of $95,000 of the $150,000 emergency appropriation granted the State board of education in September, 1933. An unexpected balance of $40,000 in the convict labor fund also is a large item, as is a $19,000 interest payment on the DeJarnette Sanitarium investment.

Postmasters to Meet At Elkins Next Week

Elkins, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—T. W. Stalnaker, local postmaster, announces plans have been completed for the annual convention of the West Virginia branch of the National League of Postmasters, July 2 and 3, in this city.

Representative Jennings Randolf, of the Second West Virginia District, will be the featured speaker at the annual banquet July 2. Sessions will be held at the Tygart Hotel.

Ten Research Projects Get U. Va. Approval

By Howard Turner.

Charlottesville, Va., June 25.—Dr. Wilson Gee, director of the Institute for Research in the Social Sciences of the University of Virginia, announces in his annual report ten research projects now being carried on by members of the university faculty under the supervision of the institute.

Five of these projects, dealing with political, economic, social and historical subjects, are important studies made within the State. Others include the influence newspapers played on events leading up to the World War, a report of the French political system, a psychological study, a test of economic theories, and culture in the Old South.

Results of the studies will be published in book form as soon as the manuscripts are completed. The projects are:

"Western Lands and the Revolution," by T. P. Abernethy. This study deals with the political background of Western land speculations during the Revolutionary period, and Virginia's struggle to maintain her western boundary against the speculators and other interests.

Guide to Virginia History.

"Guide to Virginia Historial Materials," L. J. Cappon, archivist and acting professor of history. This volume will include a list of newspapers on file in public and college libraries, newspaper offices and in private hands, and an inventory of State and local archives.

"An Experimental Study of Human Instincts," by Wayne Dennis, assistant professor of psychology. The basis of this book is formed by original studies of infant behavior carried on by Prof. Dennis.

"The French Parliamentary Committee System," by Robert K. Gooch, professor of political science. Dr. Gooch has carried on exhaustive investigations and consultations in France for the latest material on this subject.

"The Influence of the Newspaper Press on Anglo-German Relations, 1890-1914," by O. J. Hale, assistant professor of history. Prof. Hale will attempt to estimate the significance of the newspaper press in transforming friendly relations between the two powers into a state of hostility.

Worked in Europe.

The author spent more than a year in Europe working on this subject and will continue his studies in the Hoover War Library at Stanford University in California.

"The Rise of an Urban Community: A Study of Roanoke, Va.," and "Institutionalization in Roanoke, Va.," by Frank W. Hoffer, associate professor of sociology, and Floyd N. House, professor of sociology. These are two studies of social and cultural conditions and histories of public institutions in the Virginia city.

"Scientific Interests in the Old South," by T. C. Johnson, associate professor of history. The author has visited every Southern State in his search for material on the scientific and cultural interests of the social order before the Civil War.

"The History of Taxation in Virginia," by T. R. Snavely, professor of economics, and E. Q. Hawk, research associate. This is a study of the development of taxation in the State since the Colonial period.

State Executive Power.

"The Executive Power in Virginia," by George W. Spicer, professor of political science and chairman of the Virginia commission on county government. The author attempts to answer questions resulting from changes in the constitution and laws of the State giving the Governor greatly increased powers.

"Economic Theory in the Crucible," by Abraham Berglund, professor of commerce and business administration. This study aims to be a close inquiry into the doctrines of leading economists.

The report outlines the past year's activities of the Bureau of Public Administration, which is directed by Dr. Rowland A. Egger. The bureau is a department of the institute and the League of Virginia Municipalities.

Many special reports have been prepared for the league and the director has collaborated with the State department of taxation in making tax surveys.

Governors Asked To Music Festival

To Be Held on July 30 at Massanetta Springs.

Richmond, June 25 (AP).—Gov. Peery of Virginia, Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Gov. Kump of West Virginia have been officially invited to attend the sacred music festival at Massanetta Springs, July 30.

The festival, which is nationally known, brings about 2,000 voices together to sing sacred music. It features the old folk hymns which have lived for many generations in the Virginia mountains and Southern climes.

Among the speakers to address the group will be Dr. Fred W. Norwood, of London, England; Dr. James Black, of Edinburg, Scotland, and Dr. William L. Stidger, of Boston. The conference will be directed by Dr. William E. Hudson.

Westminster Gets Employment Office

Westminster, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—Owing to consolidation of reemployment offices in the central district with headquarters at Towson, a local reemployment office will be opened in the Westminster Firemens Building.

Registration and other unemployment business in Carroll County will be transacted every Tuesday from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

Savant Plans To Merge All Earth Sciences

"Cosmecology" Suggested to Correlate Many Separate Lines.

New York (U.P.).—Cosmecology—a new science—has been suggested by Dr. Harlan True Stetson, research associate in geophysics at Harvard University.

More than merely adding a new word to scientific dictionaries, this recent acquisition to the terminology of science would, according to its author, bind together the sciences governing our earth, its lithosphere, hydrosphere and atmosphere with those dealing with interstellar space such as astronomy and astrophysics.

Dr. Stetson, in his book, "Earth, Radio and the Stars," just published by Whittlesey House, claims that coordination of these allied sciences should be effected.

All Sciences in One.

Practically every science would be enrolled under the banner of this new and all-embracing one. All the representatives of the various sciences would correlate their findings toward a common end, the relation between man and his astronomical neighbors.

To substantiate one of his theories, Dr. Stetson, who has been director of Perkins Observatory director of Perkins Observatory and professor of astronomy at Ohio Wesleyan University for the past five years, presents a series of graphs. Research has illustrated that the levels of certain African lakes correspond closely with sun-spot cycles.

Biological and biophysical reactions have been linked with sun-spot frequency; variations in the number of rabbit, lynx and fox pelts approximated quite closely the increase and decrease of sun spots.

Sun Spots Affect Business.

As the spots increased, so did the pelts, and vice versa.

Business, too, is affected by the sun spots. Indices of various businesses, correlated with sun spot graphs, indicated tentatively that when the solar constant decreases business takes an upswing. Four of five of the last business depressions followed a sun spot maximum.

Dr. Stetson declares that the science of the modern generation largely will be synthetic in character in contrast to that of the past which was analytical.

French Wine Output Shows Large Increase

Paris (U.P.).—The wine output for the first seven months of the period 1933-34 shows an increase of 99,701,900 liters over the same period for 1932-33. A liter is a fraction over a quart. The total quantity of wine put into circulation, as shown by circulation tax figures in the Journal Officiel, from October 1 to the end of April, was 2,791,390,400 liters. For the same period in 1932-33, the figure was 2,691,688,500 liters.

Official figures likewise show that wholesalers are disposing of their wine reserves to the retail trade, or directly to the consumer at a normal rate. The amount of wine in the hands of wholesalers at the end of March was 1,267,520,100 liters. This amount was reduced to 1,229,484,500 liters at the end of April.

Florida Hotel Men Set Convention in Havana

St. Petersburg, Fla. (U.P.). — Cooperating with the United State's sister republic across the Florida Straits from Key West, Florida's hotel men will hold their 1935 convention in Havana next April, as a part of the program of the Cuban capital to rebuild its tourist business.

A party of about 500 hotel men are expected to attend, John N. Brown, president of the Florida Hotell Men's Association, said. Sebastian Acosta, Cuban hotel magnate, will be host to the party. Headquarters of the convention will be at the Hotel Plaza.

Texans Plan Road Opening.

Perryton, Tex. (U.P.).—Preparations are being made here for a mammoth celebration when the Great Plains highway finally is opened to traffic next November. Although portions of the route, which extends from Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, to Mexico City, already are open, a complete thoroughfare will not be available until then.

"Admit Your Age" Advised.

Hot Springs, Ark. (U.P.).—Women, who try to conceal their age are foolish, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, told delegates at the annual convention here. "There's always someone who knew them way back when," she said, to show up and give the secret away.

Women's Club Writes Decalogue for Wives

Springfield, Mass. (U.P.)—A decalogue for wives was presented to the Hampden County Women's Club by Mrs. Edith Abercrombie Snow, of Worcester, as follows:

1—Do not be extravagant.
2—Keep your home clean and attractive.
3—Never permit yourself to look unattractive, especially in bed.
4—Do not spend too much time with your mother, to the detriment of your own household.
6—Cultivate a sense of humor.
7—Be attentive in little ways.
8—Remember that men are just as sensitive in their feelings as women and act accordingly.
9—Be tactfully feminine.
10—Do not disparage your husband in public or listen to gossip about him.

Five Oregon Graduates Perfect in Attendance

Albany, Ore. (U.P.)—Five of six graduates of the Ash Swale School near here finished their last year without being absent or tardy. The sixth member of the class missed a day and a half.

Ethel Harrison attended the school eight years without being absent or late, Leo Bowers seven years, Joan Harrison four years, Doris Schlat and Norma Harrison each three years and Evelyn Dawson two years.

Gulls Balk Utah Planes.

Ogden, Utah (U.P.).—Seagulls, many times a godsend to Utah, have proven almost disastrous to air travel from Ogden. Intent on gorging millions of grasshoppers, as they did in pioneer days, the gulls have flocked to this northern Utah city so thick that airplanes can fly only at night when the birds have returned to their nests on Bird Island, in Great Salt Lake.

Representative Race Entered By Randolph

Seeks Renomination on Democratic Ticket in West Virginia.

Elkins, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.). Formal announcement of his candidacy for renomination on the Democratic ticket at the State-wide primary election, August 7, has been made by Representative Jennings Randolph, of here. Randolph, namesake of William Jennings Bryan, represents the Second District.

John M. Eckard, of Point Pleasant, has filed as a candidate for Democratic nomination as Fourth District State senator. The district comprises Mason, Jackson and Roane counties.

William G. MacCorkle, of Charleston, son of the late former Gov. William A. MacCorkle, has registered as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State senator in the Eighth District, comprising Kanawha, Roane and Logan counties. He seeks the seat held by Senator Clyde B. Johnson, of Charleston, Democrat.

Frank A. Young, manager of a publishing company at Sistersville, has announced for the Republican nomination for Second District State senator, seeking the seat now held by Senator D. W. Null, Democrat, of Hundred. The district comprises Wetzel, Tyler and Marshall counties.

A. E. Burgess, of Bluefield, has filed for the Democratic nomination in the Seventh senatorial district, comprising Mercer, Monroe, Raleigh and Summers counties.

Democratic nomination for a Harrison County seat in the House of Delegates is sought by James L. Gaylord, young business man of Clarksburg.

Bee Loudenslager, restaurant proprietor of Mannington, has registered as a candidate for Democratic House nomination in Marion County.

Eight more legislative candidates have filed in Kanawha County. Democratic aspirants are W. E. Riley Wilson, John E. Amos, Andrew Kennedy, Robert G. Ross and M. H. Dyer, of Charleston, and Patrick Kirk, of South Charleston. Seeking Republican nominations are Howard B. Kolstermyer, Charleston attorney, and Dr. George E. Grisinger, also of Charleston, a former member of the House for Fayette County.

School Anti-War Ball Flouts Cadets' Pomp

Eugene, Ore. (U.P.)—As a counter attraction to the annual military ball, an "anti-war dance" was staged recently by 11 anti-military organizations of the University of Oregon campus.

Decorations were banners denouncing war and militarism. Satiric poetry was recited by robed students. Those attending pledged themselves not to "cross the boundary of another country to kill or destroy."

Cat Committed Suicide.

Rockville, Conn. (U.P.)—Refusing to eat and drink after her mistress, Mrs. Ann Regan died, a pet cat deliberately walked in the path of an automobile and was killed.

Don't Scoff at Whales.

The cynicism that has settled over this country is deplorable. A New Jersey skipper, than which there are no more veracious, returns from an off-shore trip and reports running into "a solid mile" of whales, so numerous that "the sea was black with them." Whereupon nearly every one who hears the tale scoffs. For ourselves, having indorsed the sea serpent, we must believe he saw the whales; the bulls, the cows and the babies. And we sympathize with him. It must have been quite an ordeal.

The episode recalls a true whale story that undoubtedly is still remembered by Washingtonians who were summering in the vicinity of Bar Harbor during the war. A certain Capt. Gim Stanley, a most honorable gentleman of the old school, arrived at one of the outlying island ports late one afternoon in a state of complete exhaustion. He told a tale of having started to haul his trawl when he found it caught in something black and heavy. Looking down he saw a German submarine.

Without even waiting to cut loose from his gear he set out for home at full speed. The "submarine" followed. Gim raced but couldn't shake the enemy. As he was fishing off the Rock he had about 16 miles to go. After he had gone 10 of them the "submarine" broke water. It was, of course, a whale. Capt. Stanley had a gun aboard, which he emptied into the critter. It went off, trailing blood. Nobody believed the story and Gim went into hiding, shamefaced.

Then one hot August day the whale landed on the island. It was, as he had said, just 90 feet long. Being quite dead, it stayed where it landed. The longer it stayed, the more thin its welcome wore. The Coast Guard parted steel cables trying to remove it. Fire would not burn it, nor dynamite destroy. It just stayed. Soon even the gulls would have nothing to do with it. When the wind was sou'west the territory was drenched with a maleficent odor. Hundreds of people left Bar Harbor, post haste.

Well, they believed Gim Stanley then, and they will believe Capt. Stephen Shawdaw, of Point Pleasant, N. J., eventually. But we hope, for Point Pleasant's sake, that the proof of his whales will not be quite so compelling as was that at Cranberry Island, Me., in 1917.

Awaiting The Commission.

The success of regulatory legislation depends in very large measure upon the conduct of the regulated. If they are sullen, resentful of real or fancied abuses, or suspicious of the intentions of those in authority, the task of the enforcement agency becomes exceedingly difficult. The results may vary from nullification of the law itself to coercion of the regulated to the point where constructive cooperation is impossible.

Fortunately, the attitude of the financial community toward the new stock exchange act and the amended securities act offers ground for hope that the authorities will receive full cooperation. The assumption is that those entrusted with administration of the new laws will approach their task with a wish to eradicate socially undesirable practices, without imposing rules and regulations looking to some undefined ulterior end.

As a result of modifications of the drastic provisions of the original measure to regulate the exchanges, the new Securities and Exchange Commission will be in a position to exercise considerable discretion in framing rules and regulations and changing them in case they prove impracticable. By manifesting a desire to cooperate with the commission and confidently assuming that its intent will be to regulate, not to destroy, spokesmen for the stock exchange houses are taking a far-sighted attitude. If the commission, soon to be constituted, does not fulfill their expectations of square dealing, responsibility for subsequent friction could not so easily be placed on the shoulders of the regulated.

On Implacable Men.

It is men like the late Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, who, by means of their crusty individualism and outspoken independence, help keep alive the democratic ideals of a militant democracy. Even when wrong, their honest belief that they are right, and their readiness to fight for their convictions, serve to recapture a spirit which was very active in the formative days of this republic, and without which something essential would depart from American life.

There is a philosophy of independence to be read in the lives of men like Thomas. He was deeply religious, but refused to join any church because he was unable to reconcile the tenets and doctrines of all religious faiths with the spirit of prosecution and fanaticism they develop toward each other." His motto was, "The more there are ag'in you the harder you better swing."

Though often stubborn and contentious he was a man who thoroughly believed in his own standards of conduct. No allegiance to party, no thought of personal advantage, would allow him to go back on these standards. Though it may easily become pig-headed, sincere conviction remains an admirable trait.

There have been many men of such sincerity in our history. The side which they espoused was not always either popular or intelligent. But their insistence upon being courageously articulate in its defense has often served to stimulate public thought, and thereby social progress. Men of this sort cause debate and dissension, but they also force their opponents to think. A legislative body without a few implacable opponents of regimented thinking would be not only dull, but dangerous.

The Relief Problem.

The relief problem which confronts the United States today is in some respects more serious than was the case when the country was at the lowest depths of depression. Indeed the improvement that has occurred in business during the past year paradoxically increases the apprehensions of those who realize the immensity of the present need.

What semi-permanent provision can be made for the estimated 10,000,000 idle workers and their families who still remain as a burden upon relief rolls? To what extent will the task of feeding, housing and clothing them have to be accepted as a continuing charge upon public budgets, and how great a part of that responsibility must the Federal Government carry? These are some of the perplexing questions that call for answers if the wasteful, haphazard and hand-to-mouth measures that have been the rule are to be succeeded by a rational relief policy.

Conditions prevailing in New York City, where about one-sixth of the population is said to be on relief rolls, indicate the urgency of the needs that confront not only that community but the Nation. With applications for aid steadily mounting and a prospect that June relief outlays will be close to the monthly maximum for the depression period, no conceivable business upturn in the near future will solve New York's unemployment relief problem. Other communities face similar conditions that call for immediate action, although the situation in New York has undoubtedly been aggravated by an influx of workless as well as by the fact that the local provision made for the idle is relatively generous.

Relief is not merely a local problem. It is a State and a National problem as well. But those who conclude that the Federal Government must come to the rescue by assuming full responsibility for meeting future relief needs are taking a very superficial view of the issue. The only way in which the Federal Government can aid is to tax all the citizens of the United States for the benefit of certain sections.

In great emergencies, within reasonable limits and temporarily that can be done. It is obviously not a permanent solution of the relief problem. Today the largest proportion of Federal relief funds is going to those States that contribute least for their own indigent. That means that other States must pay for this local irresponsibility, just as certain sections pay for the relief of farmers in other parts of the country through processing taxes which are not locally disbursed.

The relief needs of a government of federated States can not be met except by insisting upon the assumption of local responsibility to the limit of ability to pay. When a city like New York establishes a generous scale of aid, it must not do so on the assumption that other communities will carry the load, and every community ought to be forced to make a decent contribution as the price of receiving supplementary Federal aid.

Probably it is too soon to estimate the magnitude of the permanent bill for relief, or to try to allocate it among the various Government agencies. If there should be a marked improvement in the heavy industries, for instance, a large percentage of the unemployed would be removed from relief roles. Nevertheless, the remaining unemployed will be a permanent charge upon public budgets for the indefinite future. Consequently, it is time to give most serious thought to substitution of a permanent relief policy for the haphazard methods that have hitherto prevailed.

Extradition.

Samuel Insull succeeded in giving the American public a keen interest in extradition treaties. There are now indications that this interest may be strengthened by Ivan Poderjay.

While detectives in several countries continue to pile thrill upon thrill in the Poderjay case, lawyers are trying to devise means of extraditing him to this country. Austria is holding this strange character on "suspicion of murder and bigamy." Investigators in both countries have inclined to the belief that a ghastly crime has been committed. But they are as yet without evidence to prove it.

Our extradition treaty with Austria has been in effect for a number of years. It would permit extradition of the suspect on murder, theft, bigamy, perjury or even abandonment of one's spouse. Consequently there is every reason to believe that Austria would honor a reasonable petition for Poderjay's removal to this country for trial. But first, authorities here must secure an indictment, and that requires evidence that a crime has been committed and that there is good cause to suspect the occult Mr. Poderjay by perpetrating it. Not even the first requirement is as yet fulfilled.

It is interesting to note that the State Department is now making an earnest effort to strengthen our extradition treaties. Specifically, it wants violation of the bankruptcy law included among the offenses for which criminals may be extradited in those treaties not now containing such a provision. This is an outgrowth of the Insull case. Will Poderjay make a new contribution? While avid devotees of criminal mystery do not often dwell on the point, it is well known that cases of this sort frequently result in a strengthening of the media through which law enforcement may reach beyond our own borders.

"The Author's Wallet."

James Lackington, a London shoemaker with a weakness for letters, opened a book shop in 1774. Before he retired, a wealthy man, his sales were running over 100,000 copies a year. His secret, as expressed by the motto he had inscribed on his carriage, was "Small Profits Do Great Things." Mr. Lackington was the discoverer of the cut-rate method of selling new books on the cash-and-carry plan. Later John Chapman realized that he, too, could outdo his rivals the same way, and in 1852 London was the scene of a great controversy over whether booksellers should sell their wares below the price set by the publishers.

In that year Charles Dickens presided at a meeting, called by Mr. Chapman, to protest a threatened boycott on his London store. It seems he was guilty of the crime of selling books at a price "consistent with demand." The others said he was ruining their trade by selling at cut rates and for cash. His reply was that others were ruining his trade by extending credit to people who, if they had to pay cash, would come to him because he was cheaper!

Wilkie Collins, creator of the detective story; W. B. Donne, a now forgotten essayist; George Cruikshank, illustrator for Dickens, and Herbert Spencer, the biologist, attended. Thomas Carlyle, John Stuart Mill, William Ewart Gladstone and others sent letters. The meeting was lively and wordy. The phrases "price-cutting," "price-fixing," "property rights" and "monopoly" resounded. It might have been a prototype for NRA.

All these great men upheld Mr. Chapman's argument that books should be sold at their market value regardless of the price fixed by the publisher. Mr. Gladstone promised to "advert to the subject" in the House of Commons. Mr. Dickens talked about the right of every man to be left "to the fair and free exercise of his own honest thrift and enterprise." A board of arbitration was formed, and the Booksellers Association, formed originally in Mr. Lackington's honor, but which had led the attack on Mr. Chapman, was dissolved!

This whole story is told in a neat pamphlet compiled from original sources by Mr. Paul Hollister and entitled "The Author's Wallet." But a point which must not be ignored in reading it for enjoyment is this: Recently the bookseller's code was accepted. It bans selling any book at less than publisher's price within six months of publication. This was forced through by the retailers who for years have been heartsick over the competition offered by such "outsiders" as the large department stores, one of whom left Lackington at the post by selling 800,000 books in one year for cash at cut prices.

And Mr. Hollister, who so cleverly unearths this forgotten episode and presents it so attractively as a newly discovered Dickens item, is a member of that firm!

Good Advice.

Addressing a group of prominent clubwomen, the honorary president of the European Federation of Women's Clubs ended with a word of warning. "Don't indorse any bill," she said, "until you find out if it affects your husband's business. When they try to tear down big business, it may be your own husband's business."

The cynical may be amused by this naive assumption that no wife would be sufficiently public spirited to advocate reforms that affected the family fortunes unfavorably. However, the speaker was probably reflecting upon the propensity of women (and men, too) to indorse measures about which they know nothing and have no right to express an opinion.

It is easy to acquire an irresponsible habit of appending one's signature to all sorts of plausible proposals pinned to club bulletin boards, or urged by persuasive propagandists. The result is that the world is flooded with solemn round robins, protests and pleas signed by people without the least knowledge of the subject matter of their petition.

If people really tried to understand how a given proposal would affect their personal fortunes, there would undoubtedly be fewer indorsements coming from the members of women's clubs, men's clubs, universities and a host of civic organizations. But the result might be better for all concerned. Public indorsements or denunciations of legislative proposals would then carry more weight as an evidence of sincere and reasoned convictions.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

PRESIDENT WILSON said, "Business has been in a feverish and apprehensive condition in this country for ten years. There is nothing more fatal to business than to be kept guessing as to whether something is going to happen. The trust program will not be postponed."

THE BIGGEST mercantile failure in the history of the United States was precipitated when receivers were appointed for the H. B. Claflin Co., New York, which owed approximately $30,000,000. From 3,000 to 5,000 banks in all parts of the United States composed the bulk of the Claflin creditors.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE McADOO forces and the Smith forces continued to wage a bitter battle yesterday at the national convention. Each was determined to eliminate and exterminate the other. It was said that any politician who marched behind McAdoo marched thus with full knowledge that he was in line to fight and not to frolic. The same principle applied to the Smith marchers. It was a knock-down, drag-out affair, with gouging, purring and biting in the clinches.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Why Courage?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is amazing to find in your edition of June 21 the editorial, "Wolf! Wolf!" Obviously the writer of this denunciation of Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling's book, "The Red Network," has not read the treatise he so adversely criticizes and knows nothing of the circumstances of its publication.

I have the privilege of knowing Mrs. Dilling. She worked tirelessly for many months in compiling the most trustworthy book of its kind, an explanation of the development of Communism in this country and brief records of the most prominent and aggressive "Pinks," radicals, Socialists and professional Communists. She lived in Russia for a time, and she has said repeatedly that she would gladly give her life to prevent the establishment of the Russian system in the United States. There is no doubt that she was prompted to write the book solely because of her devotion to her country, and I understand that, although the sales have been large, she has made no profit whatever from the publication.

It must have required a great deal of courage for Mrs. Dilling to name the prominent "Pinks," and the professional radicals and communistic "advisers" in the Government organizations who are responsible for the strange and costly experiments of the present Administration. For some pathological reason, perhaps, many prominent and otherwise sane men and women have been led astray along the crimson path of radicalism, and they have given substantial aid to the revolutionary cause. Their names are frequently used by promoters of strikes and riots to gain recruits, on the same principle that encourages editors sometimes to feature "big names" to gain circulation.

For many weeks the New York police have been harassed by mobs, and a number have been injured while protecting lives and property. And it seems very strange that you would editorially condemn New York police officials for spending a few cents, which can not be truthfully considered as "a draft upon the pocketbook of the taxpayer," for a means of identifying not only the Reds who are staging the riots, but also the intellectual dupes "with unconventional ideas" who encourage and finance the Reds. JAMES TRUE.

Jobs for Millions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The millions of unemployed mean continued lack of adequate purchasing power among the people, continued growth of the staggering National debt. Remedy is putting people to work. A National survey showed 16,000,000 buildings needing alteration or repair. Doing it now would, by stimulating activity among factories operating at half capacity, do more to lift the country out of the present morass than any other one thing.

Oswald Spengler, in his curiously famous work, "The Decline of the West," points out with striking clearness that our society is in the hands of the technicians, the engineers. Our large scale business enterprises are planned and run by highly trained men, not word artists.

If the people in Washington would call together a half-dozen men of the stamp of the chief engineers of the great railroad systems, place at their disposal a half-billion dollars as a starter, to be loaned in small amounts for modernization and repair work, repayable in installments over a period of years, thousands of jobs could be started within six weeks with the aid of the 100,000 real estate men of the country who would be more than glad to aid in executing a properly worked out plan under competent leadership.

The Roosevelt housing plan means months of delay, while obviously futile efforts are being made to find private lenders willing to embark on the doubtfully remunerative scheme of making small loans for this kind of work. In other words, it means the coming of another winter with nothing done to remedy the paralysis of the building industry, which, in turn, is a bar to the return of normal business activity. For Congress to go out of business now for six months is a scandalous dereliction of duty. J. B. ALLEN.

Red Tape in Banks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In line with the letter published in your paper from E. Franklin, it is reasonable to state: "As a patient, needy and long suffering stockholder, I, too, am wondering if the Comptroller of the Currency thinks his only duty is to give employment and spend other people's money."

The Federal-American National Bank was held insolvent 15 months ago, yet it maintains an expensive location in the Southern Building, with a large staff of employes, who seem to do nothing but kill time and unwind red tape.

Government supervision of banks must be very lax, if it permits such an inexcusable outlay of the stockholders money. G. BLACHMAN.

The Juggernaut.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in The Post not long ago that there is a greater congestion of cars and a higher percentage of accidents in Washington than in any city of the United States.

Recently I had an experience which seems to throw some light on the psychology of drivers. My wife and I were crossing the street at Sixteenth and R on the green light. When we got half across the lights changed to yellow and a great number of cars, at high and sudden speed dashed at us from both directions. I lost my head and jumped back from the attack on the right and might have been killed. Fortunately, I immediately realized my error and stood still. In three seconds more we would have been across. Is a gain of this little time more important than the lives of two pedestrians? Has the automobilist even the right to frighten two people? Even if three seconds are more important than the life of a man, has the juggernaut destroyed all chivalry and consideration for ladies?

I am not sure about one point: When pedestrians are nearly across the street and the lights change, should not the approaching cars wait until they are safely over? Of course the person perched up at the drver's seat may have a feeling of superiority and contempt for mere pedestrians, but killing people is a serious business, and it is done every day, for the sake of a few seconds of time.

As Others See It

About Face on Tariffs.

The signing of the reciprocal tariff act by President Roosevelt consummates a radical change in American commercial policy. It is radical not only in transferring tariff-making powers from Congress to the President; it is an actual reversal of the theory of protection which has controlled American tariff policy for 100 years. Not that the Democrats have any deep-laid scheme to remove protection from all American industries. Indeed, the President has promised that "no sound and important American interest will be injuriously disturbed" by reciprocal agreements arranged under the new act.

Yet basically the act expresses a new era in American commercial relations. It reflects America's changed position as a creditor nation seeking desperately to find some way to accept payments—payments which must be made in goods—on its investments abroad. The old theory of the tariff was to exclude foreign goods and protect infant industries; the new theory is to admit foreign goods—wherever possible without destructive competition—and to protect producers of exports which can only be paid for in foreign goods.

For years the United States was import conscious. Today it is becoming export conscious. Politically the exporters are still less powerful than the importers, and even the principal exporting interests, cotton planters and motor car manufacturers, are not yet fully aware of tariff effects. In a log-rolling contest in Congress they would have no chance against the tremendously powerful manufacturing groups which are subsidized by protective tariffs. That fact is one reason for the transfer of authority from Congress to the President.

But the new tariff policy is not dictated merely by the selfish interests of exporters. The new philosophy is that commercial policy should be controlled in the interests of the whole country rather than of any group which can exert log-rolling pressure on Congress. It is doubtful if protective tariffs dictated by a conglomeration of local interests, as in the past, ever promoted the welfare of the country as a whole. But so long as the United States was a debtor nation annually exporting far more than it imported the damage was hardly noticed. Nor was it very apparent during the postwar years when exports were being financed by tremendous foreign loans. But as Mr. Peek, the President's trade adviser, has just shown, what America had supposed was a "favorable balance of trade" has turned out to be an accumulation of bad debts.

Over the last 38 years the United States' balance of exports over imports has run up to almost $23,000,000,000. But Americans are not richer by that amount. They have simply lent goods of that value abroad. In final analysis, this loan of goods can be repaid only in goods. Payment of interest alone means that imports will exceed exports by $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 a year, according to how much is defaulted.

Even if all attempts to collect debts—and about $15,000,000,000 of them are private loans—were abandoned, the United States would still have need of a "trading tariff." For it would still be under the necessity of finding markets for surpluses, notably farm surpluses. It could no longer sell without buying. For instance, unless it can accept imports to pay for that half of the cotton crop which can not be used at home, there will have to be not merely a reduction of cotton production—as under the much attacked AAA program—but a far harsher "regimentation." Production would need to be cut in half.

Statistically that is the position. Practically there will be adjustments. But they will be merely cushions, easing the shift from a debtor to a creditor position. It is this new position, and neither a "brain trust" nor a Democratic "free trade" tradition, which dictates a radical change in commercial policy. The new tariff act merely opens the door for gradual application of that policy.

The Post Impressionist

Sweethearts' Saint.

Postoffice, Tuesday.

SO you were going over the old things in one of those steel trunks at home—and found a faded valentine!

To be sure, you told yourself, valentines are exceedingly tawdry tokens of calf-love. But was your smile quite so bitter as you hoped it might be?

Look backward, Cynic Middle-Age—as you do more than once in a while during those evenings when Jane is at her contract bridge club, and the children you don't know where. It's sentimentalism? But who isn't a sentimentalist—about himself? The traffic-cop that bawled you out yesterday on Pennsylvania avenue is one, so is the hardest boiled top-sergeant at the Marine Barracks. Look backward, then . . .

* * * *

You were home, just turning the first of your teens, walking up Locust street and looking for Shorty and the rest of the Gang. It was a Saturday, February 13. You found yourself in front of Eckman's Stationary Store—and there was the window full of white paper-lace glories that haloed pink cupids and red hearts with arrows through 'em.

* * * *

Softie stuff. Yet, somehow, it made you think again of that new girl with beribboned pigtails whose folks moved to town a couple of weeks ago, and who had a desk across the aisle from you at school. Your mother was wondering yesterday why, after she'd abandoned hope of your ever-heeding maternal pleas for neatness, you'd taken to slicking your unruly hair. You were glad she hadn't guessed at any connection between the fresh hole in your stocking and the ink on your knee.

So you idled into Eckman's to buy a lead pencil and bought the laciest valentine to be had for a nickel. And you addressed it in the privacy of your own bedroom and mailed it when you were sure none of the gang was anywheres 'round.

* * * *

If they knew, they'd howl derision. The instant the mail box swung irrevocably shut, you were mighty ashamed of yourself . . .

Envy!

* * * *

(Or vocal camouflage: Shorty, had you but known it, was doing the same thing.)

* * * *

Other Valentine Days followed, speeding other valentines—alas, to other girls—lots of them. You remember.

There was that blonde child you mailed the pictured "Wreath of Roses" to: round and soft and lovely, she, with blue eyes, clear skin and yellow hair. Fat now, and 40? Her locks platinum—except near their roots? A. Z. Robinson's—Shorty's—wife, and mother to his unmannerly children, who administer runaway rings to neighbors' doorbells in the Old Home Town?

What of it? No matter what she is—she was.

* * * *

Or the brunette of a year later—or two years later: You sent her three valentines on one 14th, and when she dropped her Arithmetic, and you picked it up, and your hand—oh, quite accidentally!—touched hers, why, you wished you'd remembered to wash your hands after recess. . . .

What was her name, anyhow?

* * * *

The so-called Comic Valentines—Ghastly things. Rotten taste. Cent a piece, dime a dozen. Who made them?

They were only for the teacher, or that mean guy who caught you administering a runaway ring to his doorbell and told your father? The father of you, a really mannerly child.

Otherwise, the Comic Valentine was a blasphemy.

No, the valentines you remember are, almost entirely, the Other Kind. You, the snappy business man, the slighty pompous Senator, the tired bank clerk whose own youngsters have just rushed from breakfast-table for school—that scarecrow on the park bench: You!

* * * *

So never mind, for the minute, St. Valentine's biography as printed in the "Lives of the Saints." Holy he must have been, like St. Basil the Great beside his quiet Cappadocian River—like youthful David singing among the pastures of Palestine. Here and now, the point is that the biographies say St. Valentine grew up. We won't believe that the good man ever grew out, anyhow: grew out of his solicitude for Young Love.

* * * *

Honestly, do you even wish to believe it?

Not a little bit! For then we couldn't envisage him—when Jane's at that contract-club and the sons and daughters elsewhere—unobtrusively understanding and directing the timid ghosts of our dead-and-buried sentimentalities: Not to mention helping us to understand and refrain from ridiculing the same setimentalities in our children.

* * * *

Own up to it, Cynic:

You may harbor some doubts about certain other personalities in the Kalendar, but here is one that you never wholly reject, however old you grow, however disillusioned, or however distant romance may lie behind you. If only because you love yourself and those days when you were so much happier than today, there is, close guarded, in the farthest corner of each heart, a tiny niche for the brave-and-unashamed-of-it Saint of Your Youth. Before that niche, in the late twilights of Summer, in Winter's twilights early and long, some one involuntarily makes reverence: some one who is the Boy or the Girl You Used to be.

Along the Potomac

Carlisle Bargeron

We All Want to Do It.

THE motivating influence behind the Brain Trusters, I think, is that feudal instinct which we all have in some degree. There comes a time in all of our lives when we tire of being employes, when we want to be the lord of what we survey. My secret ambition for years has been to have a secretary and to be able to press buttons in some high-geared organization that would bring attendants from all over the place. It is not an unusual one. I am not alone in it at all.

BARGERON.

For the great majority of us, however, I am afraid the ambition never takes more form than the acquisition in middle age or later in life, of a country place, or milder still, a house with reasonable grounds, around which we can raise, as Prof. Tugwell would say, "edible and fragrant growing things."

• • • •

This yearning for the "place out," for the suburban or country home has generally been attributed to man's innate desire for beauty and contemplative quiet. Wrongly so, I think. There are people living in the suburbs or out in the country who have no more sense of beauty than a snake has legs and whose ideas of peace and serenity is the bellow of a radio.

It's the picture of the grand squire that really beckons to us, the authority that goes with the home removed. The owner may be a mere white-collar worker downtown punching the clock and responding to the buzz, but here he is the lord of his survey. It may not be a sizeable survey, hardly anything more than a house and a backyard, but it is his or, as some folks would say, his'n. He is, notwithstanding the increasing army of deputies and Government agents, the master, the boss.

It doesn't take much imagination either, and certainly not more than a mint julep or two while sitting on a shaded porch, to visualize an estate with slaves, some of them at work in the fields, others forming a steady procession bringing in spices and beeves. No matter how humble a man may be in the marts of trade, or on the golf course, there is assurance and poise, there is confidence in such a realm.

I realize that industrial magnates also go in for the country places, for the vista of growing acres and blooded stock, that they do this notwithstanding their boss estate down town. But I think they do it as a matter of course. They don't thrill to it as does the fellow who has never had any authority in his life. It's the fellow who looks upon his place in the light of lord and master who gets the kick.

• • • •

Now, as I have studied the personnel of the Brain Trust, no one of them has ever been an industrial magnate or the squire of a country place. The only authority they have ever exercised, insofar as I can ascertain, is that very doubtful authority that presides over a classroom.

There must have been that same yearning with them which the rest of us have. Certainly, readers of history that they are, their minds must even more often have entertained the dukes and the barons of old. Professorial incomes, however, do not usually support country or suburban places. More often their residence is on the campus, under the watchful eyes of the college president and the board of trustees.

Lacking the ordinary outlet for their dual desires, not being able to obtain a house and an acre out away from town where they could boss mythical slaves and plan, they took a most extreme leap and took over all the farms. The result is that they plan not modestly in terms of a cow, a few chickens and a peck of potatoes, as the rest of us do, but in millions of bushels of wheat, and their "hands," instead of one all-around man about the place, are the farm population of the United States.

I am satisfied that had Mrs. Roosevelt already set up her subsistence farms where each of these fellows could have had a parcel of land they would have been content, and the course of our history would have been left unchanged.

The National Gallery

HENRY LATROBE ROOSEVELT, Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Soldier, yachtsman, Isaac Waltonian, huntsman and clubman, he is the fifth member of his clan to hold his present post. Graduated class of 1900, Naval Academy, and during Spanish-American War witnessed bombardment of Santiago. Served through all commissioned grades to lieutenant colonel in the Marines, accomplishing active service at Panama, Haiti and Mexico. Largely responsible for development of Marine base at Quantico, he has instilled typical Rooseveltian affability, zest and aggressiveness into his position. His more than comely daughter recently graced the Cherry Blossom Festival. Though patrician, he is kindly, genial and simple in the country squire manner.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

It's a Lot of Fun to Fish If It Isn't Your Job

By Robert Quillen

Mr. Bill Jones was born rich. And, like others of his kind, he so easily obtained the things he desired and became so accustomed to a multitude of possessions that he lost his capacity to want anything at all before he was 30 years old.

Without desires or duties or needs, he found life so dull and tiresome that he deliberately risked his neck in various sports and flirted with death to find a thrill.

This also became a weariness in time, and boredom made his life miserable.

So one day he said to his secretary: "I am going to chuck all this. I have observed that the poor who scratch for a living are never bored, and I have decided to fight the world with bare hands as they do and enjoy the thrill of daily victory over want."

Having thus decided, he arranged his affairs and gave his secretary full authority to act for him and disappeared into the hard world without a dollar in his pockets.

It was great fun. He went hungry at times and got vermin from a foul bed and suffered many a bruise, but all of these things had happened to him on hunting trips or other quests for adventure, and he took the hard licks with a grin and gloried in his ability to take it.

At last he got a job. It was hard work and taxed his endurance to the limit, but he slept well at night and enjoyed his meals and enjoyed every detail of his life.

It was fun to count pennies, and deny himself one necessity to save money for another. It was a game.

Bill said to himself: "This is life. It is raw and real. How glorious it is to fight the world and lick it. This is the greatest game in the world."

Then one day Bill got a wire from his secretary. It read: "Since you enjoy roughing it, I have cashed your holdings and prepared to skip. So long."

"Ruined!" he groaned. "Merciful Heaven, what will become of me now!"

Obscenity Charge Brings Jail Terms

Publisher, Writer and Distributors Involved.

Baltimore, June 25 (U.P.).—Three men who pleaded guilty to sending the alleged obscene publication, "Baltimore Briefs," through the mails were sentenced to four years each in prison by Federal Judge William C. Coleman today.

Philip Weintraub, president of the Bis Publishing Co., of Philadelphia; Benjamin Manoff, a distributor, and O. K. Posey, a writer, received the sentences. Harry E. Holdberg, a distributor, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and the Bis Publishing Co. was fined $3,500.

Seaman Misse Boat In Leap; Is Drowned

Norfolk, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Search was continued today for the body of Ernest Mattos, 21, seaman of Fall River, Mass., drowned last night when he tried to leap from a wharf at Lambert's Point to the collier Ida Hay Atwater, on which he was employed.

Mattos, who had cast off a bow cable, jumped for the vessel as it moved from the wharf. He misjudged the distance and fell into the water. He was seen to come to the surface twice, but disappeared as a member of the crew jumped overboard with a life preserver.

Church's School To Be Dedicated

Sunday Service Planned at Cumberland.

Cumberland, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—Bethany United Brethren Church, the Rev. Lucius G. Bridgers, pastor, will dedicate the first unit of a modern educational building for religious instruction next Sunday.

It consists of a modern basement equipped with kitchen, women's and men's rooms, with space for social gatherings which will be curtained off for class work. The cost is $5,000. Mr. Bridgers has invited all former pastors to be present.

The Rev. Dr. W. F. Gruver, Martinsburg, W. Va., will deliver the morning sermon, while the Rev. Dr. U. P. Hovermale, president of the conference, will have charge of the dedicatory service. In the evening the Rev. John E. Oliver, Singer Glen, Va., a former pastor, will preach.

$1 Federal Stamp Needed by Hunters

Richmond, June 25 (AP).—M. D. Hart, executive secretary of the Virginia Game and Inland Fisheries Commission, today notified game wardens along the East Coast that for the next duck season all duck hunters will have to have a Federal stamp.

The stamp will have to be procured by all duck huntsmen, whether they are hunting on waters adjacent to their own property or not, under regulations recently adopted by the Federal Government.

Dr. Steward Appointed.

Warsaw, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union Auxiliary to the Rappahannock Missionary Association will be held Thursday and Friday at the Baptist Church here.

Duncan R. Sloan Dies in Maryland

Was Retired Banker and Business Man.

Mr. Sloan came from a pioneer Scotch family. He organized the mercantile firm of D. R. Sloan & Co. and was treasurer of the Lonaconing Savings Bank, which he helped to organize, for many years. He became interested in 1906 in the Klots Throwing Co., of New York, which established mills here and at Cumberland, and was one of the organizers of the Home Electric Light Co. and the Lonaconing Glass Co. For 15 years he was president of the Cumberland Fair Association. He was an active Republican and served as town treasurer.

Rockingham Post To Dedicate Home

Harrisonburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—John J. Wicker, of Richmond, Va., manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation and prominent veteran, will be the speaker when Rockingham Post of the American Legion dedicates its home here Wednesday evening.

The home is located in the old Elks Building on East Market street. Legion posts from Staunton, Bridgewater, Shenandoah and other Valley points will send delegations to the ceremony, which is open to all World War veterans. Members of the Ladies Auxiliary also will participate.

Loudoun Harvesting Large Crop of Wheat

Reports show that the county will have one of the largest yields in recent years. The straw is large and the heads well filled.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

Norway, New Style.

CONTEMPORARY in time with Hamsun's "The Road Leads On" is Ronald Fangen's "Duel" (Viking, $2.50. But in everything else they are miles apart.

THEO. HALL.

The first is a Tolstoian panorama, broad and sunlit—the second is a compact and painful drama of nerves. One is set in a little sub-Arctic fishing village—the other amid professional circles in the capital city of Oslo. One is by an old man who lives quietly in the Norwegian back country, a Nobel prize-winner, who has been writing novels for 45 years. The author of the other, much younger, lives in the thick of literary life. Fangen is book critic of the Oslo Tidens Tegn, a leading daily. In 1928-32 he was president of the Author's League. He has written plays and essays, and this is his third novel—the first to be translated into English. And in fundamental qualities these two novels are even farther apart than these signs have indicated.

• • • •

"Duel," tells the life-story of two men—of Klaus Hallem, who has become a country doctor, and of George Roiter, who has risen to be professor of jurisprudence in the university, president of the university, director of corporations, and a Europe-wide authority on international law.

As schoolboys they had their first encounter. Hallem, ambitious, clever, wayward, hated the steady success of Roiter. Once, desperate to beat the other, Hallem handed in a Schopenhauer essay as his own. When public exposure followed, and Hallem had a rope slung in his room ready to hang himself, it was Roiter who dissuaded him and forced the classmates to swear forgiveness toward the whole affair. Ever after, Roiter stood at Hallem's elbow in an effort to keep him straight and achieving.

But the friendship was never anything but a stab in the side to Hallem. Constantly he compared his own, not too undistinguished state, with that of Roiter, and it was like turning the knife in the wound. Even as a middle-aged man, he could not refrain from insulting Roiter at a public banquet.

Then he went home, in a more shame and torture of mind than ever. When he tried to escape from himself by the old and often thought-of door, his wife stopped him. The next time he tried she was left to cut him down.

Roiter had his own troubles. Trusting by nature, he was too late to stop the manager from undermining the insurance company of which he was a director. The scandal came on top of the death of Roiter's invalid son. Then came Hallem's suicide, and Roiter knew at last how much he had depended upon this man whom he could both befriend and despise.

• • • •

As if the central theme were not enough, Fangen has given us several other sharply and most competently drawn sub-plots. There is that of Hallem's wife, a strong and motherly country woman, trying to understand and save her husband. One of Hallem's sons marries Roiter's eldest daughter. The other goes through an unhappy love affair—this is a marvelously vivid sequence. Then there are all the Roiter children, each of whom alone would occupy a story. Here, to be sure, is a kind of fecundity of character reminiscent of Hamsun.

• • • •

But the differences are overpowering. In Hamsun one feels an all-embracing security—even his poor have roots beneath them and are happy. Not so in Fangen. If the jeopardy here lies seldom in economics, it assuredly lies in the emotions. Fangen's characters walk on a thin crust, essentially unsure. Their plight is the "modern" plight—a dependence on nerves and ganglia and the minute essences of glands. They are aware, perhaps, but they pay for it.

And when Fangen, to gain solidity, weaves in philosophic and religious passages, the effect is regrettably fuzzy. Hamsun made his philosophy implicit, and his book was the better for it.

I can express the difference between these two novels no more concretely, perhaps, than to note the respective attitudes to Norway. In Hamsun's eyes, it is a rich though hard land, a theater for human effort and error, a solid land and seascape to be loved. Fangen (through Hallem) calls it a country of 3,000,000 people among whom strut 500,000 egocentric geniuses. The resultant backslapping and empty mouthing may be imagined.

But no doubt this is hardly fair to Fangen. Through one or two characters he can imply Hamsun's view. Hamsun remains oblivious to Fangen.

"Duel" should be read for its rich, though somewhat pattern-ridden, character drawing. As a narrative, it bogs down ever so often. But as a clear and subtly colored picture of a society no different from that of many an American city, it is a masterly performance.

The Viking Press's only new publication between April and August deserves a high place in your summer reading.

Former Ronceverte Mayor Is Dead at 55

Ronceverte, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Thomas P. Doughty, 55, formerly three times mayor of this city, died yesterday in a hospital at Weston, where he had lately been connected with an automobile concern. He was a native of Baltimore.

His widow and two sons survive him.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

PURIFIED STOCK MARKETS.

Oh, hie thee to the market now!
No matter what you do,
You can't go wrong for Uncle Sam
Is looking after you.

Just walk right in and buy your stocks
With calm, untroubled brow;
The Government is seeing that
It's safe to do it now.

For years the stock exchanges were Quite wicked, base and low,
But now there will be places where
A little babe may go.

Bad Wall street is to be refined,
Reformed and purified,
So man's pursuit of easy coin
May never be denied.

There'll be a "welcome" on the mats,
And placards, "Quiet, please!"
Will fly from all the trading posts
To put you at your ease.

"We do not ever tell a lie,"
The brokers all will chant,
"And even if we'd like to tell
A story tall we can't."

The specialists will have big wings—
(From Washington direct)—
And they, the honest little dears,
Will keep their facts correct.

"We aim to please" will be the code
Of traders sweet as saints,
And everywhere you'll see the sign,
"We welcome all complaints."

Each corporation floating stocks
Will take the people in
Its confidence and show them how
To play the stocks and win.

The big directors they will all
Strive never to deceive;
And from all sides you'll hear them chirp,
"There's nothing up my sleeve."

The brokers will give all the facts
And try to set you right;
Their offices will fairly reek
With sweetness and with light.

You will be treated graciously,
Just like an honored guest;
They will not lose your hard-earned gold—
Not even by request!

The bond salesmen will sweetly give
The bad points to you first;
Before they cite the good returns
They'll emphasize the worst!

The market letter writers will
Be sworn to be precise,
And will be told quite firmly that
A falsehood isn't nice.

And over all our Uncle Sam
Will stand, for virtue's sake,
So all the little lambs will know
That everything is "jake."

You'll be protected to the hilt
From every sharp reverse;
There'll be a guide, a chaperon,
A doctor and a nurse.

The stock exchange will be so safe
And good that, love of mike!
I'm going elsewhere so I can Lose money if I like.

HAS EVERYTHING.

Charlie Davis, the orchestra leader, says he knows a young man with such an elastic conscience and wonderful memory that he will make a great popular song writer in time.

Bullet Kills Man In Roanoke Hotel

Note Indicates Suicide; Victim Unidentified.

Roanoke, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Authorities are trying to establish the identity of a man found dead in a local hotel with a bullet wound in his body and a note nearby indicating suicide.

The man, about 25, was registered as J. H. Grant, Kingsport, Tenn., but the note stated that the name was false; that the man had no family and that it would be "to the best interests" if the account of his death were not mentioned by "any newspapers."

On the floor near the body was an old .38-caliber revolver. The man was well dressed. On his right forearm was the tattoo of a girl holding a wreath, with the name "Effie" above it.

Daniel B. Tolson, 58, Is Buried in Virginia

Stafford Courthouse, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Funeral services were conducted yesterday for Daniel B. Tolson, 58, at the Stafford Store Baptist Church.

Mr. Tolson died at the home of Earl Shacklett, near Stafford Store. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Grace Virginia Gaines, and one brother, H. Fairfax Tolson.

Fall From Tree Fatal To Round Hill Boy, 11

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Milton.

There are many who, either because they were forced to read Milton at school, or because they have never read him at all, think he may be a sublime poet, but that he is also dull. Now, nothing could be further from the truth. I mean he is sublime, but he is also interesting.

Why is he generally regarded as the second English poet? Gray thought he was equal to Shakespeare, but most critics rightly place Shakespeare in a class by himself.

Milton is the second English poet because he wrote poetry that is surpassed only by Shakespeare. He was an artist in words and rhythm, whether he wrote in rhyme or in blank verse, whether he wrote long or short poems.

Even as Beethoven wrote his best music after he became absolutely deaf, so Milton wrote his best poetry after he became absolutely blind. Every morning he would sit in an armchair, with one leg thrown over an arm of the chair, waiting for his amanuensis; and he was often impatient at delay, saying: "I want to be milked." He was so full of poetry that it seemed to flow from him spontaneously. Fortunately, he knew how to play the organ, and that was not only a great resource in his blindness, but no doubt helped him in the composition of his verse, for of all the English poets, his poetry most resembles organ-music.

Although it is often said that one can not enjoy smoking in the dark, Milton smoked his pipe every day.

"Paradise Lost" is not only sublime; it is an interesting narrative. If one will forget that it is a religious work, or that it has ever been assigned as a task, and will read it as if it were a novel in verse, one will become absorbed in the story.

But an important thing to remember is that Milton is not only sublime; he is charming and graceful. The so-called Minor Poems, published in 1645, are ravishly beautiful, especially if one tries the experiment of reading them aloud. "L'Allegro" and "Il Penseroso" are full of the loveliest word music, while there is an austere beauty about "Lycidas" that makes it unique.

Tennyson, in his Alcaic poem, not only described the two sides of Milton—the sublime and the charming—but his own language expresses the difference. Notice in this tribute the exact moment where Tennyson puts on the soft pedal:

O mighty-mouth'd inventor of harmonies,
O skill'd to sing of Time or Eternity,
God-gifted organ-voice of England,
Milton, a name to resound for ages:
Whose Titan angels, Gabriel, Abdiel,
Starr'd from Jehovah's gorgeous armories,
Tower, as the deep-domed empyrean
Rings to the roar of an angel onset—
Me rather all that boyery lonelliness,
The brooks of Eden mazily murmuring,
And bloom profuse and cedar arches
Charm, as a wanderer out in ocean,
Where some refulgent sunset of India
Streams o'er a rich ambrosial ocean isle,
And crimson-hued the stately palm-woods

No Air-Mail Stops Seen for Bristol

Bristol, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Without the expenditure of a sizeable sum of money on its airport, Bristol will have no regular airmail stop on the new Washington-Texas line, which also passes through Charlottesville, it appeared today.

Frank Kilgore, coworker of the Bristol field, disclosed that a Department of Commerce official here during the week had told him the Bristol airport was inadequate for the passenger and mail service both in size and in freedom from natural hazards.

Purchase of adjoining farm lands and other improvements, costing a total of possibly $100,000, would be required to place the port in condition for Department of Commerce approval, Mr. Kilgore said.

Heart Tablets Fatal To West Virginia Child

Buckhannon, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—As a result of swallowing tablets his father had been using for a heart stimulant, Joseph Bale Ogden, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ogden, died last night.

While the parents were in a front room, the child found the box of tablets and ate several, thinking they were candy. Two brothers and the parents survive.

W.C.T.U. Will Hold Rally at Lincoln

Lincoln, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Plans are being made for an all-day county Women's Christian Temperance Union rally on the Lincoln High School grounds July 20.

Chicken Thefts Bring Jail.

Kingwood, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—For stealing several chickens and selling them to a merchant at Thornton, youths have been sentenced in circuit court here to serve two years each in the Moundsville Penitentiary. They are Earl Poling, Wesley Poling and Oren Williams. All pleaded guilty.

Attempt at Suicide Follows Spanking Of Boy by Mother

Bristol, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Wounded pride, the aftermath of a spanking administered by his mother, is believed to have led Charles Franklin Shepherd, 12, residing near Green Springs, to attempt suicide by hanging Saturday, it was learned here today.

About half an hour after he had been punished by his mother, young Shepherd was found hanging in a woodshed near his home, a small cord tied securely around his neck and thrown over a rafter.

Though unconscious, the youth responded to treatment administered by Dr. Kingsolving, of Abingdon, who went to the scene with Sheriff J. T. Woodward, and was removed by the physician to the George Ben Johnston Hospital at Abingdon.

Five Are Banished In Maryland Riot

Attacking Officer Charge Dropped Against Two.

Baltimore, June 25 (Spl.).—Banishment from Maryland was the penalty imposed today on five seamen convicted of inciting a riot in connection with a stevedore's strike May 28.

The men, arraigned today before Judge Robert F. Stanton in Criminal Court, were given the alternative of leaving the State or serving jail terms. All accepted the banishment sentence.

They gave their names as Ted Harris, William E. Howe, Fred Stanley, Walter J. Stack and Mack Guadeloupe. The latter two pleaded guilty to attacking a policeman, but were told that if they would quit the State they would not be prosecuted on that charge.

Ceremony Planned At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Ceremonies commemorating the opening of the James Madison Memorial Bridge are planned for the date of completion, expected within two weeks.

Bridging the Rappahannock River between Port Royal, in Caroline County, and Port Conway, in King George County, the Memorial Bridge was built with RFC funds at a cost of $100,000. Many new highways are being constructed because of the bridge, which will save much distance between Northern Neck points and locations west of the Rappahannock.

The bridge will form a link of the proposed highway connecting Maryland and Virginia by a bridge over the Potomac River, lessening the motoring distance between northern and southern points.

Girl Near Romney Is Killed by Truck

Romney, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Katherine Shiout, 19, was injured fatally and her companion, Robert Duncan, 19, hurt seriously yesterday, near here, when they were struck by a truck reported to have been operated by Charles Hockman, of Hoy.

The couple were walking to their homes and were struck as Hockman attempted to pass then on a curve in the road, going in the same direction.

Mis Shiout died in a Keyser Hospital. Duncan is in the hospital with a bare chance for recovery. Hockman was held for the Hampshire County grand jury.

H. H. Marsh, Rail Executive, Is Dead

Wheeling, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—H. H. Marsh, 65, widely known railroad executive, is dead at his home here, having succumbed yesterday to a stroke of paralysis.

Marsh was general freight agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in West Virginia, and formerly was division freight agent at Parkersburg and at Grafton.

Surviving are the widow and three sons, John L. Marsh, member of the State House of Delegates; H. H. Marsh, of Pittsburgh, and W. H. Marsh, of Dallas Tex.

Suicide Balked, Suitor Held in Woman Attack

Freed Once by Police, He Slashes Her and Self, Says Warrant.

Bond of $5,000 was set yesterday for Richard J. Whitworth, 27, of 1738 Bay street southeast, on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon upon Ann Bailey, 26, of 328 Sixth street southeast.

The alleged assault occurred after a day-long lovers' quarrel, police said. The woman was found early yesterday on Constitution avenue northwest near Ninth street, slashed on her nose and mouth. Whitworth was found in a car nearby. He had cut his throat and both wrists and taken a poison tablet, police said.

Whitworth was taken to Gallinger Hospital and was reported in a serious condition. He was unable to appear in Police Court yesterday. The woman was allowed to leave Emergency Hospital after treatment.

According to police, the quarrel between the two started Sunday afternoon. They had a date every night for the last year and a half, Mrs. Bailey said, but Saturday night she broke her engagement with him. Sunday he came to Mrs. Bailey's home to take her for a drive. She said he twisted her arm and slapped her. Then he drove to the home of the man who had been her escort Saturday night.

At the home of the "other man" he is said to have smashed some of the furniture and then left, taking Mrs. Bailey with him. Outside he began again to beat her, twisting her arm as he drove, she says. Witnesses called police, who arrested Whitworth and charged him with speeding, destroying private property and assault.

After posting bond, Whitworth sought Mrs. Bailey again and asked her to go with him to apologize to the "other man." She consented, and Whitworth's rival agreed not to prosecute. On Constitution avenue, Mrs. Bailey said, Whitworth stopped the car and took the tablet of poison. Then, she continued, he cut her with a razor. She jumped from the car and ran, finally falling unconscious in the street.

Pie Goeth Before A Fall—Cherry Lover Breaks Leg

Leesburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The desire for a cherry pie for dinner yesterday resulted in disaster for William Wallace Browning, 57, who lives near Lovettsville, Loudoun County.

Sitting on the front porch of his home, Browning gazed at a nearby cherry tree. He told his wife he wanted a pie. She agreed to make it.

Browning, with a bucket, climbed the tree. A limb broke. Browning fell to the ground. He is in the Loudoun County Hospital with a fractured leg.

British Ready To Talk Turkey On Navy Claim

Will Reveal Minimum Demand Under World Agreement.

London, June 25 (AP).—Having stated her claim for a big increase in naval strength, Great Britain is now ready, it was said authoritatively today, to tell representatives of the United States how far she will go in reducing that claim through an international agreement.

Further details of the British position, as well as her heretofore unrevealed stand on limitation, are expected to be outlined when the bilateral discussions of the 1935 Naval Conference are resumed tomorrow or Wednesday.

U. S. Position Unchanged.

The Americans have not deviated from their position as "good listeners," a spokesman said today, and have made no request for amplification of any kind.

The British claim for more warships represents that nation's maximum position, it was stated, and indicates the amount of naval strength that can be expected in event efforts to reach a new agreement are unsuccessful.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald conferred briefly today with Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at Large, at a luncheon which MacDonald gave in honor of Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the American President. The luncheon was attended by high-ranking diplomats and government officials.

British Told to "Wake Up."

Meanwhile press dispatches from Tokyo told of widespread interest there in the speech of Commander Bolton Eyres-Monsell, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, in which he said Britain should "wake up" to the armament situation. He stated that this country alone has decreased its forces.

Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France is expected here July 8 for preparatory discussions with the British, and it is expected he will wish to discuss the entire European situation as well as naval matters.

The naval questions, however, it was stated, will be kept entirely separate from security pacts and other matters that may come up.

Gandhi Escapes Assassination

5 Injured in Bomb Blast 3 Minutes Before His Arrival in Poona.

Poona, India, June 25 (AP).—Mahatma Gandhi escaped death or injury by three minutes today as a bomb was exploded in front of the municipal hall where he was expected. Five persons were injured by the blast.

It was not determined immediately whether the explosion was directed against Gandhi himself, but the injured are supporters of the mahatma.

The bomb was hurled into a motor car which drew up in front of the building three minutes before Gandhi arrived to receive an address of welcome. The bomber escaped in the confusion.

A Boy Scout band apparently saved Gandhi's life. The band thought it was Gandhi's car and started playing.

The bombing was attributed to agents of orthodox Hindus, who oppose Gandhi's antiuntouchability campaign.

"It will not hinder my cause, but make it stronger," said Gandhi of the outrage. "If they think my body is so sinful they should have singled me out of the crowd and not injured innocent persons."

Salmon Run Is Large.

Boise, Ida. (U.P.).—Migrating 1,000 miles upstream, thousands of large salmon have reached the headwaters of the Columbia and Snake Rivers, according to the State Fish and Game Department. The fish, ascending in greater numbers than usual, travel up branches of the Snake River to spawn each year.

200 Farmers Join 50 Police To Hunt Hermit, Slayer of 2

Wolcott, Conn., June 25 (AP).—Deep in the snake-infested woods he knows so well, John Crowe was hunted tonight by police and farmers with bloodhounds as the killer of two neighbors.

Thus far his knowledge of the wild terrain has made it possible for the 60-year-old recluse to keep out of sight. But State policemen enlisted the aid of Wolcott natives equally skilled in woodlore and expressed confidence the slayer of Clarence Yuskis and Julius Karvauska would be tracked down before he could slip through the wild area.

Fifty State policemen and 200 farmers massed for the hunt, expecting to trap Crowe in some cavern or dugout.

Not a trace has been found of Crowe since he slew, apparently without provocation, the two men and wounded Yuskis' mother. But leaders of the posse scouted the suggestion he might have killed himself after he fled yesterday.

Uneasy farmers, fearing for the safety of their families, methodically covered mile after mile of ground. They were warned by police the hunted man was armed with a rifle and a pistol and had plenty of ammunition.

Guards also were stationed on all highways bordering the wild area. State policemen will cover every foot of ground in the township.

Investigators advanced the theory that Crowe may have become angered because the town threatened to foreclose on his property for back taxes, or that Crowe's jealousy might have been aroused over the prosperity of his neighbor.

Scouts Honor 7 Men For Aiding Boys' Work

Sea Diver To Lay Phone Cables in Superior Bay

Superior, Wis. (U.P.).—H. A. Grove, retired Navy officer and world famous deep-sea diver, has been engaged to lay telephone cables 28 feet below the surface of Superior Bay.

Grove has had 20 years experience deep-sea diving. His deepest dive was 210 feet to the foundered steamer Lakeland in Sturgeon Bay.

North Carolina Aids Gem Plant

Lapidiary Near Asheville Promoted to Handle Native Diamonds.

Raleigh, N. C. (U.P.).—There may even be diamonds in the rough in "them thar hills"—referring to the mountains of North Carolina.

In fact, some have been found. While it is not hoped to make this bit of Southern Appalachia an American Golconda, it is known that gems and precious stones abound there in sufficient quantities to warrant their utilization.

With this view, the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development is cooperating in the matter of securing the services of a lapidary who would be located near the city of Asheville.

It is believed that an expert gem cutter and jeweler thus employed could do a thriving business cutting and setting native stones.

While a few diamonds and a greater number of rubies have been found in the mountainous regions of western North Carolina, this section is best known for its amethysts, rhodolites and other semi-precious stones, including the famous aquamarine, a pale, bluish-green variety of beryl. This stone is found in abundance in and about the great feldspar and kaolin deposits. Properly cut and mounted the aquamarine is a most attractive stone.

Flight Realizes Dream For Civil War Veteran

St. Joseph, Mo. (U.P.).—In 1865 O. B. Lingle, Civil War veteran, was clerking in a general store at Cameron, Mo. The owner of the store returned from a buying trip to Chicago, and told about seeing the fantastic model of a weird contraption which was called an "air ship."

"I hope I live long enough to ride in one of those things," was Lingle's answer.

At 89 he fulfilled that wish by flying three miles a minute on a United Air Lines transport from Los Angeles to St. Joseph.

Forest Fire Depletes Tax Value of Timber

Salem, Oreg. (U.P.).—The great Wilson River forest fire of 1933 resulted in a decline of assessed valuation of timber in Tillamook County, Oregon, from $15,169,180 to $6,841,970, the State tax commission announced.

Tillamook formerly contained more timber than any other county of Oregon, Washington or Idaho.

Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc
Seagram's Seven Crown Blended Whiskey
Seagram's Five Crown Blended Whiskey

It's easy to understand why you are assured of such unvarying, guaranteed quality—
Seagram's holds the world's largest stocks of fully aged Rye and Bourbon whiskies

Through three generations . . . since 1857, the House of Seagram has carefully, skillfully distilled fine whiskies. Its reputation for superlative quality is brilliantly sustained in Seagram's 5 Crown and 7 Crown Whiskies.

Seagram's 5 Crown and 7 Crown Whiskies are now ready to fill an important need which the American public has increasingly felt . . . the need for whiskies of unquestioned, unvarying quality, at prices comfortably within your means.

World's largest stocks make this possible

Only a house such as Seagram's could possibly bring these whiskies to you at their moderate prices. Because today Seagram's actually holds the largest treasure of fully aged-in-the-wood Rye and Bourbon whiskies in the world! Because Seagram's has at its disposal distilling and aging facilities to replace these stocks as quickly as they are consumed.

Make the Professional Whiskey Buyers' Test Today!

We are so confident of the high quality of Seagram's 5 Crown and 7 Crown Whiskies that we can invite you to test them the way professional whiskey buyers test the costliest whiskies. Test Seagram's this way—even against whiskies selling at considerably higher prices. Once you have done this, we are confident you will always "ask for Seagram's and be sure!"

DISTILLERS SINCE 1857
Seagram's CROWN WHISKIES

Only Seagram's can ask you to make this test

1. POUR OUT. Use an ordinary tumbler if an aroma glass is not available. Pour in Seagram's Crown Whiskey. Swish around to wet the inside of glass.

2. POUR BACK. Pour whiskey back into bottle. You are making the test professional whiskey tasters use to test costliest whiskies.

3. WARM GLASS. Roll the glass between your palms for several minutes. This heats the glass and causes the aroma to rise.

4. INHALE AROMA. It will be mellow, smooth. The aroma of whiskies containing young, green whiskey is harsh, biting. Finally, verify by tasting.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The S. S. Corinthian will sail from New York today carrying members of Capital society across the ocean to northern European waters and a North Cape cruise. In a few days the group will be gliding in and out of cool fjords in the land of the Midnight Sun and visiting strange countries and towns.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison and their two little daughters have been in New York for several days preparatory to sailing today.

After the cruise, which will take them to Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, they will return to Sweden early in August to spend several weeks motoring and visiting with friends. Later they will go to England before sailing for this country.

Mrs. McLean on Cruise.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean with her son, Edward Beale McLean, jr., and her young daughter, Evalyn Beale McLean, will also be among the passengers on the Corinthian. At the end of the cruise they will visit in England for a short time before returning to Washington the middle of August.

Mrs. McLean's other son, John R. McLean 2d, has left for Cincinnati, where he will spend the summer working, having recently determined to go into the newspaper business, following the footsteps of his grandfather, the late John R. McLean, and his father, Mr. Edward B. McLean, owner of the Cincinnati Enquirer, on which paper young "Jock" will begin at the bottom of the business.

Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, the famous Mary Roberts Rinehart, who has been away from Washington for several months on a visit to Palm Springs, Calif., has returned to the East, and today will set forth on the vacation cruise of the Corinthian. Mr. Arthur Sinclair, of New York, and his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Sinclair, also will be among the passengers.

Others Plan Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Kaufmann and their sons, Roger and Aaron, will sail today on the Corinthian, and before returning to Washington in the early fall, will visit in Paris and London.

On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Scully, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Kate Hyde Scully, a debutante of two seasons ago, and their son, Mr. William Hall Scully, will sail aboard the Reliance for a North Cape cruise, which will take them to Russia and to other northern European countries.

The Scullys have been in Washington only briefly this year, having leased their beautiful home on Kalorama road to Mr. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner last winter. They spent the season in Miami, Fla., and since their return several weeks ago have been in an apartment at the Altamont. Former Gov. and Mrs. Gardner will close the house next week and will go to their home in North Carolina.

Mr. Joseph Dosher Weds Miss Fanny L. Barbour

The Church of the Transfiguration was the scene of a pretty, though quiet wedding last Saturday, when Miss Fanny Latimer Barbour became the bride of Mr. Joseph M. Dosher. The Rev. John J. Queally officiated.

Mrs. Moffat in Japan Visiting With Grews

Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffat, who left Washington several weeks ago, has arrived in Japan for a visit of some weeks with her parents, the United States Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew.

Mr. Moffat is remaining in town at his duties in the State Department and will be joined by Mrs. Moffat, who was formerly Miss Leila Grew, in the autumn.

Sards Sail on July 4 For England, Germany

Mrs. Ingalls Sard, with her daughter, Miss Abigail Sard, and her son, Russell Sard, jr., will sail on July 4 aboard the Manhattan for Europe.

After spending some time in England, Mrs. Sard and her family will go to Munich, Germany, where Miss Sard and young Mr. Sard will remain through next winter studying music.

Mr. Kermit Roosevelt, of New York, is at the Willard for several days.

Mrs. John S. Parker has had as her guest for the week-end Miss Emily Murray, of Goshen, N. Y. Miss Alice Parker and Miss Priscilla Parker, daughters of Mrs. Parker, will arrive in New York Thursday aboard the Manhattan after spending eight weeks visiting in England and Holland.

Distinguished Visitor in Washington

Underwood & Underwood.

SENORA DE LOPEZ, wife of the President-elect of Colombia, who with her husband, Senor Dr. Don Alfonso Lopez, and daughter, Senorita Maria Lopez, is spending a short time in the Capital. They are being extensively entertained here.

OFFICIAL and RESIDENT

Society Notes

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, arrived in London, England, on Sunday and is the guest of the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James and Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, where she will remain until the first of next month, when she will go to Aberdeenshire, Scotland, to visit her nephews and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fellows, who accompanied her to England. Later she will go to the Continent and spend some time in France.

Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Engineers, United States Army, is at the Shoreham while in Washington for a brief period, having arrived in New York on the S. S. Panama Sunday afternoon from Colon. Mrs. Brown and their son, Sandy, remained in Panama.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis have returned to Washington after spending the week-end with Mrs. Charles H. Babin at her place at Southampton, Long Island. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bostwick, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, are at their country home at Roslyn, Long Island, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Distler and their children will leave today for Spring Lake, N. J., to open their house for the summer. They plan to return to their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue the end of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare, who have divided their time during the past winter between their country place at Warrenton, Va., and their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel, have gone to their summer home near Simsbury, Conn.

Miss Benedicta Gannon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James A. Gannon, has returned to Washington after spending two months traveling. She visited Havana, Panama, Hollywood, San Francisco and Seattle, and on the return trip stopped in Chicago to attend the World's Fair.

Commander Frank Loftin, U. S. N., and Mrs. Loftin have closed their apartment at the Shoreham temporarily and are visiting Mrs. Loftin's father, Mr. John H. Reeder, in southern Maryland, for six weeks.

Mrs. Hert to Leave Soon for Kentucky.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert has closed her apartment at 1785 Massachusetts avenue for the summer, and is at the Mayflower before going to her home in Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dennis left Washington yesterday for Atlantic City, where they will spend some time at the Marlborough-Blenheim, where the former will recuperate from a recent illness.

Mrs. B. Erlebacher, who makes her home at the Woodley Park Towers, left Washington Sunday for New York, whence she will sail on Friday for a North Cape cruise aboard the S. S. Kungsholm. She will visit Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Russia and Ireland, arriving in Paris about the latter part of August. She will spend several days in Paris before sailing for New York, where she will arrive about September 1.

Mrs. Charles Schwartz and her sister, Mrs. S. P. Pack, were hostesses at luncheon and bridge yesterday at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Rose Wallach Merriam will leave Washington Thursday morning for Newport, R. I., where she will spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Woodbury Blair.

Mrs. Ewers Will Sojourn With Sons in Oregon.

Mrs. Lula Adams Ewers, who has made her home at the Carlton for several years, will leave today for Portland, Oreg., to be with her sons, Mr. Bradley A. Ewers and Mr. Byron F. Ewers, indefinitely.

The Women's National Press Club will hold its last scheduled luncheon of the season at the Willard Hotel today. Mrs. Francis Parkinson Keyes will describe her recent trip to Germany. Mme. Robert Dordet, French newspaper correspondent, and others will be guests. Mrs. Genevieve Herrick, club president, will preside.

This is the second annual Colorado picnic. Advance reservations have been made by Representative Lawrence Lewis, of Denver; Mr. Wayne Williams, Col. Claude D. Jones, Mrs. P. W. Chappell, Mr. Terry McAdams, Mr. Oscar Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Fuller, among many others.

Ruth O. Meeker Bride Here of Robert Lehman

Bryan's Granddaughter Wed at Methodist Building to New York Banker.

The Minister of Denmark, Ruth Bryan Owen, yesterday announced by cablegram from Copenhagen the Washington marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Owen Meeker, to Robert Lehman, of New York, a cousin of Gov. Herbert Lehman, according to the Associated Press.

Unable to be present at the wedding, which occurred almost coincidentally with receipt of the cablegram, the Minister, nevertheless, participated in the plans.

The couple came to the Capital from New York to be married by her friend, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, in which Mrs. Owen served for four years as a Florida member.

The ceremony took place yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Methodist Building, in which Mrs. Owen had an apartment while living here. Only immediate relatives of the bridal couple, including John Bryan, brother of the bride, were present.

Lehman is a member of the banking firm of Lehman Brothers, New York, and is a director of several corporations. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lehman, of New York. An earlier marriage, to Mrs. Ruth Rumsey Lehman, resulted in divorce.

The bride, a granddaughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was educated in Roedean School, near Brighton, England, and Harris School in Florida. Her acquaintance with Lehman dates back to her school days.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehman plan to make a wedding trip to Europe soon, and will go first to Denmark to visit Minister Owen, later visiting the groom's parents, who are in Paris. They will make their home in New York.

Mrs. Lehman and William P. Meeker, of Baltimore, were divorced last November.

Davidges to Leave For Summer Home

Journey to New Hampshire Set Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Washington Davidge, their daughter, Miss Martha Davidge, and young son, John W. Davidge, jr., will leave Washington Thursday for their summer home, Mount Prospect, at Lancaster, N. H.

Mr. Davidge will return to Washington after the Fourth of July holiday next week, and will join his family for short stays through the summer.

Miss Davidge will be among the debutantes of next season. She will be presented to society at a tea to be given by her parents Friday, November 30, in their home on Rock Creek Drive. Mr. and Mrs. Davidge will also entertain at a ball on December 22, at Grasslands, for their daughter. Miss Davidge is a granddaughter of the late former Secretary of War, Mr. John W. Weeks.

Miss Brooke Becomes Bride Of Mr. Bowling

Lawn on Rockville Estate Is Scene of Wedding Ceremony.

The beautiful estate, Beall Mount, near Rockville, Md., was the scene of a charming wedding yesterday afternoon when Miss St. Clair Brooke, daughter of Mrs. William Adair Brooke, became the bride of Mr. William Sinclair Bowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benjamin Bowling, of Chevy Chase.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Irvin Brooke, to an altar improvised on the lawn against a background of growing rose vines in full bloom. She wore her mother's wedding gown of cream-colored crepe de chine over a taffeta foundation. The bodice was made with a square neck and long tight sleeves puffed at the shoulders. The long full skirt was trimmed with ruffles of accordion-pleated mousseline de soie, which formed the train. She wore a short jacket of duchess lace. Her veil of ivory tulle fell from a cap of princess lace, which lace also bordered the train, and sprays of orange blossoms were fastened to her veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor was Mrs. J. K. Fouts, of Philadelphia, sister of the bride. She made a charming picture in a frock of pale pink organdie with a high pleated ruffle collar, and ruffles on the skirt which formed a short train. She wore an old-fashioned bonnet of the same shade of organdie covered with tiny ruffles which fastened under the chin, and her bouquet was of pink roses and blue delphinium. The maid of honor was the bridegroom's sister, Miss Rose Bowling, who wore a frock of aquamarine blue organdie, made with rather a low decolletage, and a long full skirt trimmed with ruffles, and wore a picture hat of pink organdie trimmed with flowers of various shades and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses and blue larkspur. The best man was Mr. Kenneth T. Morris, of New York.

The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Joseph A. Little, of Bethesda, was followed by a reception for about 500 guests in the house, which was decorated with large vases of roses. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Brooke, mother of the bride, who wore a handsome gown of white lace, and Mrs. Bowling, who was gowned in black lace and chiffon.

Mr. Bowling and his bride left later in the evening for a wedding trip through the South, the latter wearing a yellow and cocoa-brown ensemble with a brown crepe hat and accessories of brown. They will be at home after July 9, at 3812 Harrison street, Chevy Chase.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Seipp, of Middleburg, Va., entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Mrs. Long to Visit Capital in Autumn

Envoy's Wife Will Present Daughte to Society.

Mrs. Breckinridge Long, wife of the United States Ambassador to Italy, who has recently returned to Rome from London, where she and her daughter, Miss Christine Long, were presented at the first court of the season at Buckingham Palace, is planning to come to Washington next fall to remain for two months.

Mrs. Long and her daughter will spend November and December in the Capital. While here, Miss Long will be presented to society and will participate in the debutante activities.

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, widow of Col. Imbrie, who was United States Consul General to Persia, will entertain at dinner next Monday night at the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York for Senora de Sacasa, wife of the President of Nicaragua, who has been visiting in Washington for the last several weeks.

Ancient Herbs Grace Tiny Capital Garden

Sweet Marjoram, Thyme, Chives and Rue Among Variety That Perpetuates Rare Scents and Flavors Against Onslaught of Centuries.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

THE GENTLE wraiths of lords and ladies of yesterday wander up and down the tiny paths of a magic plot of land, 4 by 16 feet, in Washington. It is named "The Herbary," in meticulous keeping with the precise requirements of the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary.

A cavalier wraith stoops to pluck a sprig of rosemary to weave into a "Tussie-Mussie" for his lady fair. And a Tussie-Mussie—may it please you—is what Parkinson calls "a nosegay both for sight and smell." Another writer tells us "A Tussie-Mussie was the most beloved of nosegays, and often was made of flowers mingled with sweet-scented leaves."

And the lady fair laughs with sheer joy when she sees the quaint fern-like leaves of Burnet nodding "good morning" to its neighbor Rue.

"As far as the parsley and the rue," she murmurs to her knight, who now has added a leaf of purple ribbed basil and sweet woodruff to his dainty bouquet.

All the little plants in "The Herbary" laugh at the sally. They remember perhaps that Rue is the traditional "Moly" which Mercury gave to Ulysses that he might the better withstand the enchantment of Circe. Shakespeare used it as a symbol of repentance in "Hamlet" but its more ancient meaning was clear vision and understanding.

The herbal magic came to this little garden via the cottage herb sale held by All Hallows' Guild, the Garden Guild of Washington Cathedral, this spring. The little plants were collected and then planted with that inward prayer for sun, rain, and good luck, known to all who love the good earth and entrust such treasures to its loving care.

One of the plants was a tiny one marked "Borage." Behold, within six weeks it has grown into a handsome bush nearly a foot high. And it has blossomed in lovely racemes of blue flowers, a five-petaled blue corolla in each blossom. With the blossoms, one may make a dainty confection, "Blue Borage Stars."

Confection of Herbs.

Here is the recipe:

Dip both sides of the Borage blossom in the whipped white of eggs to which one-half teaspoon of water has been added. Or the egg may be painted on top of the blossom with a camel-hair brush. On your tea table your guests will first exclaim at the beauty of the Borage Stars and then enjoy nibbling them.

As you gaze at the Herbary, a tiny box bush flourishing therein recalls a touching incident of American history. It was Dolly Madison's wedding day and it had been a gay one. At last, close the bride handed a sprig of box from her bouquet to a guest who cherished it and planted it in what is now the Cathedral Close. From that sprig has grown the beautiful box which bears the name of Dolly Madison in memory of her gracious act.

The fragrant odor of another plant is a reminder that herbs are not only for odor and beauty but for taste as well. It is sweet marjoram and, with its garden mates, thyme, tarragon, chives and a bit of sweet chervil, makes up a "faggot" for omelat with herbs, a truly succulent dish and one fit to tempt the palate of the veriest epicure. This is the way it is made:

Omelet With Herbs.

One tablespoon of milk to each egg used, salt and pepper to taste, a half teaspoon of butter for each egg, melted in an iron frying pan. Beat whites and yolks until light, add hot milk, one tablespoon to an egg, and chopped herbs to taste. Turn into the melted butter, brown and fold, garnish with parsley or chervil leaves. If desired, a light, fluffy omelet is achieved by beating the yolks and whites separately, combining with milk, and adding chopped herbs just before folding. This recipe is from a charming book on "Herbs," written by Helen Noyes Webster, who has rediscovered much long-forgotten herbal lore.

Time presses and the gentle wraiths have disappeared, frightened away mayhaps by the whir of automobile wheels in the lane. Within the Herbary, however, its inhabitants each tell a story of mystic meaning for those who can hear the things of the spirit.

There is the sturdy green-leaved mint justifying the dictum of an ancient scholar who wrote: "Mints were ever a good posie for students to smell of for it quickens the brain."

Nearby are the delicate leafed stalks of Southernwood. From the Chinese comes the secret of its use, when dried and powdered, as incense. A thousand years before Christ was born, a Chinese poet had this to say of it:

We load the sacrificial stands
Of wood and earthen ware;
The smell of burning Southernwood
Is heavy on the air.

It was our father's sacrifice
It may be they were eased.
We know no harm to come of it;
It may be God is pleased.

Charm for Bees, Too.

The bees have found a charm in the Herbary, too. It is in the dainty flowers, blue, purple and pink, of thyme plants contributing, in this modern age, of their sweet selves to make wild honey, even as their ancestral plants did in the days of Vergil on the slopes of Hymettus. And, for the new matrons of June, the Herbary yields its spray of rosemary, which, tied into the bride's bouquet, signifies a happiness never to fail.

What of the roses which line the wall behind the Herbary? They are not out of place, for, as Mrs. Webster writes:

"The rose, of as ancient a lineage as the lily, has been loved since the dawn of history for its beauty, fragrance, and beneficent healing. Rose petals steeped and boiled with honey made the famous remedy, honey of roses, for sore throats and ulcerated mouths."

Four by 16 feet is this Herbary within the limits of the District of Columbia. But it contains more romance, joy, fragrance and history than prosaic gardens many times its size. It is truly a garden of sweet and other herbs, the fragrant harbinger of a better and more peaceful world.

D. C. Federation To Make Study Of Vital Issues

Birth Control, Pensions Are Among Subjects Holding Over Till Fall.

PLANS to make further study of the five controversal subjects discussed at the recent council meeting of the General Conference of Women's Clubs were made at a special meeting of the District Federation yesterday at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The subjects are: Birth control, sterilization, old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and the equal rights amendment. The study of these subjects will be undertaken when the federation resumes its regular meetings in October.

* * * *

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District federation, gave a report on the council meeting at Hot Springs, and told of the arguments for and against the subjects in controversy. Other reports on the convention were made by Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, general federation director from the District of Columbia; Mrs. Samuel A. Swiggett, delegate from the Columbia Heights Arts Club, and Mrs. J. Edwin Reid, president of the Sunshine and Community Society.

* * * *

The District federation received special mention at the Hot Springs council for the work done by its department of press and publicity, of which Mrs. Ruth H. Snodgrass is chairman, and for its radio programs, of which Mrs. Helen Morrison Hunter is chairman.

President Installed.

MISS Mae Murray, newly elected president of the Washington unit of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was formally installed at 7 o'clock last night at the organization's annual dinner at the National Woman's Country Club.

Other newly elected officers of the local branch are Miss Martha Edward, vice president; Mrs. Pauline Everhart, corresponding secretary; Miss Carrie Davis, recording secretary; Miss Emily Clark, treasurer, and Miss Mary Anderson and Mrs. Ada Jean Bennett, directors.

Maryland Democrats.

DEMOCRATIC women of the Bladensburg District will organize into a club at a meeting tonight in St. Luke's Parish Hall, Bladensburg, Md.

Prominent club women of Maryland who will speak are Mrs. Charles E. Roach, past president of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland; Mrs. Arthur McFadden, chairman of the Southern Maryland branch of the United Clubs; Mrs. J. Enos Ray, of the Chillum Club; Mrs. Mary Moffet and Mrs. Daisy La Coppidan.

Mme. Robert Dordet, French newspaper correspondent, and Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keys, who will talk on her recent journey to Germany, will be among the guests of honor at the last regular weekly luncheon of the season of the Women's National Press Club at 1 o'clock today at the Willard Hotel.

Mrs. Mary Haslup, Maryland State president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and Mrs. Jessie W. Nicholson will speak at the annual convention of the Montgomery County Chapter of the W. C. T. U. opening this morning in the community house at Sandy Spring, Md.

The morning session will be held from 10 until 12 o'clock before a box luncheon. The afternoon session will be followed by a pageant, "The Urn of Destiny," presented by the Christian Citizenship department.

Another Approval Of Shorts Voiced

BALTIMORE, June 25 (Spl.).—Shorts as part of the costume of girl tennis players in the public parks of Baltimore have been given official approval by George Leroy Nichols, park superintendent.

"If they're decent, they're all right, so far as I am concerned," Mr. Nichols said.

"Our grandmothers thought a lot differently about such things than we do. Times have changed, and shorts are generally accepted as fulfilling the precepts of both modesty and decency."

A recent controversy in York, Pa., over the wearing of shorts by girl tennis players in the public parks of that city, led to Mr. Nichols' comment.

Women Grads Find Marriage Grand Career

Half One College's Alumnae Wed Four Years After Graduation.

MARRIAGE is still the favorite career for women graduates from New York State College of Home Economics. More than 50 per cent of this year's class will become wives within the next three or four years, if they follow the example set by alumnae.

Six hundred and twenty of the 1,186 women who received their degrees since 1911 have become married homemakers, most of them marrying three or four years after leaving college.

Their Occupations.

Eighty-seven of the 620 married graduates are engaged in work outside their homes. At least half of the 87 are teachers, seven are dietitians, six are home demonstration agents, and five are in cafeteria work. The rest are divided among a variety of positions that includes chemist and clerk.

The 620 married graduates have 769 children. Three of that number are adopted, eight are stepchildren.

Of the 525 unmarried alumnae only 43 are unemployed. The majority are teachers. This group numbers 213. Eighty-six are employed by institutions, mostly as dietitians.

The Unmarrieds.

Forty-eight of the unmarried graduates have become business women, 21 are doing graduate work, 14 are studying scientific work or medicine, 12 are engaged in welfare work, and 10 are working in department stores. Four journalists and one farmer account for the remainder of the unmarrieds.

Protection of Jobless Urged by Woman Voter

It's the Only Thing That Will Prevent Chaos When the Next Depression Comes Round, Maintains Mrs. Horace Lamb.

TALK of the next depression finds the average American incredulous or uninterested. History to the contrary, he refuses to believe such despair can twice envelop a Nation.

"But the next depression is inevitable, and only unemployment insurance can prevent chaos when it comes," Mrs. Horace Lamb, chairman of the government and economic welfare department of the League of Women Voters, said yesterday. Mrs. Lamb is in Washington to attend a meeting of the National board of the league, a strong supporter of the unemployment insurance bill of old-age pensions.

"People must understand that unemployment insurance is not a dole," Mrs. Lamb asserted. "It is a necessary protection against the insecurity of our existence, and does much more for the self-respect of the worker than the form of relief we now have."

Many Duties.

An earnest young woman with alert gray eyes and a surprisingly shy smile, Mrs. Lamb finds time to manage a home, care for two small children, and take an active part in civic affairs. She has been interested in economic and social welfare since her college days at Bryn Mawr, and is the author of several publications on disarmament, war debts, League of Nations, and Pan-American questions.

"This unemployment insurance is essential for many reasons," she explained. "It will tend to stabilize employment. It is a logical method of caring for the unemployed. Most important of all, it will keep up the purchasing power during the time of depression. If the unemployed are receiving barely enough money to live on, purchasing power can not increase, and the depression continues in a vicious circle. I do not believe the insurance will make relief unnecessary, but it will relieve the pressure on relief organizations."

Mrs. Lamb believes women have a definite contribution to make in shaping the economic policy of the Nation.

Welfare Viewpoint.

"Men think of all legislation as it effects their business," she explained. "But women can tackle problems from the public welfare point of view. Women are just waking up to the fact they are citizens as well as wives and workers. And in the last few years they have been taking an increasing, intelligent interest in Government and economic welfare.

"They are especially interested in what the NRA is doing, and how the different emergency organizations affect their daily lives. The League of Women Voters has been conducting study groups on these subjects, and they are always crowded. Women not only demand this information—they eat it up. And they read every book they can find on economic legislation."

Women are in a position to dictate to employers and legislators because they represent 90 per cent of the purchasing power of the country, Mrs. Lamb said.

"Today they are conscious of their power," she said, "and are using it to bring about the economic betterment of the Nation. Women should not vote for laws for partisan reasons. They should study each new bill carefully to see if it will be beneficial to the Nation before they vote. In this way they can have a powerful influence in making the economic laws of our country."

ONLY UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE can prevent chaos during the next depression, Mrs. Horace Lamb, chairman of the economic welfare department of the League of Women Voters believes. She urges women to study economic problems and shape National economic policies.

Mail Friends To Meet Here At Convention

Members of Everywhere League Formerly Just Correspondents.

FACTORY hands and college professors, commercial artists and bricklayers, persons of every conceivable occupation and from every walk of life are joined together through the Everywhere League of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing. Some of these persons, known to each other only by letter, will meet this week at the federation's annual convention here.

In 1930 a Wellesley graduate afflicted by poor hearing started with a group of 10 persons and organized the Everywhere League, which has grown to include 500. Her purpose was to give an outlet of expression to those hampered by deafness and further removed from social contacts by living in isolated places.

Circulating Corespondence.

"Round robin" letters figured in her plans. One person wrote to another. The latter wrote a letter and sent both letters on to the next person in the group. The letters were kept circulating. In this way widely scattered persons came to know each other through the medium of the mails.

So that men and women of more or less the same interests may be grouped together, Mrs. Laura Stovell, director of the league, carefully combs all the letters of application. In this way those who have little in common are kept from the same group. But to assure diversity and interest, the groups are shaken up every two years, so that members may come to know nearly everyone in the league.

Argument by Mail.

They write each other about every conceivable subject, says Mrs. Stovell. They argue, too. As the letters go round and round, somebody may make a remark about a certain book. The third person down the line may disagree. Everybody enters in. The result, she declares, is stimulating. One girl who's reading was confined to Black Beauty and perhaps Pollyanna, became so interested in the things her correspondents were discussing that she started in on a private pursuit of knowledge. Now she can discuss Hemingway with the best of them.

Beside merely being chatty by letter, the members go in for more serious things. Study groups have been formed. They study all sorts of subjects in this way; Bible, modern poetry, all about stamps, commercial art.

About 50 members of the league are attending the Hard of Hearing convention, which began yesterday.

Physically Speaking, Freshman Found to Have Gone Into Slump

COLLEGE freshmen of today are less physically perfect than those of ten years ago, according to a recent study conducted at the University of Cincinnati by Oliver M. Nikoloff, associate professor of physical health education at the Ohio school.

Examining the records of 1,000 freshmen who entered the university between 1918 and 1922 and 1,000 who entered between 1928 and 1932, Prof. Nikoloff found the recent group had six times as many postural defects as the group that matriculated ten years earlier.

In addition to postural troubles, cases of goiter, chest rales, and ringworm have increased rapidly. Heart disease, although more prevalent among the recent freshmen, was increasing slowly.

Both groups had about the same amount of defective vision, but only about half as many of the recent freshmen wore glasses. This was attributed to the depression, as was increased dental troubles.

Only two per cent of the students of ten years ago had their tonsils removed. Thirty-seven per cent of the recent group had their tonsils out, yet there were more cases of diseased tonsils among the recent freshmen.

To balance these health shortcomings, there was a decided increase in stature and a slight one in weight of the average college freshman today as compared with an average freshman of ten years ago, Prof Nikoloff discovered.

The recent group of 1,000 students averaged more than an inch taller than their predecessors on the campus. The recent freshmen were also a little younger than those in the earlier group.

Rural Rehabilitation Provides Them With New Hope in Life

Depressingly Ramshackle Homes Are Giving Way to Attractive Houses in Ideal Community Groups Where Everything Is Handled Cooperatively.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE HARDSHIPS of the pioneer woman were no more numerous nor more appaling than those of the tenant-farmer's wife whose house is a lean-to shack, and whose time is taken up with cooking, milking, washing, ironing, canning and working in the fields if she has any spare time.

Nor did the pioneer woman face more disheartening problems than the woman of today whose drab existence is centered within the four walls of a slum dwelling.

Such women, no doubt, regret there is no frontier with opportunities beckoning as they beckoned the pioneer—opportunities to begin a new life in new surroundings.

Now, however, the rural rehabilitation project, being worked out under the Federal Relief Administration, is providing a frontier whereby the needy may begin a new life.

For the first time in three-quarters of a century the poverty-stricken housewife, the tenant-farm woman, the slum dweller, and even the mother who has sheltered her brood in a crowded factory district, is facing a promising future through the medium of a new rural housing project.

Attractive Communities.

Under this plan, many unemployed men and women will have the opportunity to go to a frontier of their own making. Family groups will join with other family groups of common interest and purpose in making a cooperative community where all will have attractive homes and means of supporting themselves.

Plans for such ideal communities were explained yesterday by David R. Williams, widely known Texas architect, now assistant to Col. Lawrence Westbrook, of the Federal Emergency Relief.

"We want," he said, "to eliminate the old, ramshackled type of rural house in favor of a more comfortable and attractive type of farm house in a community where all buildings will be erected in the manner of early houses of the region, from material available in the locality.

"While today there is no frontier as our forbears knew it, there is a back-to-the-soil-movement. Yet how many unemployed men and women can be enthusiastic about going back to the loneliness and desolation of worn-out, misused farms with their unattractive houses and straggling fences? If our plans work out successfully the ugly, uncomfortable rural house will be relegated to the past."

Mr. Williams said plans were already being carried out to provide housing facilities and ideal community farm life in five districts. The first of these is under way at Woodlake, Tex. A million dollars was set aside from the CWA funds for this purpose, and 100 families from the relief rolls in Houston, Tex., were chosen to make up the community.

In planning the houses Mr. Williams adhered to one of his favorite architectural principles, that of making the houses indigenous to their surroundings. After seven years devoted to studying rural homes throughout the country, he is convinced they should be suitable enough to their locality to seem almost to "grow out of the ground where they stand."

Beauty Is Cheaper.

"It is cheaper to build a pretty house than an ugly one," he went on, "because beauty depends on simplicity and function. If all imitation, use of unnatural ornament or of any material that is not structural and purposeful is eliminated, a beautiful, pleasing and picturesque dwelling is much more likely to be the result. The houses at Woodlake have been made attractive by building them of native material along architectural lines in keeping with the background.

"Furthermore, we have stressed the community as the unit. The houses conform with the general plan and are incidental to the community as a whole."

With each family allotted three acres for garden, orchard and livestock facilities in the village and a 12-acre tract outside the village for farming purposes, the community will become self-supporting, Mr. Williams believes. There is, for instance, a shop for making rawhide-bottomed chairs. And there is a trading post where handicrafts will be exchanged and other business carried on cooperatively.

Community life at Woodlake will center around the clubhouse now nearing completion. Built of logs with a stone fireplace and roughhewn beams, it fits in with its surroundings. Women of the village will meet here, serve meals from the community kitchen and work out cooperative plans for entertainments to be given at the clubhouse. Here they may come with their husbands and children on Sunday for church. Here during the week they may meet to plan the interior decoration of their homes, to make their draperies, their rag rugs and later to exhibit their handicrafts.

Plans for four other communities of this type have already been worked out, according to Mr. Williams. If successful, the project will precipitate a more definite back-to-the-soil movement, he believes, and communities similar to Woodlake will eventually becken to the employed and draw them in great numbers from unattractive rural homes, the slums and congested industrial centers.

Children's Vote Snubs Russians

MOSCOW, June 24 (U.P.).—Despite efforts of the Soviet regime to popularize the work of "proletarian writers," a census of Russian children has revealed that their favorite authors are the classicists also loved by children in capitalistic countries.

The index of childish opinion also showed an aversion to "goody-goody" books and propaganda volumes filled with pictures of tractors and other machinery of the "five year plan."

This census of juvenile Soviet opinion was obtained by the famous revolutionary writer, Maxim Gorky, who publicly invited children throughout Russia to tell him what they liked to read.

Hobby Show Will Intrigue Doll-Lovers

Dolls of All Countries and Periods in Hard-of-Hearing Exhibit.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

HORSE SHOWS, style shows, automobile shows are nothing out of the ordinary. But a hobby show — that is something!

It's put on by the American Federation of Organizations of the Hard of Hearing, and just goes to show what wonders may be worked by the laws of compensation. Nature has arranged things so that losing one faculty usually results in the quickening of another.

One of the most interesting exhibits, if one may select one from so many, is the collection of dolls owned by Miss Helen Walter, of Staunton, Va. They look like a gathering of the nations. Each one is dressed to the last detail in the representative costume of its country.

Besides these doll dipolmats are mammy and pickaninny dolls, and others dressed like Godey fashion plates. Miss Walter designs dolls for decoration in almost any type home, Colonial, early American and others. Or she creates Paris models of 1934. Her display along with dozens of others is certainly worth a visit.

Bands and Bandeaux.

Few women do not like white hats with a change of bands to suit the costume. But few like to buy and make the band. They will find, however, if they visit a local shop they may buy these ribbons, most of them of tailored grosgrain with simple bow, ready to slip over the crown of the hat. There are some fascinating stripes, brown and white, green and white, red and tan, and brown and tan. There are also the solids in green, white or brown. All at 40 cents a piece.

Just a few feet down the aisle from these are some head bands, especially cut ribbons for hair bandeaux. These are available in black and white checks, or plaids, lavender, blue, pink or navy. And they cost only 15 cents.

Shades of the Nineties?

Whoever remembers the days of pompadours, spats and shirtwaists also remembers the little shirtwaist watches worn on a black velvet ribbon tucked in at the band of the skirt. This type watch has been taken as a pattern for some new, but old-fashioned looking, compacts. They're exactly the same shape and size.

The little tab on the end, which looks like it should be used for winding, controls the spring that opens the top of the compact. They are conveniently arranged for loose powder to enable a person to carry the same kind she uses at home. Those who inquire about the price will be astonished to find how reasonable it is.

For Comfortable Tramping.

Most people think of moccasins in connection with Indians, or as children's bedroom slippers. If they see those featured in a downtown store they will immediately think of camping trips.

They're of heavy leather, with thick, firm, but at the same time soft soles. There's nothing ornamental about them. Quite the contrary. They look like hardy, comfortable, satisfactory out of door slippers, and that's exactly what they are.

Although they come in both ladies' and men's sizes, they're liable to have a masculine appeal.

Buoy Beach Bags.

A Connecticut avenue shop has gone thoroughly nautical with it's beach bags. They're patterned after life buoys, even to the ship's rope around them. The centers — where the hole ought to be—are big round spots, either red or blue. The rest of the bag, is white canvas cut perfectly round. A small opening at the top unfastens to disclose a roomy interior lined with balloon rubber.

A Cream Polish.

There's a certain beauty shop downtown which uses a certain kind of nail polish. And the patrons seem to think it's a very satisfactory kind, for many of them have inquired where it could be bought, and put in their order at the supply company which sells it.

According to the young man here, who has taken a lot of these orders, they like it because of its cream base. Although it's a thick, liquid polish, it's concocted on a cream. And that, he says, is why it doesn't streak, and a very good reason why it stays on so tenaciously.

Russian Coffee Tables.

Shoppers who were interested in the vividly colored wooden Russian ware a few weeks ago might also like to see the tea and coffee table in the same pattern.

There are two types of these in the gift department of a downtown store. One is small enough to be used as an end table. The other, slightly lower and longer, an ideal size to place in front of a divan.

Sea Food Can be Pretty Fancy Even When Concocted at Home

Here Are Pointers for the Rudiments, Cooking and Shelling.

By Ann Barrett.

YEAR by year, as they become available to more people, there is less chance for shrimp, crabs and lobsters to live a life of isolation within their own shells.

When you want to cook them at home, always have the water (enough to cover) boiling and salted before you put live fish in. For lobster, use 1-3 cup salt (rock salt penetrates shell better) to each quart water. Put live lobsters in (one at a time and tail first). Boil 20 minutes. Remove claws and take out meat from claws and body, discarding inedible parts (liver, stomach and intestinal vein).

Cook hard-shelled crabs in boiling, salter water (1 tablespoon salt to each quart water) 20 minutes. Pull top and bottom shells apart, remove spongy, inedible portion near point end of shell, remove intestinal vein, and take out meat from body and claws.

Give your shrimp less time (only ten minutes) in boiling, salted water (2 teaspoons salt to each quart water) and drain them as soon as they are cooked. Then peel off the thin shell, and pick out (with a pointed paring knife) the dark cord that runs through the center of the shrimp, on the outside. Then you're ready for special recipes.

Seafood Cocktail.

For cocktail, you'll need 24 to 30 shrimp (depending on size) for four servings. Or 1¼ cups diced lobster or flaked crab. Chill fish very cold and mix with cocktail sauce. Or (in case of shrimp) put sauce in cocktail glass, set in bowl of ice, and hang shrimp over edge of cocktail glass as pictured. The sauce (have it very cold) goes like this: 1-3 cup catsup, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1½ tablespoons horseradish, 2 teaspoons onion juice, 1 tablespoon celery juice (scrape the stalks), 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 2 teaspoons salad oil, 1-16 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce, 4 drops tabasco sauce. Mix all together.

Deviled Crab.

For deviled crab, you'll need 1½ cups crab meat (flaked) and 4 large crab shells, washed. First make a sauce as follows: Melt 2 tablespoons butter and blend in 2 tablespoons flour (mixed with ¼ teaspoon dry English mustard). Next, slowly stir in 1 cup chicken stock or milk, and cook till thickened. Then add ½ teaspoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne pepper, ½ cup minced mushrooms (omit these if you like) and the crab meat.

Cook gently several minutes. Then add 1 teaspoon minced parsley and put mixture into crab shells (or clam shells or flat, individual baking dishes). Top with ½ cup fine, stale bread crumbs (first mixed with 2 tablespoons melted butter). Put shells on baking pan and bake at 375 degrees till brown.

Lobster Thermidor.

That elegant dish—lobster thermidor—takes 2 boiled lobsters (about 2½ pounds each) for 4 servings. Remove claws and split each lobster straight through the shell lengthwise. Remove all meat, cutting it into medium-sized pieces. Then make a sauce as follows: Melt 2 tablespoons butter and blend in 1 tablespoon flour mixed with ½ teaspoon dry English mustard, ¾ teaspoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, few grains Cayenne pepper. Then turn in 2-3 cup cream and stir till slightly thickened. Next add the lobster to sauce and turn the mixture into the four pieces of shell, placed in baking pan. Last, sprinkle the lobster mixture with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, and bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

How to Keep Well

Sunlight and Health.

Physicians have known for a long time that persons who live for a greater part of their lives without exposure to the sun do not develop normally and are more susceptible to disease. Recently great claims have been made relative to the curative power of the ultra-violet rays known to exist in sunlight. Observations made by competent physicians are now sufficiently specific in character to warrant the statement that sunlight is of definite value in the treatment of skin tuberculosis (lupus) and, when administered with skill, is a well-night indispensable healing measure in tuberculosis of the lymph glands, intestines, peritoneum, and bones and joints.

However, exposure to sunlight has in some quarters become a fad. The person who does not acquire a heavy coat of tan over most of the body during the summer months is looked upon as one who has wasted a great opportunity. Unfortunately, in acquiring this beautiful tan, the individual may have impaired some important body function.

Sunlight does act as a stimulant to circulation. Furthermore, it has an effect upon calcium metabolism and vitamin production. It has been definitly shown that ultra-violet rays have a prophylactic and curative effect in rickets. The proper use of the ultra-violet by the mother before the birth of the child and during the nursing period will help to prevent rickets.

Sun baths to be of real value must be taken at first for short periods of time, gradually increasing the exposure without burning and with the development of a slowl increasing tan. Because of the known danger that attends overexposure it is rarely wise to undertake a course of sunlight baths except under the direction of a physician familiar with the systemic effects of light.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If June 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. and from 4:15 to 8:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:15 to 8:15 a. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m.

On this June 26 be careful you do not run around in circles. Plan your work systematically, and stick to your schedule. The temptation will be to do things in the easiest way possible, but do not yield to it for it may make your work just twice as complicated. In matters involving money you will very probably be satisfied by the final results of your efforts. It might prove advisable to make definite engagements by telephone, if seeking to interview some business prospects, as it may prove difficult to see them by casually calling. If you contemplate entertaining this week, it might be advisable to do so in a very informal way. If you go in for too much conventionality, the restraint felt may react unfavorably on your guests' spirit. The lovelorn will find plenty of receptive ears to listen to their plaints.

If a woman and born on June 26, your degree of happiness and success in life may depend largely upon your mental attitude. If you will make it a habit to suppress or cast out depressing thoughts, replacing them with optimistic ones, and will refrain from talking pessimistically, your physical, mental and financial condition will undoubtedly be excellent. Your love for lots of attention makes matrimony essential for your complete happiness, and your husband should possess a lot of sentiment. Be sensible, however, in your demands and avoid being too exacting. Children instinctively love you, and you can exercise a great influence for good over them. Avoid reading books of a morbid nature.

The child born on June 26, as it grows up, should not be spoiled by overindulgence or petting. Children born on this date, as a rule, like a lot of pampering. Avoid giving them an overdose of this. If properly trained they usually develop into the finest types of men and women.

The man born on June 26, if he has a lot of backbone and will not give in when things do not break just the way he wants them to, will win out and become a financial success. If born on this date, you are not only capable, but a hard worker, and perseverance is all you need to eventually reach the topmost rung of the ladder of good fortune. Your nature, craving affection, makes a wife essential for your happiness. Being of frugal habits, endowed with good business judgment, and ambitious, you should acquire a good deal of money.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

Gerald Gerrish has advanced money to Martha Blaisdell on her own securities and spread the rumor that he has been supporting her. She upbraids him; he visits her apartment and while there, dies from a stroke. Herbert Cranston, her fiance, and Dr. Peter Baxter, who also loves her, smuggle the body from the apartment to avert further scandal.

NO one in the world, hearing Trudie, could have told that she had been aware of the circumstance she now related over an hour ago. Cranston played up.

"Good lord!" he exclaimed. "What on earth——"

Trudie handed him the receiver and he spoke to Baxter.

"What's this, Pete?" he asked.

"Gerrish came into my office suffering from alcoholism and died before I could do anything. So I couldn't make it for luncheon. Sorry to miss you. I hope I'll see you again soon."

"I certainly hope so," said Cranston. "I'm coming in town shortly. Perhaps you could dine with me at my house."

"I'd like that," said Baxter. "About 8?"

"Right," said Cranston.

He hung up just as Martha entered the room. He walked swiftly toward her.

"I thought you were taking a nap," he scolded.

"I tried to. I think I did fall asleep for a few minutes. But I just can't stay up there alone. Have you heard from Pete?"

Fear Unfounded.

"Just this minute finished talking with him. He's dining with me at my house tonight."

Fright showed in her eyes.

"You mean that——"

He laughed and hoped his mirth was not too hollow.

"Everything is O. K."

"Did he say that?" she asked.

"He didn't say anything to the contrary, and if it weren't all right he certainly would have mentioned it."

"Perhaps he'd have been afraid of being overheard," she suggested.

"You take that imagination of yours and do something to it," he said. "If he'd wanted to say anything private he could easily have gone to a telephone booth where no one could overhear. He simply wants to go over our stories again, just in case."

"I hope you're right."

"Of course he's right," said Letty. "When are you going into town?" asked Martha.

Crowded Hours.

Cranston looked at his watch. It was 5 o'clock. It seemed incredible that so much could have happened in so few hours.

"Pretty soon," he answered.

"Will you take me with you"

"Now, Martha, you can't go back to New York today," said Trudie. "You're going to stay right out here. Why, youll be all alone in New York, fretting and worrying. You're to stay here."

"Absolutely," said Cranston.

But the girl shook her head.

"You're sweet, Trudie. But I think I'll go to town. I have to go back there some time and it might as well be now."

There was decision in her voice and Trudie shrugged her shoulders, looking helplessly at Letty and Cranston. But despite the futility to protest, her lips parted to frame one when the telephone rang. She picked the receiver off the hook.

"The New York Blade wishes to speak with Miss Blaisdell," said a servant.

Fear Aroused Again.

Trudie put her hand over the mouthpiece. She whispered what the servant had just told her. Martha's face went white. Then, before Cranston could stop her, she seized the telephone.

"I'll speak to the Blade," she said. "This is Miss Blaisdell speaking."

"This is a reporter from the New York Blade," said a voice. "Did you know that Mr. Gerald Gerrish died this morning?"

"I just learned it a few minutes ago," she replied.

"He was your man of business, handled your financial affairs, didn't he?"

"He had done so," she admitted.

"There was some difficulty, wasn't there? The Blade is informed that he brought suit against you, claiming that he had advanced money on your promise to marry."

"His claim was false," she replied.

"But he had made the claim, hadn't he?" insisted the reporter.

"He had," she said.

"Have you anything further to add?"

"Except that I see no reason for a newspaper printing so trivial a matter," she said.

Nothing to Say.

"Nothing's trivial when it involves a name as well known as yours, Miss Blaisdell. The Blade hears that Dr. Baxter, in whose office Mr. Gerrish died, had quarreled with your business man."

"I know nothing of that," she replied.

"Then you've nothing else to say?"

Cranston stared at her.

"You did exactly the right thing, Martha," he declared. "I would have had you refuse to speak to him, and that would have made his story seem more important."

"I'll speak to every newspaper man who questions me," she stated.

"In which you're wise, although I wouldn't have said so a moment ago. Inasmuch as you admit the suit that ends all speculation, you deny its justice and let it go at that." His arm went around her. "You've not only courage, you have sense."

Publicity Inevitable.

She smiled up at him. The thing she had dreaded, newspaper publication of scandal, had arrived at last, and, oddly, was not as terrifying as in the distance it had seemed.

"If it stops there—if they don't find out the other matters of today——"

"Don't even carry them in your mind," counseled Trudie. "Of course they won't find out."

Martha smiled, and only the two women knew the courage it took for her lips to frame that smile. Then she sighed.

"The worst—at least I hope it's the worst—has happened. There's nothing to be afraid of, nothing to run away from any more. You see," she looked at Cranston, "I'm being brave and taking your word for it that no one will discover where Gerry died. So all I'm expecting to face is questioning about his suit against me. And I'd rather be in town, so that other newspapers won't say that I was visiting Trudie. Will you take me in now?"

"As if I minded what the papers say," protested Trudie.

Letty Supported Her.

But Martha shook her head.

"You've been kind; I won't repay your kindness by dragging you into this. Shall we go?" She turned to Cranston.

"Bert Cranston, if you fail that girl in any slightest way——"

"What makes you think I might?" he demanded.

"I don't think you will. But scandal—only, remember this, Bert. The mere fact that you marry her will make people discredit rumor about her. And the sooner you marry her the sooner rumor will die."

He smiled whimsically.

"I'd marry her tomorrow if she'd have me."

"Good man," said Letty.

Suspense Terrifying.

"It's funny," said Martha as they started off, "how a present danger is less terrifying than a future one."

"Shakespeare said something along those lines a long time ago," he smiled.

"Now that I know the newspapers will print something about myself and Gerry I really don't care much," she went on. "I know it isn't true, my friends know it isn't true, and what do I care about the opinion of strangers? If only," and her eyes darkened, "the other matter——"

"That's the one you're not to think of, much less mention," interrupted Cranston.

Bag Disposed Of.

"If the reporters come I'll receive them. If you're there, they'll enlarge on their stories because you're so well known. I'll be brave and I'll be calm. Trust me."

"I will," he said. "But may I phone you tonight?"

"I'd be unhappy if you didn't," she assured him.

With that he left her and drove to his house on Murray Hill. As he rode along he pondered on the futility of our plans. We run away from something and when it catches up with us are amazed that we bothered to flee from it. The whole trip to Long Island had been unnecessary today. No, it hadn't. They'd got rid of Gerrish's bag; also, they had arranged with Trudie and Letty that Martha's flight from the Lemming house would seem to be a simple lovers' quarrel. But even that seemed unimportant now. Its purpose had been to minimize any relation between Gerrish and Martha, but that relation, or Gerrish's lying version of it, would be in the newspapers tomorrow. So the trip had been futile.

Like eating fresh Grapefruit right out of the shell

Yet there's no bother or fuss of preparation

We've never held a "blindfold test" on this delicious grapefruit, but we are safe in saying that it would give fresh grapefruit a race.

Each can contains a generous quantity of tart, juicy segments of Florida's finest tree-ripened fruit packed in its own delicious juice. It's so quick and convenient to serve for breakfast or in salads.

Radio Waves and Ripples

MR. HARRY BUTCHER, WJSV's youthful but astute executive, frowned thoughtfully one day. "There is no local radio talent," he said. Mr. Vince Callahan, also an executive who does some keen managing at WRC, refuses to be quoted, but he's convinced that local talent does exist.

So N. B. C., with considerable faith in the power of its microphones to stand up, and ruthless disregard for the ministrations of fond parents, is now prepared to divert local radio talent in one grand parade through its WMAL studios for auditions Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8 p. m.

It starts tonight and the path of fame may not lead to big contracts but it will douse many a breakfast argument over sonny's voice or Marguery's beautiful coloratura soprano. Each aspirant will be given about 10 minutes to display talent. Interested persons are asked to send applications to N. B. C.'s studios here in care of "Washington Airbreaks," which is the name of the program, of course. Applicants will receive due notification for a personal audition.

Shannon Allen, N. B. C.'s local production manager, and Fred Shawn, with the cooperation of Carleton Smith, will sit in solemn silence over what's to come. And it will come.

* * * *

MRS. EUGENE MEYER, vice president of The Washington Post, continuing the series of talks by women who have achieved success in various vocations, will be the guest speaker on the Women's Radio Review today at 2:30 p. m. over an N. B. C.-WEAF network. Mrs. Meyer will have as the subject of her talk, "Opportunities for Young Women in the Newspaper Field." The wife of the newspaper publisher will speak from New York.

"HEAR the wives and mothers weeping
For the curse that rum has brought."

Daring but lachrymose . . . this ditty is a fair sample of the soulful style popular in the elegant "Eighties" when mutton-chop sleeves vied with jaunty side whiskers.

"It's what you'll hear when the "Tintype Tenor" makes his bow in a new series over WMAL featuring the songs of other days. Jack Parker, already known to N. B. C. audiences, will essay the difficult task of brushing the dust from such one-time favorites as "Billy," "Harrigan," "Peaches and Cream," "Up in a Balloon" and other tear-jerkers.

Maybe grandfather might also dust off his moustache cup with the gold filigree and mother might unearth those be-tassled portieres from the attic . . . they'd add to the ballads on this one. They didn't have electric fans in those days—only beer!

Ripples.

Elizabeth Lennox, contralto star of Everett Marshall's "Broadway Vanities", will be soloist with the New York Orchestra, under the direction of Nicolai Sokoloff at Weston, Conn., during July . . . The Voice of Experience will make personal appearances in Washington, Baltimore, Atlantic City and Philadelphia next month . . . When Vivienne Segal's nerves get the best of her during rehearsals, she steps outside the studio, turns three times on her heel, knocks on wood and swears politely . . . Sounds silly, but it makes her feel better . . . Kate Smith lost 40 pounds during her recent vaudeville tour . . . There was an international tangle at Columbia's New York studios the other night when Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French fliers, came around to take part in the Byrd Expedition broadcast . . They were late, couldn't find their studio and spoke no English . . . But it was easy for the page boys to figure out, because, if celebrities walk into the C. B. S. studios unannounced these days, it's a ten-to-one shot they're on the Byrd program.

WITH everyone looking wilted at N. B. C.'s studios in the Press Building yesterday, a mild wave of enthusiasm mingled with the hum of the electric fan.

WMAL is airing a new series to be known as "The White Trio," starring three brothers, John, 23; Gene, 20, and Dick, 18. All we know is that they're from Roanoke, Va., that John plays the piano and all have harmony intentions.

They'll be heard daily at 4:45 p. m. from WMAL with WBAL (Baltimore) also on the string. Maybe you heard their first broadcast Monday at that spot.

Whitecaps.

The famous rose bush in the above drawing was set out 30 years ago by Mrs. King, the present owner's mother. The property now belongs to Mrs. Catherine Dynes, of Whittier, Calif. In the 30 years of its life it has grown into a huge tree of roses, and has yielded over a million rosebuds.

At one time on the bush there were an estimated 180,000 blooms, this number being based on counting a part of the blooms and arriving at the total by comparative measurement. The bush virtually covers the Dynes residence.

Its trunk is 64½ inches around at the base, or about 20 inches in diameter: and one large branch is 22 inches in circumference. The branches spread out approximately 50 feet.

* * * *

The power of the human mind to go beyond actual experience is strikingly demonstrated in the life of Thomas Blacklock, Scottish poet of the eighteenth century. Although Blacklock was striken blind when he was six months old, and never in his life was able to see landscapes and flowers, he became a poet of note—and his works include many descriptive passages which rank high in the field of verse.

He was able to put into his own words the description of scenes which he never saw, and do it better than most people with normal sight. Blacklock also mastered several languages, including Greek, Latin, Italian, and French.

Cotton Leads With 66 in Britain

Kirkwood-Smith Qualify With 75's; Denny Shute Trails.

SANDWICH, England, June 25 (AP).—The four invaders from the United States today yielded the shotmaking honors in the first 18 holes to the 36-hole qualifying round for the British Open Golf championship to Tall Henry Cotton, a native pro, who burned up the Royal St. George's course with a record-breaking 66 to run up a four-stroke lead on the huge field of 300. The 72-hole championship proper begins Wednesday over St. Georges.

Nine shots behind, Gene Sarazen, winner in 1932 and the bookmakers' favorite, Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shot artist, and MacDonald Smith, the transplanted Scot now living in Nashville, Tenn., turned in 75's, which observers calculated would put them safely under the wire for the championship rounds.

Shute Posts 76.

Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, who won the title last year after a playoff with Craig Wood, and Robert Sweeney, a New Yorker attending Oxford, posted 76's, which also figured to get them by the first obstacle.

The first day's scores carded over the Royal Cinque Ports course in nearby Deal and at St. Georges indicated that a pair of 77's would suffice. No less than 108 players out of the record qualifying field of more than 300 shot 77 or better.

Cotton, the tall former Ryder Cup player, was out in 31 and home in 35 to shatter the previous record of 69 held jointly by a pair of amateurs—Douglas Grant, a former Californian now living in London, and Eric Smith, of Great Britain.

Cotton's great round gave the Briton a four-stroke bulge on his closest pursuers—D. H. R. Martin, a native amateur, and C. W. Thomson, a British pro, who posted 70's—and stamped him as England's chief hope to recapture the open crown which has been worn by Americans for the past decade.

Six Tie at 71.

Six were knotted together with 71's, Angel La Torre, of Madrid, five times former Spanish Open ruler; S. B. Roberts, a British amateur; Cecil Denny, Aubrey Boomer, John Burton, former North of England titleholder, and Bert Gadd.

Syd Easterbrook, of Bristol, and Harry Padgram, of Bromley, who with Cotton are looked upon by British experts as having the best chance of breaking up America's monopoly on the title, and Percy Alliss had 74's.

Sarazen, Kirkwood and Smith, who are generally regarded as an even bet against the field, made no particular efforts to knock the spots off the two qualifying courses. Sarazen and Smith at Royal Cinque and Kirkwood at St. Georges, played almost casually, causing a spectator following Kirkwood to remark:

"Cotton and the others will throw their weight about today and tomorrow, but watch these Americans when they start shooting for keeps."

Galleryites who followed Shute, however, gave the Philadelphian no more than an outside chance of repeating his title triumph of 1933. He had all manner of trouble with his clubs, particularly his wood shots, and gave the impression that he has lost both confidence and control.

Putting Very Poor.

The other trio of American professionals charged up their scores to the fast and tricky greens. They all indulged in three-putting, Sarazen partaking of the costly luxury no less than six times. Kirkwood had to roll up his trousers and wade in a muddy creek to play a recovery shot at the fourteenth, where he took a 6.

Cruickshank in Exhibition.

Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond (Va.) pro, will play in a match with Fred McLeod, Columbia pro; Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, and a fourth golfer yet to be selected, Thursday afternoon either at Chevy Chase or Kenwood.

Knight-Firpo Top Legion Program

Arena Nears Completion; Opening Bout Looks Like Natural.

WORK of building up the American Legion Arena progressed yesterday in a manner to reassure those who did not believe the fight site could be made ready for the inaugural program of punch headed by Joe Knight and Henry Firpo tomorrow night, as Al Foreman was tearing down his stocky frame in a manner to assuage the fears of those who thought he would not be able to make the required poundage for his bout with Pete Sarron at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

A large corps of workmen has been busy whipping the construction work on the legion's arena at Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast, into such shape that there now is no doubt that the site will be ready for customers of clout tomorrow. From Canada came word that the Canadian and British lightweight champion had whittled his weight down from 130 and would have no difficulty making the required 131.

Joe Knight in Town.

Joe Knight, one-half of the legion's inaugural battle, arrived yesterday afternoon with his entourage of handlers, apparently in the best of condition. Henry Firpo, the Louisville knockout king, will arrive today.

Knight, a 24-year-old southpaw from Cairo, Ga., is well known to local fight fans. Ranked second only to Champion Maxie Rosenbloom, he has defeated Bob Tow, George Courtney among others via the knockout route in local rings. He participated in one of the major engagements of the ring last year in a championship contest with Rosenbloom at Miami. Rosenbloom received the decision, but so much dissatisfaction was expressed over the award that the officiating referee received an indefinite suspension.

Firpo, a 26-year-old right-hand knockerout from Louisville, Ky., twice defeated former N. B. A. Light-heavy Champion George Nichols and holds wins over Jack Dillon, Bud Saltis, Willie Oster, Clyde Chastain, Rosy Kid Baker and many others and held Sammy Slaughter and Dave Shade to draws.

Foreman's Weight OK.

Harry Foreman, chief of his brother Al's managerial staff, advised Promoter Joe Turner from Montreal yesterday that the British lightweight champion now tipped the beam at 130, would pick up a pound or two en route to Washington and would very easily drop down to the required 131 by weighing-in time Friday. The articles of war signed by Sarron call for Foreman to weigh not more than 131. Foreman has refused to post a forfeit to guarantee this weight, but insists he will make the required poundage.

Pete Sarron, the Birmingham beak buster who meets Foreman in the Friday show, gradually decreased his preflight boxing yesterday, working only seven rounds as compared to a nine-round routine Sunday. He will continue his boxing practice against Roy Manley, Nay Palmer and Sammy Sweet at the Green Oaks Tavern until the day before the fight.

Six U. S. Stars Wimbledon Winners

Triumph of Wood Over McGrath Is Feature of Opening Day.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 25 (AP).—Six Americans, including all five members of the Davis Cup squad, remained in the men's singles after the first day's hips, competition for the all-England tennis champions, but the list may be cut in half tomorrow because of increasingly severe competition.

The United States contingent survived by far the stiffest portion of today's battle, featuring the triumph of Sidney B. Wood, jr., blond New York stylist, over the exponent of the two-fisted backhand Vivian McGrath, of Australia, 10—8, 6—4, 6—4. Wood trailed, 1—4, in the first set on games, and 1—3 in the third, but displayed the stroking resources to meet each emergency, outmaneuvering the Australian.

Shields Beats Dr. Prenn.

Frank Shields, of New York, No. 1 in the American ranking, overpowered Dr. Daniel Prenn, the former German Davis Cup star, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4, while George M. Lott, jr., of Chicago, and Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, the United States doubles titleholders, each weathered unexpectedly strong opposition.

Lott was erratic and dropped a set before overcoming the English southpaw, R. O. Williams, 6—3, 6—1, 6—8, 7—5, and Stoefen found the big Egyptian, P. Grandguillot, a stubborn antagonist who took a liking to the Californian's drives and succumbed only by scores of 6—2, 7—5, 11—9.

The Davis Cup captain, R. N. (Dick) Williams, of Philadelphia, had no trouble eliminating an Indian potentate, the Prince of Kutch, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3, but he is expected to be ousted by the British ace, Fred Perry, in the second round. Perry, the tournament favorite, played spotty tennis today in disposing of C. R. D. Tuckey, 6—2, 6—2, 5—7, 6—0.

Lott Faces De Stefani.

Lott and David N. Jones, the former Columbia University player, who scored a first-round victory over C. H. Naeyaert, of Belgium, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2, also are likely to be on their way out tomorrow. Lott runs up against the ambidextrous Italian, Giorgio de Stefani, one of the seeded entries, in the second round, while Jones plays George Patrick Hughes, of the British Davis Cup forces.

Three former American collegians passed from the picture in the first round, while another, Wilmer Hines, defaulted. W. L. Breese, formerly of Harvard, lost to Marcel Bernard, of France, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2; Henry Culley, of Santa Barbara, Calif., bowed to Don Turnbull, of Australia, 6—3, 6—2, 8—6, and Clayton Lee Burwell, of Charlotte, N. C., yielded to L. Hecht, of Czechoslovakia, 6—3, 13—11, 6—0.

Giants Trim Cards; Hubbell Ends Jinx

7 Runs in Second Give 10-to-7 Victory.

St. Louis, June 25 (AP).—Carl Hubbell finally conquered the Cardinal jinx which has been pursuing him this year and registered his first pitching victory against two defeats over the Red Birds today, staggering through to a 10-7 victory after a seven-run outburst by his mates in the second inning. It was his eleventh victory of the year against four setbacks.

Burke Seeks to Give Nats Third in Row Over Browns

By Frank H. Young.

REMEMBERING Bobby Burke's great pitching performance against the Browns in the 17-inning first game of the doubleheader played here last May 12, Manager Joe Cronin will start the southpaw today against the St. Louis Club in the third game of the current set. In the May 12 game, Burke started in the tenth and allowed but four hits during six scoreless frames. In his seventh round on the hill, however, he walked a man and then two most scratchy hits gave the Browns the run to let them cop the verdict, 6-5. Jack Knott probably will do the alien flinging this afternoon, as the Nats seek their third straight.

Outfielder Earl Clark, a Washington boy, whose travels have taken him to both big leagues and to several minor league clubs, visited the Browns at yesterday's game. He started the season with them, then went to Rochester and now is with Joe Judge's Baltimore Orioles. Earl announced that he plans to wed a Rockville girl at the Maryland town tonight.

Strange made two great plays in successive innings yesterday. In the second he grabbed Sewell's hard-hit grounder with his back gloved hand and then threw him out, while he hustled to short left in the third to making a diving catch of Schulte's near Texas leaguer, with which the wind played havoc.

Hoping to add a punch to the Browns, Manager Rogers Hornsby yesterday inserted himself in right-field and also changed the order in which his men appeared at the tee. Clift went to the lead-off place, with Melillo dropping back to seventh.

It looked like old home week at the stadium yesterday when three of the four pitchers trotted out by Skipper Hornsby — Dick Coffman, Ed Wells and Bill McAfee—proved to be former Nationals.

The punch of most ball teams is supposed to be packed in its outfield. Yesterday all the Nat fly-chasers did was to drive in five of the six runs, to score three of them, and to hit for a dozen bases. Stone, Manush and Schulte each was credited with a triple, while Stone also hit two singles and Manush one.

Red Sox Defeat Tribe; Regain Third Place

Five-Run Rally in Fifth Is Decisive as Boston Triumphs, 6-3.

BOSTON, June 25 (AP).—The Red Sox took a 6-to-3 decision from the Cleveland Indians today to displace them once again from third place.

Taking kindly to the offerings of Bob "Lefty" Weiland, their former teammate, the Collins clan put over a 5-run rally in the fifth, although 4 of these runs were unearned, due to one of Hale's two errors at second base.

Tribe Starts Scoring.

Cleveland drew first blood in the third on Willie Kamm's walk, an infield out and Rice's single to left center. The Sox tied the count in the next frame on Cissell's single, passes to Werber and Morgan and Roy Johnson's long fly.

The Indians made their second run in the sixth when Rice walked and Knickerbocker and Trosky singled. They counted their last run in the eighth on singles by Rice and Averill and Trosky's long fly.

Prince Pine Victorious With Spurt in Stretch

Latonia, Ky., June 25 (AP).—Coming from behind in the stretch with a rush, Mrs. William Crump's Prince Pine accounted for the Spring Station purse, beating a small but select band of 2-year-olds, including the Dixiana Stud's Red Sunset.

Red Sunset ruled the favorite in in the 5½ furlong dash, but at no time was a serious factor. Wood F. Axton's Ruth's Hope cut out the early pace, but could not withstand the winner when Prince Pine won by a length. Prince Pine paid $7.80.

Virginia Ring Body To Pick Secretary

Commission Will Meet in Richmond Today.

Virginia's Boxing Commission will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in Richmond to map out plans for operating the fight game in Old Dominion cities. The first big act will be the naming of a permanent secretary, the only salaried position created by the Daughton act. Dave M. Miller, graduate manager of athletics at University of Richmond, and Joe Bowers, retired Norfolk Navy man, appear to have the best chances for the post of secretary, which pays $1,800 a year.

The commission, composed of Chairman Ralph H. Dougnton and James A. Blake and Charles R. Fenwick, will seek an interpretation of certain phases of the boxing law from the attorney general.

Virginia's first legal professional fight was held last night in Richmond, with Joey Goodman, home town boy, meeting Henry Falegano, Filipino boxer.

Tigers Beaten As Foxx Hits 2 Homers

PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP).—Knocking Tom Bridges out of the box and continuing the attack on three other pitchers, the Athletics battered Detroit into submission, 13 to 11, today.

The Mackmen belted out 19 hits, including a home run by Eric McNair and two from the bat of Jimmy Foxx.

The latter's second swat for the circuit, coming with two on base in the eighth inning, wound up a four-run rally that decided the game. The two blows put Foxx's string of homers for the season at 20.

The Tigers piled up a 6 to 2 lead in the first four innings only to lose it in the fifth in a five-run rally by the A's. Luke Hamlin had succeeded Bridges by this time and in turn was lifted for a pinch hitter. Vic Frasier next took the mound and was clubbed for singles by Cramer and Johnson.

Detroit came back in the ninth with a run, tallied when Carcarella, third Mack pitcher, walked two with one out and was slapped for a single by Pete Fox. This gave Mickey Cochrane and Goose Goslin an opportunity to salvage the game, but both popped to the outfield.

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP).—Johnny Broaca, former Yale hurler, struck out five times today against the Chicago White Sox, but it didn't matter, for the Yankees loosed an 18-hit assault behind him and he coasted home with his second victory of the season, 13 to 2.

His five whiffings, however, got him a place in the record book alongside Lefty Grove for the most strike-outs in a nine-inning American League game.

With Babe Ruth resting his aging legs on the bench, Lou Gehrig, Myril Hoag, the Babe's substitute, and Earl Combs swung into action with home runs to aid the mounting Yankee total. It was Lou's nineteenth of the season.

Take League Lead.

The Yankees, in winning while the Detroit Tigers were taking a 13-to-11 beating in Philadelphia, went back into first place in the League standings. The Yankees now have an average of .607 to the Tigers' .603.

Cooper Hurts Back, Near Collapse in Heat.

Springfield, Ill., June 25 (AP).—Tommy Armour and a relentless sun wilted the field in the first skirmish for the Illinois State professional championship today.

In 100-degree heat the famous silver Scot from Chicago fired a record-breaking 66 at his rivals to break the course record, shatter par by five blows, and hammer out a three-shot lead over his closest pursuers, "Sonny" Rouse and Frank Garrity, of Chicago.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper, who won last year, was the outstanding victim of the broiling sun, although he finished with a 73. Cooper hurt his back and almost collapsed.

Lodorus Lasts to Win Charles Town Feature by Head Margin Over This Play

Sam Palumbo Rides Filly To Victory

Two Favorites Win on Card; Grand Baker Victor at $29.40.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 25.—Lodorus, a 3-year-old filly which burned up tons and tons of the good people's money until she regained her winning ways last week, came back with an impressive race today to win the feature of the Shenandoah Jockey Club's wash-day program. Capably ridden by Sam Palumbo, the daughter of Stimulus and Lored managed to wiggle home a head in front of This Play, which had Hosain beaten by half a length at the end of the 6½-furlong contest.

The fair Monday crowd had a hard time making up its mind regarding a favorite. Virtually every horse in the field drew heavy play at one time or another. As the machines closed, Dona Dulcin and Flageolet were co-favorites at $3.20 to $1, with Lodorus 10 cents heavier. The twin choices showed their appreciation by running very bad races. In fact, Dona Dulcin finished a rather disgracingly last.

Lodorus had no easy time of it. At the start, she found Shawnee setting a sizzling pace and it took much urging from Palumbo to get her ahead of the front runner. As if that weren't enough of a struggle, This Play, which had been held off the two-horse battle, moved up determinedly in the stretch and all but nipped Lodorus.

Only two favorites won today. Pink Post took the second with ease and Giggley Ann accounted for the sixth. While there were several long shots in the money, including Radial at $29.80 to place and Tulyries Spot, a 194-1 shot, which paid $24 to show, the heaviest win mutuel was on Grand Baker. He won the fourth race at $29.40.

Cumberand Net Play in August

Cumberland, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—Cumberland open tennis tournament, the Allegheny Mountain championships, will be held Saturday, Sunday and Monday, August 4, 5 and 6. Matches will be played on the Cumberland Country Club, Dingle and Celanese courts.

Lease Bussard, Frederick, Md., won the men's title last year by defeating Jack McLaughlin, Mercersburg, Pa. Fifty-six net men entered. Lawrence Shaffer and Robert C. Landlee copped the men's doubles by topping James Jodgson and "Red" VanSant.

Florence Grimes, Morgantown, W. Va., was crowned woman's champion. She downed Mrs. Ruth Lynn Colladay, of Washington, D. C., for the title. No mixed doubles were played.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PINK POST, $5.00, $4.00, $3.00; RADIAL, $29.80, $22.00; STEELTON, $3.00.

PINK POST was rated behind the early pace, secured racing room on inside when leaving back stretch, came around RADIAL in the stretch and drew out easily. RADIAL had good early speed while racing on the inside, shook off KING OF HEARTS, but could not withstand the challenge of the winner. STEELTON lacked early speed, but closed stoutly.

THIRD RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:28½. Winner, Mrs. V. H. McMullen's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NANCY KHAN, $8.20, $3.60, $3.60; CONSUMMATION, $3.00, $3.20; TULYRIES SPOT, $24.40.

NANCY KHAN assumed command when BUCK'S DAISY was through on the back stretch, drew out into a long lead, saved ground, but had to be put under pressure to the end. CONSUMMATION, slow to find his best speed, gradually improved his position and closed very fast. TULYRIES POT raced forwardly on the outside and hung on well.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Water Lad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:55½. Winner, Rossmore Farm's b. f. (3), by Baby Grand—Carrie Baker. Trained by F. W. Bennett. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND BAKER, $29.40, $6.30, $3.40; GRAND ROX, $2.80, $2.20; IN CLOVER, $2.80.

GRAND BAKER, placed forwardly from the start, wore down MOROVER on the back stretch, drew out into a good lead entering stretch and, saving ground, just lasted. GRAND ROX could not outrun the leaders in the early part, moved up stoutly on outside and would have won in another stride. IN CLOVER, always forwardly placed, was no match for the first two.

FIFTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:20. Winner, C. G. Overcash's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LODORUS, $8.60, $4.00, $3.40; THIS PLAY, $10.00, $7.40; HOSAIN, $5.60.

LODORUS had good early speed while racing lapped on SHAWNEE, wore the latter down entering the stretch and held THIS PLAY safe. Latter, always well up, closed with a rush and was wearing the winner down. HOSAIN, a forward factor throughout, hung on well.

SIXTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:49½. Winner, C. C. Cook's br. f. (3), by Lucillite—Bedella. Trained by G. A. Cook. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:23, 0:35 1-5, 0:47, 1:01 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GIGGLEY ANN, $4.80, $3.20, $2.60; DAISY BUNGA, $4.80, $4.00; WANDERING JIM, $4.80.

GIGGLEY ANN, rated behind the pace of WANDERING JIM, moved up stoutly and wore him down entering the stretch, drew into a short lead and held DAISY BUNGA safe. The latter, always a forward contender while racing on the outside, closed stoutly. WANDERING JIM had good early speed from a good start, saved ground on the turns, but was stopping at the end. MISS PATCHES raced evenly and closed well. EN PASSANT lacked speed, but made up some ground.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:11½. Off at 5:12. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRENTONIAN, $6.60, $4.40, $3.80; DARK STAR, $5.80, $6.00; CONCORD, $7.80.

TRENTONIAN, always well up, went to the front easily on the back stretch, was rated in front for the balance of the trip and won easily. DARK STAR, a trailer in the early racing, moved up quickly on the outside nearing the far turn, closed stoutly, but was no match for the winner. CONCORD had good speed to take command when ZOMBRO was through, but was tiring at the end. ROYAL CHARGE lacked early speed, but was blocked when attempting to go up on the inside, but closed well when clear. FLUTTERING showed flashes of speed. DUNAIR was repeatedly blocked when attempting to go through on the inside on the back stretch and was poorly ridden. ZOMBRO stopped.

Dear Al: Charles Town, June 25.

My friend, Frankie Rice, overheard a conversation in the paddock today. It ended like this: "That guy Bennings can't pick no horses. He couldn't pick one of the Smith Brothers out of an Atlantic City beauty pageant." And Bennings, Inc., hasn't been shut out one day since this meeting began on May 28. However, we were on the verge today. Pink Post, bless his soles, saved the day. A favorite and all that, but a winner. That $5 mutuel didn't do a whole lot of good so it was doughnuts and coffee for Clocker Mike tonight. He always does better on an empty stomach, so I'm expecting him to hop back into the fried chicken class by sundown tomorrow. He was at my side as I consulted the speed books tonight. BILL.

First race—Wise Pete might have escaped from the maiden ranks last out had he not fallen. I understand that he was uninjured and will be ready to run his race tomorrow. Barnstormer is a pretty sharp nonwinner. Dixie Princess to complete the money picture.

Second race—I'm going to try to put over a good thing here. I mean Palm Broom. This one is supposed to be much better than rated. Burleigh figures near the top. Plateau may awake for the show award.

Third race—Schley B. beat me last out. Now let's see if he can win for me. He meets the improved Hacky H and this should be another tight fit. Clocker Mike leans toward Dark Vision and would probably leave the track if I didn't mention the fact.

Capitalist Pays $37 In Victory at Detroit

Detroit, June 25 (AP).—All but overlooked in the betting, Capitalist, smartly ridden by Jockey Claude Hooper, ran away from a field of good sprinters in the feature race at the Michigan Fair Grounds today. Capitalist paid $37 for a $2 ticket.

Hooper held his mount in third place until they reached the outside of the upper turn, where he was pushed into the lead and was never in danger. Capitalist finished a length and a quarter ahead of Genteel Lady, with The Point half a length back.

Stocks Drift Lower as Sale Total Declines

New York, June 25 (AP).—Stocks drifted through another session of summer inertia today with little change in the general level of prices. The main drift of prices was slightly downward, but selling pressure was light.

Steel shares weakened as reports of a sharp decline in operations of the industry circulated. Reports were confirmed by the weekly estimate of the American Iron & Steel Institute, published after the close of the market, placing operations of the industry at 44.7 per cent of capacity, compared with 56.1 a week ago.

Although Wall street had been expecting a slump in steel activity, as deliveries against second-quarter contracts are completed, Bethlehem, United States Steel common, Republic Steel, National Steel and other steel shares lost fractions to nearly 2 points.

Control Body Awaited.

Speculation was still conducted cautiously while brokers waited announcement of the Federal Stock Exchange Control Commission and for Government rule of the exchanges, to become operative next week.

Relatively wide fluctuations on small sales in some erstwhile active issues were ascribed in part to withdrawal of professional trades from the market.

Turnover on the stock exchange contracted to 490,410 shares, compared with 931,750 Friday. The small advance gain made Saturday was erased, with the Standard Statistics Co. index for 90 stocks showing a decline of eight-tenths of a point to 77.3.

Interest in Leaders.

There was little interest in the usual leaders of the market and movements were narrow. American Telephone, Chrysler, American Can, Commercial Solvents, General Motors, Hudson Motors, General Electric, National Biscuit and Pullman were among shares fractionally lower at the close.

Lehman Corporation dipped 2 points. Air Reduction rose almost as much in a thin market and Allied Chemical sold off 3¼.

The decline in steel operations was interpreted as the start of the usual summer slackening in industrial operations. So far industrial activity has held unusually well against seasonal influences.

Freight Loading Steady.

Railroad freight movement, helped by an early grain harvest, shows a steady trend, judging by the first of last week's carloading statements to be published. The Sante Fe, carrying new wheat to market, reported its loadings increased to 28,985 cars, compared with 25,535 cars the preceding week and 24,348 in the like 1933 period. Chesapeake & Ohio loadings totaled 30,457, against 30,847, the previous week and 29,855 a year ago.

Loadings reports did not influence rail shares much for May earnings of carriers indicated their net operating income was not keeping up the rate of improvement shown earlier in the spring. The first 22 railroads to report May earnings had net income of approximately $13,047,000, an increase of only 2.3 per cent over May, 1933.

Armour, of Illinois, and Wilson "A" sold up about a point. Silver shares ignored the rise in the price of silver futures. American Smelting, U. S. Smelting and Cerro de Pasco lost fractions to more than a point. Standard Oil of California picked up a fractional gain as higher gasoline prices were announced in its territory.

Wool Market.

Boston, June 25 (A.P.) (United States Department of Agriculture.).—Scattered transactions were closed on spot fleeces at prices quoted at the close of last week. Spot wools in territory and Texas were quiet at unchanged figures. Firms handling Western grown wools offered direct from the country were receiving the bulk of the current limited business.

Estimated receipts of domestic wool at Boston, reported to the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange during week ended June 23, amounted to 4,314,800 pounds compared with 2,677,000 during the previous week.

Naval Stores Firm.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

First Move by R. F. C. in Preparation for Making Direct Loans to Industry Indicates Its New Powers Will Be Used Wisely.

By Ralph West Robey.

On the basis of the conditions made public by the RFC for making loans directly to industry it is obvious that these new lending powers of the organization will not be used for the indiscriminate pumping out of money. At least they will not be if the stipulations are enforced and there is no reason to believe that they will not be. The requirements are so rigid, in fact, that it is questionable if a great volume of loans will be made.

First, the potential borrower not only must show that he is solvent, or will be solvent at the time he gets the loan, but as well must provide adequate collateral to cover the loan. Both of the terms, "solvent" and "adequate collateral," are susceptible to liberal interpretations, it is true, but the record of the RFC in recent months indicates there is nothing to fear on this score. Unless there is a change in its policies its valuation of collateral will be sufficiently conservative to afford real protection for the loan.

Safety Increased by Still Other Provisions.

These requirements of solvency and collateral, however, are only a part of the means by which the RFC is undertaking to protect itself. In addition, the borrower must agree not to undertake any new construction, except replacement or improvements designed to increase employment, must not engage in import or export trade, must not deal in foreign acceptances or bills of exchange, must not declare any dividends without the consent of the RFC, and must grant the RFC the privilege of dictating the salaries of its officers.

Further, the potential borrower must show that the loan will increase or maintain employment and that the advance can not be obtained from a bank. The maximum amount that will be loaned to any one borrower is $500,000, the rate of interest will be the rate prevailing on bank loans, and the maximum maturity five years. Of a more miscellaneous character are the requirements that the borrower must be a member of NRA and must have been in business on the first of this year. No loans can be made after December 31, 1934.

Maturities Are Too Long To Suit Commercial Banks

Upon reading such a list of stipulations one can not help but wonder who is left that might borrow from the RFC. If a concern is solvent, can offer adequate collateral, is willing to pay the going rate of interest, and even willing to give up the right of declaring dividends or fixing its officers' salaries without getting the approval of the lending organization, it would appear that there should be any number of institutions willing to advance the funds.

The joker, of course, is in the maturity of the loans. They run for too long a period to be attractive to the well managed commercial bank. At the same time the amount involved and the period for which the funds are needed are not well adapted to the investment capital market. It is because of such considerations as these that there may be a demand for the RFC, or the Federal Reserve Banks, to advance funds directly to business.

To the extent that there is such a demand, it should be met. The important thing is to be certain that the loans really are needed in the sense of being economically sound. It is this that will determine whether the new powers of the RFC mark a forward step. On the basis of its first move in preparation for the making of such loans, it appears that they will be.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 86.3 Level

Prime Investments Hold Firm; Sales Drop to $7,880,000.

New York, June 25 (AP).—The bond market plugged along at an extremely slow pace today and, as prime investment issues maintained a steady to firm tone and secondary groups were hesitant, there was little change in the price picture.

Transfers totaled only $7,880,000, par value, the lowest aggregate for a 5-hour session since September 13 last.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans held at its Saturday's closing figure of 86.3.

News Influence Slight.

There was little news which might have freshened the market appetite. The American Iron & Steel Institute's estimate of a sharp decline in current steel production was announced after the cessation of dealings. The drop to 44.7 per cent of capacity from 56.1 in the previous week was not altogether unexpected.

Despite the dullness of the session, new highs for the past year or longer on small turnovers were recorded by both American Telephone debenture 5s, Santa Fe convertible 4s, Atlantic Refining 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s, Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio 6s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s of 1995, Chicago & Erie first 5s, Chicago Union Station 5s, Edison Electric of N. Y. 5s, Illinois Central first 4s, Ohio River first 5s and Virginian Railway 5s.

Warner Brothers Drop.

Warner Brothers 6s dropped 2 points and others, off moderately, included some bonds of Western Union, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Shell Pipe Line, Philadelphia Co., Paramount, New Haven, Nickel Plate, N. Y. Central, Louisville & Nashville, Lehigh Valley, International Telephone, Internationa Hydro-Electric, Denver Gas, Denver & Rio Grande, Rock Island, Chicago & North Western, St. Paul, Central Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio.

U. S. Government securities were unchanged to slightly lower in listless trading. The foreign section was a little livelier. Obligations of Antioquia, Australia, Colombia, New South Wales, Panama, Rumania and Poland advanced 1 to 2 or more points.

Curb's Prices Sink Slightly In Late Trading

Slump Wipes Out Gains as Transfers Fall to 108,000 Shares.

New York, June 25 (AP). — The curb market suffered a slight sinking spell in the final hour of trading today which wiped out many gains of around half to more than a point made in earlier trading.

Oil stocks held on to part of the advances but other sections of the list had insufficient resistance to meet the selling orders and yielded enough ground to show small losses at the close. Trading was dull, transfers approximating 108,000 shares, compared with 183,000 Friday.

Creole Petroleum, International Petroleum, Pure Oil and Darby Petroleum were the leaders in their group and ended minor fractions to a point better, although the turnover was not as large as it was last week when these stocks had a fairly well sustained run up.

Utilities and Alcohols were narrow and although a number of them showed small gains in early trading they generally closed lower. American Gas and Electric Bond & Share each lost around a quarter point and American Gas & Electric and Cities Service preferred also were lower. Hiram Walker and Distillers Corporation Seagrams were fractionally lower.

Food stocks, such as Armour & Co. new preferred and common, and Swift International were in better demand coincident with strength in that group of stocks on the big board and gained around ½ point. Inactive specialties were mixed, Montgomery Ward "A" gaining 2 points to close at 113 and New York, Honduras and Rosario advancing 1½. Driver Harriss and Pan American Aircraft lost around one each.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

(Associated Press.)

The position of the Treasury June 23 was: Receipts, $17,719,536.17; expenditures, $29,900,930.44; balance, $2,666,823,814.18; customs receipts for the month, $15,603,167.75.

Receipts for the fiscal year, since July 1, were $3,063,350,017.73; expenditures, $6,896,421,337.22, including $3,867,225,600.12 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $3,835,071,319.49; gold assets, $7,839,144,767.32.

(United Press.)

	This year.	Last year.

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	136	227
Declines	303	111
Unchanged	151	123
Total issues	590	461

Stocks—Prices drifted lower through another session of summer inertia. Averages were down eight-tenths of a point. Trading volume dropped to 490,410 shares.

Bonds—Trading plugged at a slow pace and prices closed unchanged from the 86.3 level. Prime loans held steady to firm and the secondary group was hesitant. Sales totaled only $7,880,000.

Wheat—Huge movements of newly harvested wheat and rains in England, France Germany and Australia pitched prices downward. Wheat sank 1⅞ to 2¾ cents. Corn and oats were off. July wheat sold at 90½; September, at 91¼.

Cotton—Prices were pushed upward under trade and commission house buying. July sold at 12.12. The general market advanced 17 to 18 points. October closed at 12.40.

Dollar—The United States dollar was slightly higher on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.03 to the English pound; 6.59⅜ cents to the French franc, and 38.25 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets

London, June 25 (A.P.).—Trading on the stock exchange started the week slowly. Gilt-edged securities were firm on investment buying, and German bonds were also good on news that the debt question would be further discussed. Gold mining shares developed irregularity, while oil, rubber and transatlantic shares held steady. Industrials were mostly easier, and the market closed steady.

Paris—Trading on the bourse today was inactive, and prices moved in narrow limits. The closing was firm.

Steel Markets.

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Steel prices per 100 pounds f. o. b. Pittsburgh: Blue-annealed sheets, hot-rolled, 2.15; galvanized sheets, 3.25; black sheets, hot-rolled, 2.65; steel bars, 1.90.

Credit Control Talk Becomes Academic Under Banking Act

By Anna P. Youngman.

Under the banking act of 1933 an attempt has been made to separate commercial banking from investment banking, and to prevent commercial bank funds from being used to an undue extent "for the speculative carrying of or trading in securities, real estate or commodities." Each Federal Reserve Bank is expected to keep itself informed as to the general character and amount of the loans and investments of its member banks and give consideration to these speculative activities in determining whether to grant or refuse advances or rediscounts. Other provisions of the law which became effective June 16, a year after date of passage of the act, require that security affiliates be separated from parent banks and necessitate a segregation of the business of handling investment securities from that of receiving deposits.

This endeavor to draw sharper lines of demarcation between investment banking and short-term commercial lending is, of course, hampered by the fact that our banking system is a hybrid one which never has drawn these distinctions in practice. Moreover, without far-reaching structural changes, our numerous small unit banks will continue to be called upon to supply funds for long-term as well as short-term employment. Then, too, the types of paper held do not always indicate the purposes to which loans may be put.

Short-Term Advances.

Short-term advances may be used for long-term purposes, while supposedly liquid credits may become hopelessly frozen, if advances are unwisely made. In other words the problem of credit control can not be solved by relying solely upon the quality or character of the paper in bank portfolios.

Credit control to be effective and to offer any guarantees against inflationary excesses must attempt to limit the total volume of credit available for all purposes. The Federal Reserve system has never had any comprehensive control over credit accommodation, and under present conditions, it would be entirely unable to check an inflationary credit expansion, if it were once started. With the member banks in possession of $1,800,000,000 of excess reserves, advances in discount rates certainly would have no effect. Open market sales of securities would be impracticable in view of the great Government financing program ahead, and in any case, the Treasury would be in a position to nullify the restrictive effects of such selling.

With commercial banks holding about one-third of the Government debt, and a financing program already authorized that might increase that debt by more than $20,000,000,000, it is an academic pastime to discuss plans for credits control by the Reserve banks. Under the law, the Federal Reserve Board may raise member bank reserve requirements by vote, and the board has recommended that reserve requirements be varied with reference to the rapidity of turnover, as a means of automatically checking any future undue credit expansion. However, such mechanistic devices are of little practical importance under present conditions. The Reserve banks can not pursue an independent policy so long as the system is the chief agency on which the Administration depend to carry out its financial program.

Units Lending Funds.

Outside the Reserve System, engaging in extensive lending operations, moreover, with the use of Government funds, stand such important agencies as the RFC and the PWA, which are supplying capital to private industry, including the banks of the country, and financing public works that absorb large amounts of capital. Their activities result in increases in the public debt, thus adding to the volume of public securities which find their way into bank portfolios. Whether these securities are short-term obligations, long-term bonds, or medium-term issues, they represent credit operations that the investing banks can not control. Political exigencies and social needs determine the direction of Government lending, and so long as the present emergency lasts the commercial banks will probably continue to supply, at least indirectly, a good part of the capital made available to the public through the Government agencies which dominate the investment market.

Even if there were no emergency, and the financing activities of the Government had been reduced to moderate proportions, the problem of making adequate provisions for investment needs could not be solved by the methods advocated by Senator Glass and his followers. A system of commercial banks holding carefully selected assets is desirable if it can be fitted into a carefully integrated credit structure serving all kinds of credit and capital needs. But we are still entirely at sea concerning the proper allocation of credit between long-term investment and short-term commercial use.

Credit-Control Problems.

Credit control can not be viewed simply from the point of view of the head of a commercial bank holding demand deposits who is rightly concerned to maintain the liquidity of his assets. The practices which are sound as respects the individual do not answer the questions raised by those who want to know how total credits should be related to the total volume of business, and how long and short term advances should be allocated to achieve a reasonable balance.

Mechanistic devices for limiting or varying the amount of credits are of little use in the managed credit economy of the present day. Arbitrary restraints are really a confession of ignorance of the actual needs of industry, although they may prove to be much safer than inexpert manipulation. The fact is that we know very little about the nature of credit and the effects of credit policy upon economic activity.

It seems a Utopian dream to imagine that we can, by legal restrictions or through management discover how to escape a repetition of the errors that produce alternating periods of boom and depression.

Goods Markets.

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were steady with the demand light today. Retail buyers took on more wash fabrics, towels, prints, &c., for ready sale. New prices named on 4-4 bleached muslins were announced on a basis of 10½ cents. Cables from Calcutta buriap markets showed little change over the week-end and the demand here was light. Rayon goods were in better call and rayon yarns sold at moderate lots. Wool goods sales were still below normal for fall. Silk goods for fall did well in the higher quality products.

Cotton Prices Climb Under Trade Buying

July Closes at 12.12 as General Market Rises 17 to 18 Points.

New York, June 25 (AP).—Cotton was generally higher today. Further July liquidation and scattered selling promoted by the easier ruling of the grain and stock markets was absorbed on slight reactions from an early advance and prices reached the best levels of the day in the late trading on covering and trade or commission house buying.

October, after selling off from 12.32 to 12.27, advanced to 12.42, or back to the high price of last Tuesday and closed at 12.40. The general market closed very steady at net gains of 17 to 18 points.

7 to 10 Points Higher.

Houses with foreign connections were among the buyers, while there was a scattering commission house demand which sent the active months about 7 to 10 points net higher right after the call.

This advance was checked by realizing and July liquidation, while there may have been a little scattering selling and the market lost 5 or 6 points of its gains during the middle of the morning.

The demand for July was sufficient to absorb offerings at the recent widening of the differences, however, while there was a continued demand from trade or commission house sources for later months and the market firmed up again during the afternoon on reports that more numerous complaints of crop damage were coming from west Texas.

There were also unfavorable crop advices from other sections of the belt on the advance which carried July up to 12.13 and December to 12.51 in the late trading or about 18 to 20 points net higher.

Exports today, 21,925, making 7,253,609 so far this season. Port receipts, 5,993. U. S. port stocks, 2,622,053.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today closing unchanged to 1 point higher on scattered covering and trade buying, promoted by the strength of cotton with rumors that Government was buying spot material and the firmness of crude oil. Sales were 47 contracts, of which 34 were in exchanges from July to later deliveries. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 5.56, September 5.75, October 5.84, December 6.02, January 6.07.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Foreign currencies moved irregularly against the dollar yesterday. The pound sterling and the French franc declined, but most other important rates were slightly higher.

The pound lost ⅜ of a cent in New York, slipping to $5.03. The dollar gained ¼ of a cent in London at 5.03¼ to the pound.

French francs receded 0.001¼ of a cent in New York, closing at 6.59⅜ cents. The dollar had closed the earlier Paris trading unchanged at the equivalent of 6.59⅜ cents to the franc.

Other gold currencies were firm in New York, together with Italian lire and German marks. Canadian dollars dropped ⅛ of a cent, to a cent premium over par.

At the closing price in New York for French francs, the dollar was valued at a premium of .60 of a cent over par. This compared with a premium of .56 of a cent on Saturday and of .39 of a cent a month ago.

Steel Operation Drops 3 Points To 59 Per Cent

Decline Regarded Light for Season; Outlook Still Favorable.

Cleveland, June 25.—Steelworks operations, nearing the close of the most active quarterly period since 1930, are declining less precipitately than anticipated, the National average last week dropping only 3 points to 59 per cent, states the magazine Steel.

Open hearths are being taken off as contract shipments for the month are being completed, and it is probable that a more marked reduction will ensue this week.

As the third quarter approaches the unpromising outlook in the markets is relieved to some extent by several favorable factors. The apparent remoteness of a steel strike and an increase in schedules for July automobile production in response to a stronger retail demand, contrary to the usual seasonal trend, are tending to maintain the industry's morale.

Operations for July.

For some time in July, steelmakers themselves face the necessity of manufacturing for stock to round out depleted inventories. For the first time since the industry's code was adopted last fall, purchasing practice is evidently reverting to a hand-to-mouth basis—the incentive for contracting having been swept away by the recent code revisions. This dictates preparedness for spot orders.

Some support also is derived from definite construction projects and railroad requirements, and prospective naval shipbuilding in Eastern yards. Scrap prices show increasing strength with advances in several districts.

Steelmakers, however, have seldom approached a quarter with such meager order books as they have today. Consumers have been acquiring material for use in July, and market prospects now pivot on how quickly those stocks can be absorbed. The last-minute rush for deliveries has been keenest for those products, sheets and strip, which carry the highest price advances, ranging from $5 to $8 a ton, beginning July 1.

Completion of Contracts.

Steelmakers now express little apprehension regarding their ability to complete all second-quarter contracts by the end of this week, except possibly for certain grades of sheets and strip. Cancellations of June tonnage quotas to some leading producers average about 20 per cent.

The tonnage actually delivered this month has been less than in May; for several important interests, only 50 to 60 per cent of last month's—which, however, was the heaviest since 1929.

The new price levels to which the industry is moving are practically untested. So far they have resisted pressure from automobile and parts manufacturers, who for the present are withholding new commitments. Nut and bolt prices have been reaffirmed for third quarter. Beginning July 1, turned and ground shafting prices are to be based on the price of cold-finished carbon bars, with extras for turning and grinding. Cast pipe is up $2 a ton.

Structural Shape Awards.

Structural shape awards for the week increased to 23,612 tons, including 6,900 for a Government dam at Fort Peck, Mont. An award of 18,000 tons, distributed to two fabricators, for the San Francisco Bay pipe line, features the market for plates. The PWA has finally approved a loan to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to build 820 coal cars in its own shops. Great Northern is to rebuild 650 refrigerator cars.

Steelworks operations last week declined 7 points to 63 per cent at Chicago, 4 to 62, Youngstown; 11 to 47, Buffalo; 1 to 76, Cleveland; ½ point to 46, eastern Pennsylvania. They were unchanged at 82, Detroit; 70, New England; 81, Wheeling; 56, Pittsburgh; 55, Birmingham.

Due to recent adjustments in black pipe, Steel's iron and steel scrap composite this week is up 29 cents to $35.06, and the finished steel composite is up 70 cents to $55.50. The iron and steel scrap composite has advanced 8 cents to $10.37.

Europe Wheat Shortage Put at 260 Million Units

Rome, June 25 (AP).—The International Institute of Agriculture estimated today that the European wheat harvest this year will fall short of 1933 by 260,000,000 bushels.

The 1934 harvest is expected to total 1,470,000,000 bushels, an amount which approximates the 1932 crop. This year's decline is due to the drought.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Executives Are Ecstatic Over Outlook for Coming Year

Schedule Lists Many Works of Prime Quality

Fifty-Two Features Quota; Fight Films All Week; About Showshops.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Important production news comes out of the Drake Hotel, in Chicago, over the week-end by both telegraph and air mail. It is there that the annual sales convention of the home office executives and field forces of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been in progress. Such enthusiasm!

On Friday night there arrived at this desk the following ecstatic westernunion from Mr. Rudolph Berger, Washington branch manager of M-G-M:

"Attending the greatest and most enthusiastic convention of my career. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will release for the coming year 52 star-spangled attractions, unparalleled in the history of the motion-picture industry. Not even M-G-M in all its past glorious (sic) years ever has unfolded a banner so brilliant with the stars the public eagerly awaits on the screen. Air-mailing you tonight entire production line-up. Kindest regards."

The Line-up.

True to his word, Mr. Berger, with the connivance of Master Norman W. Pyle, of the M-G-M field forces, sent along his promised production schedule which arrived last evening.

Fifty-two features, 181 short subjects and 104 issues of the Metrotone News comprise the M-G-M line-up for 1934-35.

Felix F. Feist, general sales manager of the company, announced only 40 of the proposed 52 subjects by title. A story by Michael Arlen, sans title, to date, is included in the roster, along with two all-star feature comedies. The remainder of the program will not at this time be announced.

The official program contains no mention of Greta Garbo, although she is understood to have signed a contract for two more pictures. It says nothing about Laurel & Hardy, despite the fact that, according to Hollywood rumor, these two buffoons, currently appearing at Loew's Fox in "Hollywood Party," will make two full-length features.

Listed Stars.

While Leo, the Lion, lists as stars and featured players, among others, Marie Dressler, William Powell, Myrna Loy, Gloria Swanson, Warner Baxter, Jackie Cooper, Lionel Barrymore, Loretta Young, Constance Bennett and Helen Hays, no pictures are specifically assigned to them and the promise is made that other players "will be announced as the season progresses."

Among the definite commitments, however, appear the following:

"David Copperfield," by Charles Dickens.

"The Good Earth," by Pearl Buck, for which exterior scenes already have been filmed in China, the locale of the story.

Norma Shearer and Fredric March in Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," made famous on the stage by Katharine Cornell.

Vicki Baum Again.

"In Old Vienna," an original story by Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," with book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II and music by Sigmund Romberg. Ramon Novarro and Evelyn Laye will have the costellar roles.

S. N. Behrman's stage play of "Biography" will be known as "Biography of a Bachelor" on the screen, with Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery in the leads.

"Indo-China" will star Joan Crawford and Wallace Beery will be seen in another flying story, "West Point of the Air," to be produced by L. Morta Bell, former Washington newspaper man.

Jean Harlow will come to the front in "His Brother's Wife," and "Movie Queen" will be a starring vehicle for Marion Davies.

Grouped among the other important titles of the year's product may be set down "Sequoia," "A Lady Comes to Town," "China Seas," "Soviet," Sir James M. Barries "What Every Woman Knows," Mary Roberts Rhinehart's "Tish," "Vanessa," "The Wind and the Rain," "No More Ladies," "Forsaking All Others," "Her Excellency's Tobacco Shop," S. S. Van Dine's "The Casino Murder Case," "Wicked Woman," "Evelyn Prentice," "The Gravy Game," "Any Port in a Storm," "The Bugle Sounds," "Jungle Red Man," "Repeal," "Living in a Big Way," "Man Crazy," "Pamela Thorndyke," "Death on the Diamond," "The Winning Ticket" and "Black Chamber."

A close observer might discern here the basis of a season of considerable audience interest and artistic worth. M-G-M customarily goes in for that sort of thing.

The booking having been made too late for inclusion in The Sunday Post's chart of film attractions to be shown during the week in the residential and suburban theaters, it is, perhaps, important to the picture-going public of Washington to know that the Baer-Carnera heavyweight championship fight pictures are to be shown throughout the remainder of the current week at the State Theater in Bethesda, Md.

The fight pictures will be shown seven times daily, beginning today and continuing through Saturday. The screenings will be at 2, 3:45, 5:30, 7:15, 8:50, 10:44 and 11:30 p. m. In this connection it is earnestly requested by the management that the afternoon and early evening presentations be attended, in so far as is possible. The theater's capacity is not equal to the overflow crowds that swarm in on the late shows.

Incidentally, the auxiliary attractions are being changed every two days during the week. Today and tomorrow, Elissa Landi and Paul Lukas in "By Candlelight" will be the companion feature; Wednesday and Thursday, "Orient Express;" Friday and Saturday, "Hold That Girl."

When you see the fight pictures, if you can detect any sign of an injured Carnera ankle, you have keener vision than we have. Carnera, to all appearances, didn't hear about that until next day!

Dots and Dashes.

The Roadside Theater will continue its initial production of Dion Boucicault's "The Octoroon, or Life in Louisiana" through tomorrow night . . . Making two extra performances, instead of the one extra originally announced for tonight . . . "Jolly Bonny" Vance, who played in "The Octoroon" 40 years ago and knew Boucicault well, will be guest of honor of the Roadside Theater at tonight's performance . . . Ever since her retirement from the professional stage, Mrs. Vance has been a resident of Mount Rainier, Md. . . . Her father was a chain-theater owner in Wisconsin many years ago and the Boucicault attractions frequently played his houses . . . She was a member of the Charles K. Champlain stock company in the capacity of character woman . . . Her role in "The Octoroon" was that of Mrs. Peyton . . . The Three Long Brothers, appearing at Loew's Fox this week in the dancing act presented by Bernice and Emily are native Washingtonians . . . They are not brothers but are Walter Long, Paul Belt and Ray Kearney, all of whom were at one time ushers at Loew's Fox . . . They received their initial impetus in the direction of professionalism when Manager Harry Crull, then manager of the Fox, put on his first all-Washington Revue and featured the three boys in it . . . Since then they have scrambled close to the top as "hoofers" . . . Things to laugh at in the local theaters this week—Herman Hyde's "breakaway" instruments in the "Words and Music" revue at the Earle; Jimmy Durante's encounter with the live lion in "Hollywood Party," at Loew's Fox; Polly Moran's tussle with George Givot in the same opus and her surprising singing of the best song in the picture . . . Not to be laughed at: The splendid orchestral background afforded in "Hollywood Party" that drapes itself up the whole side of a high indoor wall to pour out some of the most enticing rhythms of the season . . . With Charlie Farrell on the screen at Loew's Palace, with Janet Gaynor in "Change of Heart," by Kathleen Norris, and Mickey Cochrane leading the Detroit Tigers up there where they seem to be going, an interesting recollection is inspired . . . That is, that when both lads were in school they were roommates . . . And Charlie will tell you anytime you ask him that he was able to "handle" Mickey with the gloves back in those good old days . . . Right now, maybe not . . . My esteemed confrere, Mr. Edward de Star Melcher, drops an intriguing postcard from the shore at Palos Verde, Calif., with the usual "wish you wuz here" inscription . . . The bathing girls on Mr. Melcher's card seem to be of the vintage of about 1910 . . . But then maybe Mr. Melcher had the card left over from his last trip! . . . The appearance of Meyer Davis, the old fiddle and band man, himself, in "Everybody Likes Music," on the screen at RKO-Keith's, reminds that he is going in for other enterprises in a large way . . . Three of the largest amusement projects in the vicinity of New York are among the major interests of the Washington impresario . . . Foremost among these is the Westchester Gardens at White Plains, N. Y., with a capacity of about 2,700 . . . Then comes the even larger "Wonder Bar" at Wildwood, N. J. . . . And last but not least, Bobby Sanford's "Show Boat," an important factor in Meyer's endeavor to bring relaxation to overtaxed Manhattan during the heated term . . . All of them Meyer Davis Orchestra's of course, are still functioning . . . Many of the summer's most elaborate social goings-on will be conducted to the strains of his myriad instrumentalists . . . And many of us remember when he thought he had hit the top by securing the orchestra contract at the Willard . . . But that was a few years ago, my masters!

All Baba Note.

Why the Admonition, "Sailor, Beware," Is Pat

Whether Barney Waters is going down for the third time and is about to be rescued by Miss Billie "Stonewall" Jackson, or whether he is about to be "socked" with the life-preserver for some minor indiscretion, he still is in a spot, as the saying goes. Mr. Sailor Waters and Miss "Stonewall" Jackson, of course, would be Freddie Sherman and Ruth Abbott, of the National Theater Players, who seem really to have gone naval just as "Sailor, Beware!" enters its fourth consecutive week at the National—beginning tonight at 8:30.

Straight From the Studios

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, June 24.—Rambling actors are becoming all the thing in Hollywood. Here's a group of them switching about. Claudette Colbert already committed (most strongly) at Paramount and Columbia, will go to Warner Brothers for a picture in the fall. 'Twil be on the new schedule. John Lodge, with Paramount, drops over to Universal for a turn. John Gilbert, wrangling a bit with M.-G.-M., but still on their personal roster, joins the cast of "The Captain Hates the Sea" at Columbia, appearing as a reporter.

JOHN GILBERT

Gilbert's engagement is the most interesting, since it is the first to follow "Queen Christina." He will be in the company with Victor McLaglen, Fred Keating, Florence Rice, Alison Skipworth, Wynne Gibson and Leon Errol, as well as the three stooges who play the orchestra called "Moxley's Merry Melodists."

Re Miss Colbert—the understanding is that she will make "Lost Beauty," by John Van Druten, which concerns the life of a great Parisian beauty, unless plans are changed.

"My Beloved Emma" Is Discovered.

Besides a possible David Copperfield, namely, the boy actor, Peter Trent, the scouting Dickensonian expedition, composed of David Selznick, George Cukor and Howard Estabrook, was able to find a Mrs. Micawber. She is Jean Cadell, an English character actress, and she may remain under a term contract with M.-G.-M. Meantime there is another discovery—Antoniette Collier, 19 years of age, who is appearing on the London stage in "Sixteen." If she can secure a release from her engagement, she may appear in "Copperfield" as Little Emily.

All casting decisions for "Copperfield" are to be made within ten days, and is expected to be wholly English, half new players from England and half chosen from residents of Hollywood, who hailed from Britain. Contract options have been made with 12 players abroad.

Fritz Lang, who returned with the party, is to direct an original story called "Tomorrow." Work on this was done on the return trip.

Lodge With Colbert.

The picture that John Lodge probably will play at Universal is "Imitation of Life," which John M. Stahl is directing, with the start set for Monday. Claudette Colbert is the star in this production, while the mulatto lead is Freddie Washington, this character being an important and pivotal one in the feature. Also Louise Beaver has been cast. But the company is at some odds to discover a mulatto girl of about 7 years, and have been combing the town for just the right type.

• • • •

The Old Maestro.

Ben Bernie is registered in as a good movie bet on account of "Shoot the Works," previewed last Monday evening. He appeared in this film with Jack Oakie, who does his best portrayal; the late Dorothy Dell and Lew Cody, Roscoe Karns, Arline Judge and others. Bernie is to get his next chore in "One Night Stand," by Vera Caspary.

Re "Shoot the Works," adapted from the play "The Great Magoo"—this picture carries considerable meaning, and offers Miss Dell's most sympathetic performance. That doesn't simply arise from the fact that this promising actress died in an accident since it was made. It is gratifying to record that she leaves a beautiful, glowing posthumous portrayal. Sad to see Lew Cody, who also died after the completion of the film. Oakie's interpretation is a rare blending of comedy and pathos. The production itself, directed by Wesley Ruggles, holds much interest.

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

Grace Bradley joined "Pursuit of Happiness" with Francis Lederer and Joan Bennett; Henry B. Walthall and Albert Conti are in "Serenade." The production date, June 20.

Kitty Carlisle left by plane yesterday for a New York vacation, and will return to be opposite Bing Crosby in "Here Is My Heart."

Gertrude Michael, who made a hit in "Murder at the Vanities," and George Barbier have had their options taken up by Paramount. Miss Michael's next picture will be "The Notorious Sophie Lang."

Una Merkel and Stuart Erwin have been cast in "Have a Heart."

Raul Roulin's option has been taken up one month ahead of time; he has just finished in "The World Moves On."

Mrs. Hancher Rites Held at Staunton

Staunton, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The funeral of Mrs. A. D. R. Hancher, who died in a sanatorium in New York Saturday morning, was held at Christ Lutheran Church here today, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Charles M. Teufel, the pastor. Burial was in Thornrose Cemetery.

Since the death of the Rev. Dr. Hancher about 18 months ago, Mrs. Hancher has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Smith, in New York City. She was taken ill ten days ago.

Dr. Hancher, for many years pastor of Christ Church here, afterward served as general superintendent of the Southern District of the Board Home Missions of the United Lutheran Church of America. Mrs. Smith is the only immediate surviving relative.

Two Parks Wanted By West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Approval of plans adopted by the West Virginia State Conservation Commission for two new State forest parks has been requested of the Federal Interior Department.

One of the parks would cover all of Cacapon Mountain in Morgan County, where its entire area of 4,300 acres has been optioned. The other would be established on a tract of 2,500 acres along Cheat River near Camp Dawson in Preston County, one of the State National Guard camps.

An initial expenditure of $25,000 on each camp is proposed, the funds to be supplied by the Federal Government, which would supply CCC companies to do the work. The plans call for an administration building, swimming pools, cabins, forest trails, camping grounds and other recreational facilities.

Body of Mrs. Perrin Taken to Cumberland

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Perrin, 56, of Cumberland, Md., was taken from Clarksburg this evening to the former city for burial.

She died at the home of a sister, Mrs. Kay R. Smith, here, after an illness of six months. Three sisters and four brothers survive her. Mrs. Perrin was a daughter of the late John M. and Hannah J. Wilson Twigg, of Cumberland.

Clarke County To Celebrate Its Centennial

Berryville Chamber of Commerce Plans 1936 Fete.

Berryville, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—At a time when discussions are prevalent in Virginia official circles as to the advisability of combining some of the smaller counties into one unit, the Berryville Chamber of Commerce announces plans for a celebration here in 1936 to mark the centennial anniversary of the separation of Clarke County from Frederick County.

Clarke County, which is one of the smaller counties of the State, was granted territorial sovereignty by the Virginia Legislature in 1835 and in 1836 the system of county government was installed.

Frederick County, which embodied the section now known as Clarke, is one of the oldest counties west of the Blue Ridge Mountains. After the eastern section of the county had become rather densely populated and the town of Berryville had grown up, citizens of the section petitioned the Legislature in 1835 for separate government.

Named for Pioneers.

A "lobby," consisting of Dr. Cyrus McCormick, Col. Treadwell Smith and Col. Jacob Isler, went to the Legislature and successfully brought about the separation from Frederick County. The new territorial division was named Clarke County in honor of the colonial pioneer, George Rogers Clarke.

Clarke County's government was established in 1836. Bushrod C. Washington, of Jefferson County, Va., now Jefferson County, W. Va., came to Berryville and installed the following justices of the peace: George H. Morris, Treadwell Smith, David Meade, James Wiggington, Edward J. Smith, Nathaniel Burwell, John W. Page, Francis B. Whiting, Philip Smith, Robert Page, Francis McCormick and Jacob Isler.

Had Many Lawyers.

Historians have recorded the fact that Berryville was noted for its large number of persons qualified to practice law. When the county court was organized the following were admitted to the bar: Washington E. Singleton, John E. Page, Cary Seldon Page, Richard Parker, Thomas A. Moore, Richard E. Boyd, Province McCormick, Lewis Glover, Robert Y. Conrad, Robert M. Page, Philip William, jr., Giles Cook, John A. Thompson, Charles B. Harding, David H. McGuire, A. S. Treadwell, Joseph T. Daugherty and James M. Mason.

The first settlers in Clarke County came to this section about 1740. In that year, James and John Lindsey settled on Long Marsh and in 1743 Isaac LaRue, of New Jersey, came to this place. In 1744, Joseph Hampton and his two sons, from the Eastern Shore of Maryland, settled near Berryville and lived for a year in a hollow sycamore tree. Families from the James River and Northern Neck sections settled in the southern end of the county in the vicinity of Millwood and Boyce.

George Washington, while a youth, was employed by Lord Fairfax in 1748 to survey the latter's domains, and in 1783, "Old Chapel," here here, was erected, being the first Episcopal Church west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

A. F. Robertson and the Rev. T. Carter Page have been named by the Berryville Chamber of Commerce to work out tentative plans for the centennial celebration.

Mighty Leviathan Sails Again

Proud and mighty again, the liner Leviathan, largest of the American passenger ships, went back into transatlantic service, entering a new phase of her checkered 29-year career. She had been tied up for a year and recently was reconditioned. Here she is shown backing away from her pier in the Hudson River at Hoboken, N. J.

Two Tie for First Honors At Woodstock Flower Show

Woodstock, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Entries from the gardens of Mrs. W. C. Ford and Mrs. Joseph Boyer tied for top honors at the eighth annual flower show of the Shenandoah Garden Club held here last week-end. Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Boyer each won three firsts, while Mrs. Raymond Krantz and Mrs. J. W. Bailey got two firsts each.

A feature of the show was a display of specimen roses by Roger O. Wine, of Harrisonburg.

Many of the several hundred guests at the show visited a number of local gardens open for inspections, including the Albert Ritchie, Wunder, Wender, Bailey, Ford, Boyer and Dickenson properties.

Most artistic arrangement in glass, roses predominating—Won by Mrs. Douglas Dymock; second, Mrs. F. W. Gearing; third, Mrs. Ray Krantz.

James Hotchkiss, Cumberland, Dies

Cumberland, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—James Hotchkiss, 86, father of Sheriff Hugh A. Hotchkiss, died here yesterday.

A native of Glasgow, Scotland, he came to this country with his parents when he was six. He was a coal miner all his life, and a member of the old Stevenson Band, the first organization of its kind in the George's Creek region, formed by his brother-in-law, Frank Stevenson, when he came home from the Civil War. Mr. Hotchkiss was a Presbyterian and an active Republican.

Besides Sheriff Hotchkiss, the surviving children are Mrs. Elizabeth Inskeep, Keyser, W. Va., Richard C. Hotchkiss, Mount Savage, Md.; Mrs. David Darnley, Lonaconing, and Mrs. William Dobson, Pekin, Md.

Staunton Is Host To Baptist Group

Missionary Union Will Meet This Week.

Staunton, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—About 100 delegates are expected to attend the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union, auxiliary to the Augusta Baptist Association, to be in session here Wednesday and Thursday.

Embraced in the association's territory are the counties of Augusta, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Bath and Alleghany. The First Baptist Church in this city will be convention host.

On Wednesday evening Young People's night will be observed, Mrs. W. O. Beazley, young people's director, presiding, and the principal speaker being Miss Blanche S. White, missionary. There will be morning and afternoon sessions on Thursday.

Too Many Wives, Police Say, Land Virginian in Jail

Danville, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Orell Thomas, 28, textile worker, was held by police today for having two wives too many.

His first wife, formerly Miss Dolly Burgess, lives in Spray, N. C., with his three children. Police allege he married a second woman in Clifton Forge less than a month ago, being uncertain of her full name. Ten days ago, they allege he married Miss Naomi Cobbler here.

Two School Board Members Resign

Fredericksburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Dr. J. Wallace Massey and Lynn W. Dickinson have resigned from the Spotsylvania County School Board.

Their reasons were included in statements submitted to the county school electoral board, which has not yet released the statements.

Dr. Massey has been a member of the board for 5 years, while Mr. Dickinson was first appointed to the board 20 years ago. Only John W. Kimmon and Thomas B. Sale remain on the board.

Men to replace Dr. Massey and Mr. Dickinson will be selected by the school electoral board, composed of Dr. J. W. Harris, John Kimmon and Joseph Duerson. Mr. Duerson, recently appointed to the county board of supervisors, may be disqualified from acting with the electoral board.

Rites for Henry Merrill Held at Pocomoke City

Charlottesville Beaten Twice In League

Valley League Lead Cut to One Game; Harrisonburg Is Runner-up.

HARRISONBURG, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—The Valley League cry of "Stop Charlottesville" was answered with a vengeance over the week-end when first Culpeper and then Harrisonburg dug notches in the previously unblemished losing column of the university lads.

As another week starts, Charlottesville is only one game ahead of Harrisonburg and Culpeper is just a game behind the runners-up. Two games changed completely the Valley League picture. A week ago, Charlottesville was far in front with five straight victories and had the fans believing they couldn't be stopped.

Woodstock Wins Again.

Woodstock stepped into the win column again after four straight reverses but it was hapless New Market that again was the victim of their neighbors. New Market appears weak in the hurling department, 32 runs having been scored by opponents in the last three games. But the boys from the battlefield town are fighting and promise to snap out of their slump just as suddenly as the end was put to the Charlottesville winning streak.

To Lefty McIntyre goes the hurling honor of halting the Charlottesville Club. He gained the verdict over Lefty Scrivener, of George Washington University, in a fine southpaw duel. Each allowed only seven hits but the Culpeper hurler had the better support to offset the 13 strike-outs registered by Scrivener. It was a great day for the Culpeper Club, regarded by many fans as the one to be beaten for the pennant.

Big Blow-Off in Tenth.

The big blow-off at Charlottesville came on Sunday when Harrisonburg scored five runs in the tenth inning to win, 8 to 5, after tying the score in the ninth. Acting Manager Curg Hill led the assault with a single and triple in the crucial rounds. Harrisonburg collected an even dozen hits while Southpaw Johnny Keister limited Charlottesville to seven.

Public Links Entries Extended Until July 2

An extension of time in the closing of entries for the District sectional qualifying trials for the National Public Links Golf championship has been granted local players. The new deadline for filing entries is July 2.

Already more than 75 Washington players have entered the 72-hole test scheduled at East Potomac and Rock Creek on July 9-10. The four low scorers will go to Pittsburgh to compete in the public links proper on July 30-August 4, inclusive.

Among the prominent pay-as-you-go golfers entered are Harlan Will, District municipal champion; Claude Rippy, Bradley Burrows, Earl Jameson, Andy Oliveri, Eddie Stolark, Russell Hoag, and John Baer.

Frederick Team Tops County Loop

Brunswick, New Windsor Win Again and Tie for Second Place.

Frederick, Md., June 25 (Spl.).—Frederick defeated Taneytown, 27 to 3; New Windsor stopped Thurmont, 9 to 3 in ten innings; Brunswick took the measure of Woodsboro, 12 to 3; Middletown defeated Union Bridge, 10 to 8, and Brunswick routed Woodsboro, 12 to 3, in the county league.

The victory put Frederick in the lead in the pennant race with Brunswick and New Windsor tied for second place, 1 game removed from the leader.

The Frederick-Taneytown game was easy for the city team. Neither side scored until the third inning, when Frederick went on a batting rampage and put over 13 runs. Six more were added in the next frame.

New Windsor and Thurmont played on even terms until the first half of the tenth inning, when a single by Nichols, sacrifice by Fowble and single by Baker yielded the winning run.

Mannsfield Club Bans Shirtless Swimmers

Fredericksburg, Va., June 25 (Spl.).—Shirtless bathers and tennis players will be barred from the facilities of the Mannsfield Country Club in the future, it was decided at a meeting of the board of directors.

The board accepted an offer by the Virginia Shoe Co. to furnish a silver cup to be awarded as a golf trophy rewarding the winner of the club's first cup tournament to begin the morning of July 4.

C. O'Conor Goolrick, chairman of golf activities, announced appointment of the following tournament committee for this year: A. Bean, chairman; C. T. Hill, and Fred Cooke. The golf entertainment committee to look after visiting players includes Ray C. Hopkins, chairman; Joseph Savage, Chester B. Goolrick, Claude T. Parcell, and Edgar M. Young, jr.

Suds and Lions

When Mrs. Marjorie Freeman, of Hollywood, was given a newborn lion cub for a pet it was only big as a house cat and easy to handle. Now the family pet presents an increasingly difficult problem, especially when it's time for his bath. Mrs. Freeman dons a bathing suit to do the job.

Mount Hood Shelters Built.

Hood River, Oreg. (U.P.).—Hikers on the north and east side of Mount Hood will, in the event they are caught in mountain storms, be within easy reach of shelter. The forest service recently completed building a series of storm shelters at strategic points on the mountain slopes.

Three Wins Recorded By Westminster Nines

In the first game, with the score standing 2-1 in favor of the Westminster Eagles at the beginning of the seventh, the Eagles went into a batting orgy that resulted in a final score of 9-1 in their favor.

The final game of the double-header saw the Westminster Tigers step away from a one run lead in the sixth to pile up a total of 11 tallies against four runs brought in by Company H.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF the District of Columbia, June 22, 1934. Notice: A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia on June 19, 1934, in the matter of opening streets hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that said closings will be for the interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following orders, which, pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1933, the street area as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 1837, 1838 and 1839, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after August 1, 1934, the title to said land comprised in said area so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps; the said street area hereby ordered closed being described as follows: (1) Closing part of Utah avenue n. w., south of Rittenhouse street, abutting on lots 48 to 52, square 2319, and being that part of said Utah avenue 70.00 feet wide, as shown on the records of the Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia, bounded on the west by the westerly boundary of parcel 61/69 (Episcopal Home for Children). (2) Closing part of Sherrett place n. w., west of Reno road, and providing for a change in connection with the same, to adjust the street lines and provide for a change in the course of said Sherrett place. (3) Closing part of Chesapeake street south of Oregon avenue, abutting on lot 811, square 2907, known as U. S. Reservation No. 486, and being that part of said 4th place lying south of the extension of the south line of public alley, 15 feet wide, running east and west in square 2901. Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closings in writing before the effective date of said order, otherwise said order shall become effective on August 2, 1934, as aforesaid, and said street area shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, JOHN C. GOTWALS, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

EXCEPTIONAL PIANO OPPORTUNITY PRESENTED BY THE MANUFACTURER.
Completed clearance of uprights and grands returned from local branches of Senators and State Representatives offers prudent buyers an exceptional opportunity to enrich their homes with instruments of unquestioned quality. Not a single piano in this group of very choice returned rental stock will be allowed to remain unsold. We are constantly making new pianos and make a practice at all our Factory Stores to close out even slightly used instruments at a fraction of their usual retail prices. These pianos were great values originally, now they are examples of mighty economy. Better pianos, better selections and better service have made this celebrated factory-to-you local store the fastest growing piano house in Washington. Look and compare to your heart's content. We have the utmost confidence in the supremacy of our values. Wait until you see them, they have no equal for tone, action, finish or style. Certainly price and quality combined appeal to you. Do not let anything prevent a call at our store. These bargains will not remain long. In possession long, they'll soon grace many happy and fortunate homes. Every moment is precious, select yours tomorrow. One price, cash or credit free from the customary added excess interest charges of Finance Companies. W. W. Kimball Co., 721 Eleventh st. nw., 3 doors north of Palais Royal.

IT'S SO AGGRAVATING FOR YOU TO FIND PEGGY OUT AGAIN, MR. EL DORADO. HOWEVER, I FEEL SURE SHE'LL BE HERE ANY MOMENT AND.....
FRANKLY, MRS. BUNGLE, I'M GLAD SHE ISN'T HERE JUST NOW, BECAUSE I'D LIKE TO TALK WITH YOU ABOUT....AH... THIS OAKDALE PERSON.
OH MR. EL DORADO, SHE ISN'T THE LEAST BIT INTERESTED IN HIM. I DON'T APPROVE OF HIM EITHER, AND NEVER DID. NEVER.
I UNDERSTAND BUT....WELL I SUPPOSE I SHOULDN'T INTERFERE, BUT I TOO DISTRUST HIM MORE THAN I CARE TO ADMIT. HE'S.....
EXCUSE THE INTERRUPTION, MR. EL DORADO, BUT DON'T HESITATE IN SAYING ANYTHING ABOUT THAT MAN. ANYTHING. HE'S A TROUBLE-MAKER. HE'S A.....
WE SHOULD DO SOMETHING. I WONDER, MRS. BUNGLE, WHAT PEGGY WOULD SAY IF I INVITED HER.....AND YOU, TOO, OF COURSE...FOR A CRUISE ON MY YACHT?
ON YOUR YACHT? US? OH MR. EL DORADO! WE'D BE DELIGHTED. WHEN WOULD WE START AND.?...
SUPPOSE WE DECIDE THAT AFTER I SPEAK TO PEGGY. BY JOVE, IT'S GOOD TO KNOW YOU, TOO, SEE THROUGH THAT SHALLOW AND DANGEROUS FELLOW, OAKDALE.

I WANT TO FIND OUT IF DYNAMITE COULD DO WITH ANOTHER SPARRIN' MATE
COULD DYNAMITE DO WIT' ONE? I'LL SAY HE COULD - HIM AN' ME BOTH! RIGHT DIS WAY!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

DIXIE DUGAN — The Only Cure — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

UNCLE BEVVY - HERE'S DIXIE!!
YES? WHAT'S THE TROUBLE WITH HER? A DEVIATED SEP-TUM, PERHAPS?! — OR A HYPERTROPHIED EPIGLOTTIS? — OR PERCHANCE A SUPERANNUATED CEREBELLUM? OR — UNCLE! - DON'T TEASE — YOU ASKED ME TO BRING DIXIE HERE BECAUSE — AW — YES — IT'S A TERRIBLY HOT DAY — A FRIGHTFULLY HOT DAY — AND I'LL BE WORSE IN THE CITY AS THE SUMMER GOES ON —
UNCLE PLEASE! WE'LL BURST WITH CURIOSITY IF YOU DON'T TELL US —
BUT I AM TELLING YOU, HONEY! - IT'S A HOT DAY, ISN'T IT? AND DIXIE'S SUFFERINS FROM THE HEAT, ISN'T SHE? — AND IF SHE STAYS IN THE CITY SHE'LL SUFFER MORE, WON'T SHE?
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
WELL - I'M GOING TO TAKE HER, AND YOU, AND AUNT ELLEN, AND ME — ALL OF US — TO A NICE, COOL SPOT ON SOME NICE COOL LAKE FOR A NICE LONG VACATION — HOW ABOUT IT, DIXIE?
6-26

THE GUMPS — The One That Got Away

YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THAT FISH — HE WAS TWICE AS BIG AS THE LAKE — I'LL BET HE WAS A MILE LONG —
SIDNEY SMITH

DICK TRACY — Along a Country Road

NO KIDDING, MISTER - THERE'S A FELLER HANGING ON THE FENCE UP AROUND THAT BEND IN THE ROAD - AND HE LOOKS LIKE HE'S DEAD!
YEAH?
MAYBE HE'S A HUNTER AND HIS GUN WENT OFF WHEN HE CRAWLED UNDER THE FENCE.
HE'S NO HUNTER, BUD. AT LEAST NOT THE KIND OF HUNTER YOU'RE THINKING OF.
UH HUH! IT'S O'MARRA! HOW COULD I MISS THAT PUSS! SHOT SOMEWHERE ELSE - AND THROWN HERE.
TEN MINUTES LATER
JERRY O'MARRA, BOSS OF THE AUTOMOBILE RACKET! QUICK! WE MUST GET OUT THERE, CHIEF.

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner — Making the Grade

GOSH! I WONDER WHAT THE TROUBLE IS??
I CERTAINLY WILL!
CAN YOU IMAGINE THAT?? MRS. FLEUR WANTS TO TAKE HER DAUGHTER, FRANCES, OUT OF OUR BUSINESS SCHOOL?
I INSIST ON IT!!
BUT MRS. FLEUR, WHY TAKE HER OUT OF THE SCHOOL NOW?? IT WON'T BE LONG BEFORE SHE'LL BE A FINISHED STUDENT!!
OH YES?

Walt Mason, Himself

Clyde Barrow.

The fame of young Clyde Barrow has traveled far and near; among the braes of Yarrow they talked of his career; beside the far Nyanzas they spoke of his exploits; men talked of him in Kansas, when tired of playing quoits. He was a ruthless killer, he shot at all he met; he winged the crossroads miller, and plugged the village vet. There was no idle season for this blood-thirsty gent; without a rhyme or reason he butchered as he went. He slew the county sheriff, and croaked the city sleuth, and made a shinging seraph of any harmless youth. I said to him, "Clyde Barrow, I view you with alarm; go, tool a plow or harrow across an upland farm. Do something sane, I pray you, and show some common sense, or some one soon will slay you and drape you on a fence. Go shuck the corn, Clyde Barrow, or mow the teeming heath; the margin is but narrow between your feet and death." He would not take my warning at any sort of price; the toughs are always scorning my safe and sane advice. He went on courting dangers and flirting with his doom, until some Texas Rangers equipped him for the tomb. Again the same old moral must quoted be, I fear; in amethyst and coral we see it graven near; it always has resounded whenever sinners stray; in churches is expounded the truth, "Crime doesn't pay."

"Sissie" Book Taught Boys To Fear Fight

Stealing Horseback Rides, Toying With Knives Also Taboo.

The "Book of Caution to Children" reminds little boys that they must not quarrel, because it is a "disgrace to the human form." It is illustrated by gory examples of what happens to naughty infants.

"Wicked boys fight like dogs and other brutes, by which they often do each other great injury, whilst by such conduct they disgrace the human form. We hope all good boys will be so struck with this lesson that they will guard against ever getting into a passion, and also be careful to avoid the company of quarrelsome lads. Oh! Remember well that the Apostle tells us that those who wrangle, or fight, enter not into the Kingdom of Heaven.

"Sometimes little boys lose their lives by getting on their fathers' horses. Their light weight encourages the animal to frisk and gallop, and the terrified child falls off, perhaps to be dragged in the stirrup or kicked to pieces by the horse."

"Do see! This lad's countenance seems to say, 'Oh, I've cut myself. What shall I do?' What a desire some children have to play with knives or forks or a pair of scissors! Bad wounds are often the consequence, and many children even have lost their lives by handling such dangerous things."

Health Aid Patents Vetoed.

Cambridge, Mass. (U.P.).—Harvard University faculty members have voted that the patenting of discoveries or inventions bearing on matters of health and therapeutics is undesirable. As a result, Harvard scientists will not be permitted to take out such patents unless granted dispensations by the university.

Kidnapers Threaten Squirrel.

Wellesley, Mass. (U.P.). — Miss Phoebe Ballou, Wellesley College student, has received a series of kidnap threats aimed against the safety of her pet squirrel, Junior. Miss Ballou keeps the pet in a cotton nest on a window sill and feeds it by means of a medicine dropper.

Repairs Begun In Papal Home

Vatican City (U.P.). — While the Pope is on vacation at the Papal villa on Castelgandolfo this summer, the Pontifical apartments in the Vatican will undergo a regular restoration.

The work, to last four or five months, already has begun.

The fact would seem to strengthen the general supposition that the Holy Father intends to make a prolonged stay in the country, on this his first holiday since he was elected Pope.

The so-called "Sovereigns' Apartment" in the Governor's Palace in Vatican City is being prepared as an emergency residence for the Pope should he return before the restoration is completed. The apartment was prepared at the time of the building of the Governor's Palace for a possible stay of Catholic sovereigns in Vatican City.
